Conference Organisers

The conference is organised by three partner institutions:

University of Primorska, Faculty of Management (Slovenia) is a higher education institution for education and research in the fields of social sciences, management, economics, and business. The Faculty offers professional and university bachelor study programmes in Management, master study programmes in Management, Economics and Finance, Law for Management, interdisciplinary master's study programme in Sustainable Development Management, and doctoral study programme in Management. Besides the study programmes leading to a degree, the Faculty also offers modules for groups or in-company training in the field of social sciences and management with interdisciplinary links to economic, business, legal, organizational, and behavioural sciences.

University of Zadar, Department of Economics (Croatia) contributes to society through higher education, learning, and research in the field of business studies, adhering to the highest standards of excellence. The Department offers undergraduate and graduate programmes in Management, aimed at developing fundamental and advanced managerial competencies. The study programmes are continuously aligned with the latest insights in management education, in accordance with the recommendations of international professional bodies and accreditation agencies. It is a respected institutional member of the Business Graduates Association (BGA), an international membership and quality assurance body for the world's leading business schools with high potential.

University of Trieste, The Department of Economics, Business, Mathematics and Statistics (DEAMS, Italy) promotes and coordinates teaching and research activities in the fields of economics and business sciences, statistical sciences and mathematics applied to economics and social sciences. DEAMS undergraduate programmes include three degrees in Economics and Financial Markets, Business Administration and Management, Statistics and Informatics for Business, Finance and Insurance. At the graduate level DEAMS offers three Master's degrees in Economy, Environment and Development, Business Strategy and Consulting, Statistical and Actuarial Sciences. It is also home to an international PhD in Circular Economy.

Pre-Conference Day Co-Organiser

In addition to the three partner universities traditionally involved in the organisation of the Pre-Conference Day for PhD Students, this year's event is co-organised by the Centre for Development and Knowledge Transfer of the University of Primorska (CRPZ) as part of the UNIK@TT project, thereby strengthening interdisciplinary collaboration and broadening the support for early-stage researchers.

The Centre for Development and Knowledge Transfer of the University of Primorska (CRPZ UP) serves as the central Technology Transfer Office (TTO) of the University, merging academic excellence, innovation, and entrepreneurial spirit. Operating under the Faculty of Management, CRPZ UP connects researchers, institutions, and organisations to promote knowledge transfer, protect intellectual property, and strengthen collaboration between the university, industry, and society.

CRPZ UP plays a vital role in the innovation ecosystem by actively promoting, connecting, and supporting the University of Primorska's involvement in local, national, and international innovation networks. Leveraging its expertise, the Centre accelerates the commercialization of research results and facilitates the establishment of strategic partnerships.

The UNIK@TT Project is a strategic project initiative led by Slovenia's three leading public universities-University of Ljubljana (consortium leader), University of Maribor, and University of Primorska-to enhance the transfer of scientific knowledge and innovation from academia to the economy and society. This initiative is complemented by the KTO3 consortium, coordinated by the Jožef Stefan Institute, which unites public research organizations to strengthen knowledge transfer mechanisms.

As part of the MIC 2025 Pre-Conference Day, CRPZ UP FM will host the International Technology Transfer Office Collaboration Event within the UNIK@TT project, fostering connections between Technology Transfer Offices (TTOs) and promoting collaboration among institutions, researchers, students and businesses in innovation, intellectual property management, and spin-off company development.

Key objectives of the event:

- Strengthening TTO competencies on an international level
- Increasing visibility and promotion of TTO activities
- Advancing cooperation in intellectual property protection and commercialization
- Supporting the establishment and growth of spin-off companies
- Formalizing partnerships through Memoranda of Understanding (MoU)

The project was launched in response to a call by the Ministry of Higher Education, Science, and Innovation and is co-funded by the EU through the European Regional Development Fund. Its goal is to ensure the sustainable development of TTOs across Slovenian public research organizations, fostering a more dynamic innovation ecosystem, increase the number of patent applications, strengthen university-industry partnerships, and improve technology transfer efficiency.

The MIC 2025 event will be a key opportunity to share knowledge, mentor students, forge strategic partnerships, and strengthen technological and social innovation.

Welcome Address by the Organisers

We are pleased and honoured to welcome you to Zadar, Croatia, for the Management International Conference (MIC) 2025.

The 24th MIC Conference is organised as a joint international event by three partner institutions: the University of Primorska, Faculty of Management (Slovenia); the University of Zadar, Department of Economics (Croatia); and the University of Trieste, Department of Economics, Business, Mathematics and Statistics (DEAMS, Italy).

We sincerely thank all participants and presenters for their valuable contributions. This year, 76 papers will be presented, and the total number of participants will surpass 100.

All paper abstracts are included in the Book of Abstracts. Authors are invited to submit full papers to the MIC 2025 Conference Proceedings or to the regular and special issues of the MIC supporting journals. The list of these journals is available on the conference website.

We are truly grateful to our Keynote Speaker, Mr Lasse Michael Boehm (Economic Governance and EMU Scrutiny Unit (EGOV), European Parliament), and to all speakers participating in the Round Table Toward Sustainable Tourism: A Strategic Approach. We also thank Dr Marco Balzano, facilitator of the Pre-Conference Day workshop, the editors involved in the Editors' Panel, and the organisers of the special sessions.

Finally, we express our sincere thanks to all who contributed to the programme boards and the organisation of MIC 2025. We wish each of you a productive and inspiring conference.

Dr Anita Trnavčević
Dr Jurica Bosna
Dr Guido Bortoluzzi
Conference Chairs

Conference Aims

MIC 2025 is designed to tackle pressing geopolitical, economic, and environmental challenges of our time. This year's theme underscores the importance of fostering discussions among scientists, researchers, and policymakers on key topics such as management, economics, marketing, entrepreneurship, sustainable development, and digitalisation, with a strong emphasis on building resilience and adaptability in an ever-evolving world. With resilience as a cornerstone for navigating uncertainty and innovation as a driver of progress, the conference seeks to inspire strategies that align economic goals with sustainability and technological advancement.

Emphasising the interconnectedness of global challenges, MIC 2025 encourages participants to explore solutions that balance economic performance, societal well-being, and environmental preservation. By encouraging collaboration across disciplines and welcoming diverse perspectives, the conference seeks to help leaders and organisations prepare for future challenges and work towards a fairer and more sustainable world.

On Methodological Rigor: Conducting Systematic Literature Reviews Using AI

Wednesday, 4 June 2025 • 12.00–14.00

Hall 5 (Department of Economics)

Workshop Facilitator: Dr Marco Balzano

During the first part of the seminar, we will focus on methodological rigor in conducting systematic literature reviews, emphasizing the principles and processes that ensure transparency, replicability, and meaningful contribution to academic discourse. We will reflect on how a well-structured review begins with the clear definition of research questions and theoretical boundaries, guiding the inclusion and exclusion criteria that frame the study. Together, we will examine how the development of an effective search string is central to retrieving a relevant body of literature, requiring careful selection of keywords and Boolean operators to balance breadth and specificity. As part of our discussion, we will explore best practices for querying and selecting appropriate academic databases, particularly Scopus and Web of Science, to refine the scope of investigation and ensure access to high-quality, peer-reviewed sources. Through practical examples, we will see how systematic screening and extraction allow researchers to filter out irrelevant or redundant materials while maintaining methodological consistency. We will also analyze common pitfalls in literature reviews—such as selection bias, lack of coherence in synthesis, and misalignment between research questions and findings—and discuss strategies to mitigate these challenges through a structured and iterative approach. A key theme of the seminar will be the role of AI in supporting literature reviews. We will examine how AI-driven tools can facilitate various phases of the review process, from text mining and thematic clustering to the automated organization of articles. Through interactive demonstrations, we will see how AI can enhance efficiency and accuracy in structuring and analyzing vast bodies of literature, helping researchers identify patterns, categorize insights, and generate structured narratives. However, throughout the discussion, we will critically assess the extent to which AI should be integrated into academic workflows, emphasizing the researcher's judgment in ensuring conceptual clarity and methodological soundness.

Dr Marco Balzano is a Research Fellow in Management at the University of Trieste, Italy. He holds a Double PhD in Management from Ca' Foscari University of Venice and SKEMA Business School. His primary research interests focus on business strategy and innovation management. His research has been published in several international journals, including California Management Review, International Journal of Management Reviews, and Technovation, among others. He also serves as Associate Editor for Journal of Small Business Management.

Crafting a Theoretical Contribution: AI as a Companion in Structuring Knowledge

Wednesday, 4 June 2025 • 15.00–17.00

Hall 5 (Department of Economics)

Workshop Facilitator: Dr Marco Balzano

Building on the foundation of a rigorous literature review, we will examine how the transition to theorization requires systematic coding and structured interpretation of the extracted knowledge. During the seminar, we will explore how identifying gaps in the literature is not merely about recognizing missing pieces but about understanding the conditions under which a meaningful theoretical contribution can emerge. We will reflect on how theorizing involves moving beyond summary toward conceptual synthesis, developing insights that refine or extend existing frameworks. Throughout our discussion, we will consider the miner-pro prospector continuum as a guiding framework for literature reviews and theory development. We will see how the miner approach emphasizes a meticulous excavation of existing research, systematically organizing and synthesizing knowledge to uncover patterns and refine established perspectives. In contrast, the prospector takes a more exploratory stance, searching for new theoretical directions, bridging disconnected conversations, and introducing novel conceptual frameworks. Together, we will analyze when and how each of these orientations can be effectively applied to different research contexts. We will also engage with the role of qualitative coding in structuring data, categorizing themes, and revealing patterns that inform theoretical development. During the session, we will explore both manual and AI-assisted approaches to coding, examining how generative AI tools and AI-driven content analysis systems can provide structured ways to explore thematic networks and construct conceptual maps. Through interactive examples, we will discuss how AI can be used as a complementary tool to assist in pattern recognition and conceptual organization while ensuring that interpretative control remains in the hands of the researcher. Also here a key focus will be how AI can inspire rather than dictate the theorization process. We will reflect on how AI-generated insights can support scholars in crafting and refining core theoretical constructs, enhancing the coherence of conceptual models, and exploring novel linkages that might otherwise remain overlooked. The seminar will conclude with a broader discussion on the evolving role of AI in academic research, acknowledging that while theorization remains an inherently human-driven endeavor, AI can serve as a valuable companion in refining arguments, structuring knowledge, and revealing new pathways for conceptual development.

The Economic Challenges of Europe in Uncertain Times

Thursday, 5 June 2025 • 12.15–13.30

Main Hall (University of Zadar)

Keynote Speaker: Mr Lasse Michael Boehm

Head, Economic Governance and EMU Scrutiny Unit (EGOV), European Parliament

Lasse Boehm is leading a team of economists providing expertise and analysis for the European Parliament's Committee on Economic and Monetary Affairs (ECON) on macro-economic, monetary and fiscal policy developments. The EGOV unit monitors the European Semester for economic policy coordination as well as euro area monetary policy, preparing the ECON committee's monetary dialogues with the European Central Bank and regular dialogues with the European Commission and EU member states on the implementation and impact of the EU's Recovery and Resilience Facility.

In addition, the unit provides analyses on the state-of-play of the EU Banking Union, and assists the committee in scrutinising relevant EU-level institutions such as the Single Supervisory Mechanism. Lasse joined the European Parliament in 2004. He holds an MPhil degree from St Antony's College Oxford and a BA in Political Science from the University of Durham.

Abstract. Faced with global uncertainty and new economic, political and security challenges, the European Union's economic model is under strain. Externally, a protectionist wave threatens the EU's export-driven economy which is based on free trade and tightly-interwoven supply chains. Internally, the EU faces the need to adjust its operating modus from a long-term, regulatory, model built around the single market to a system able to react quickly and with adequate means to unexpected challenges. As part of the answer, the European Commission has proposed a renewed focus on competitiveness. Starting from what the EU has already done to react to the new challenges, the talk will ask the question what competitiveness means, what kind of governance questions the new challenges throw up for the European Union, and what their financial implications are. Ultimately, addressing the economic challenges Europe is facing lead to fundamental institutional questions far beyond the realm of economic policy-making. Addressing these requires a broad economic, political and institutional reflection – including on the role and contribution of academia.

Toward Sustainable Tourism: A Strategic Approach

Thursday, 5 June 2025 • 15.00–16.30

Main Hall (University of Zadar)

Moderator: Dr Tomislav Klarin

How can we manage tourism to achieve sustainable, responsible, and balanced outcomes? The goal is to capitalize on business opportunities and offer high value-added products and services, while reducing the sector's reliance on a seasonal model, minimizing environmental impacts, and accounting for the effects of a changing climate.

Diversification and innovation in tourism products and services could be key drivers in this transition. Such strategies have the potential to extend the tourism season, support 'year-round tourism,' and stimulate the creation of high-quality employment. In doing so, they contribute to a more resilient and inclusive regional economy. Experts from academia, government, and tourism industry will contribute their insights on the matters discussed above.

This round table will bring together experts from academia, government, and the tourism industry, who will share their perspectives and experiences related to these pressing challenges and opportunities. Their diverse backgrounds promise a dynamic and thought-provoking exchange.

Panelists:

- Iva Bencun, Zadar Tourist Board
- Tomislav Fain, Terra Travel Agency
- Vlatka Košta, Kukljica Tourist Board
- Rebeka V. Pevec, Zadar Cruise Port
- Gabrijela Vidić, University of Zadar

Social Innovation

Thursday, 5 June 2025 • 9.00–10.15

Hall 121 (University of Zadar)

Session Chair: Dr Jana Hojnik

The Social Innovation session is dedicated to discussing various types, practices and characteristics of social innovation for maximizing the impact of scientific knowledge transfer, fostering collaboration between researchers, businesses, policymakers, broader public and relevant networks (e.g. T4EU).

The main topics of the session include presentations and research findings related to various definitions, types, practices and characteristics of social innovation, including measuring impact of social innovation.

The session is covered under the framework of UNIK@TT.

Knowledge Valorisation

Thursday, 5 June 2025 • 10.15–11.30

Hall 121 (University of Zadar)

Session Chair: Dr Simona Kustec

The Knowledge Valorisation session is dedicated to discussing (self)evaluation of TTOs structures and processes in fostering collaboration between universities, researchers, businesses, and policymakers.

The main topics of the session include recommendations and indicators for monitoring and further evaluation (the so-called valorisation metrics) of research organisations in their activities to support the development and strengthening of knowledge transfer into practice.

The session is covered under the framework of ISERO – Indicators for Self-Evaluation of Research Organisations in the Field of Knowledge Transfer.

Meet the Editors

Friday, 6 June 2025 • 11.30–13.00

Hall 5 (Department of Economics)

Panel Chair: Dr Guido Bortoluzzi

The Meet the Editors Panel offers a unique opportunity for all conference participants to engage in an open dialogue with editors of journals supporting MIC. This session aims to provide valuable insights into the publishing process, journal expectations, and current developments in academic publishing. Editors will briefly introduce their journals and share perspectives on broader trends and challenges that shape the publishing landscape today. The discussion will touch on key considerations for authors and provide guidance that can benefit researchers across different disciplines and career stages. The session will conclude with an open Q&A, allowing participants to raise questions and exchange views in an informal setting.
