Short History of Slovene Literature By F. T. SUHADOLNIK

Books were urgently needed for schools and in the face of their lack Vodnik wrote five of them "ABC for primary grades," "Catholic Instruction for the Illiria schools," Grammar for the primary grades" "French grammar for the schools" and a Slovene -Geman - French dictionary. All of them were pubished in 1811. Of all the textbooks the most inceresting and the most important is the Grammar for primary grades which Vodnik pointed to the fact that the Slovene language has a musical tone. In the grammar there is also "Iliria oshivlena" an ode expressing the happiness that Vodnik felt at the progress and the recognition given to the Slovene language under the new order of things. He is enthusiastic of the Slovene nationality, individuality of the Illiria, and the glorious history of the Slovenes. With the poems he completed and old thought and an old idea but the opportunity was never granted his. He intended to write the poem at the death of Linhart and express his sentiments at the death of the Slovene historian.

Enthusiasm for Napoleon's regime showed itself in other ways. Vodnik became a member of the Franco-Illiric society "Friends of the Roman King and Napoleon." But this membership was fatal to Vodnik a little later. The enthusiasm turned to sorrow when it became evident that Napoleon did not intend to give the peace that Europe looked to so earnestly. After the catastrophy of the grand Army in the campaign of 1813-1814, peace was again on this earth.

The fall of Napoleon was a fall for the new and youthful province that was created by Napoleon. Austrian ideas were very different from the French and as soon as the peace treaty was signed the provinces were recognized by all the friends of Napoleon was accordingly treated. Count Saurau did not recommend Vodnik for the position he formerly had on the basis of the poem "Illiria oshivlena" and the membership of the society "Friends of the Roman King and Napoleon." Educational societies and other organizations recommended that he would not be treated badly because of the poem for it was nothing else but an enthusiastic greeting of an intense lover of the Slovene rather than a praise of the French ruler. If there is no other objection," his friends argued, he could be admitted to the schools as a teacher. But the Austrians were intent on having revenge and he was demoted and recommended to be sent outside of the territory of former Illiria. On December 1814 he was ordered to retire or exile at a third pay (In Europe the Church and the schools are tax supported institutions under a commissioner appointed for that purpose. — Ed. Note) Accordingly in November of 1815 he was retired at a third of his wages and his plea that he be allowed to teach as the professor of universal history and the Italian were repeatedly refused. Temporarily he was given the position of substitute teacher of Italian at the college and he was recognized as the official interpreter and translator of all the official notices that were to be published.

With the constant refusal of any work Vodnik amused himself with the intensive study of archeology and numismatics. He was also constantly working at poetry and wrote many new poems and rewrote many of his older poems. In 1818 he published the "Babifhtvo" of Matosh. The last era of the Poets life is best seen in the poem "Illiria svelizhana" in which the poet retracts all the statements of Napoleon's praise and the poem of Frankish rule "Ilirijo oziveljeno". The best poem of the latter life of the poet is "Moj fpominik" a written example of the inward emotions and feeling in the darkest moments of the poet's life and conscienciousness that as a poet he has achieved those things which was expected of him. On the 8th of January he succumbed to heart trouble.

The first age of Slovene poetry closes with the death of Vodnik. The foundations, not very great have been laid and have achieved their height in the poems of Vodnik. Cheerful, hopeful, at times enthusiastic, at others dogmatic and polemic his poetry ceases to be an exercise in metric composition and a real bringing forth of the personality of the man himself. Vodnik was the first poet of the Slovenes. not the greatest, it is true, but a pioneer.

7 POPULAR LITERATURE

An interesting phenomena of the time of Vodnik were the popular poets. As popular poets, the bards and the minstrels are nothing new but this age is distinguished that the song was substituted with the recitation and that the recitations were often of such a nature that could be accepted and placed in the fund of increasing popular literature and national literature. Of the individuals of this latest popular movement all names have disappeared and the works were left to us bits.

In the provinces there were lesser stars w gotten some share of fame for their diligent the literary field. ORELS CHARGED WITH PROFESSIONALISM

To-date the only club in the Inter-Lodge League whose players have received renumeration is the Orels. President Frank Surtz was the liberal donor, at the game played against the Collinwood Boosters. Here' how it came about. He is an old judge of baseball, having played the game himself years ago. Speh, Jim Trumte, Joe Casey After viewing his Orels for five innings and their vain attempts to score a run, he felt it would be safe to unloose some of his fifty cent pieces. His offer was to give the team fifty cents for each run scored. The boys waited until the last frame to score one lone run thereby earning an even five cents apiece. That's what we call being loyal to the president, and saving him from embarrasment. But as we said Surtz knows his onions and perhaps thought even one run to be too much to score at the rate the Orels were batting.
