The Erste's Share 60 Years Of Memories

It all started in 1911. The date was Jan. 31 — the day a 23-year-old boy named Louis Erste and a 17-year-old girl named Rose Cotman were married. We remember it was a terribly cold day. The streets were icy and a heavy snow covered the ground.

We stood in the church with five couples and most vividly remember Mr. and Mrs. Anzlovar — a couple with whom we enjoyed many years of friendship.

Louis and I have had our good days and bad, just as everyone else. We were blessed with four children — three daughters and a son. Our oldest daughter, Rose, died of heart trouble at the age of 22; our youngest passed away when she was 34, shortly after giving birth to her sixth child.

Our son, Louis, lives next door to us with his wife, Betty, and seven youngsters. Frances and her husband, John Menart, now reside in Boca Raton, Fla. We're expecting them in Cleveland for our 60th anniversary.

And although there are many memories, one of my most favored stems from the 1968 trip Louis and I took to beautiful Yugoslavia, a place I had never seen before. I just can't forget the beauty of it.

We were welcomed there by Louis' many relatives who all showed us a good time. In Zagreb, I met my 86-year-old brother, John, and in Ljubljana, Louis' cousins showed us the sights.

I'll never forget the trip and would like to go again if it weren't for my age. So you see, our friends, we have had a full life. God has blessed us with many moments of joy to temper the tears of sorrow we endured.

We want to take this opportunity to thank our many dear friends who have helped us endure through sorrow and joy, sickness and health, good times and bad. We cherish your friendship and want to favor it for some years to come.

FEBRUARY 8 IN CLEVELAND

A big snowstorm hit Cleveland last Monday, Feb. 8. Eight inches of snow blew in the metropolitan area with a foot to a foot-and-a-half in the eastern areas.

Motorists who left work for home had a nightmare on the road. It took some people 12 hours to make a normal 20 minute drive. Thousands of people and cars were stranded.

Some of these harrowing experiences will be related in next week's English section of the American Home.

If you would like to let our readers know what happened to you that night-of-nights, just write it down and sent it to the English Editor, Am. Home, 6117 St. Clair Ave., Cleveland, Ohio 44103.

NUTRITION AWARENESS!

America has a nutrition problem of a kind that has never before occurred in the annals of man. Because of the food abundance and variety of items available through the production and marketing channels of the food industry, proper nutrition today depends upon intelligent, consumer-buying practices.

Strange as it may sound, a modern supermarket stocked with 8,000 or more "goodies" of all kinds presents a problem of choice that a lot of people have yet to master. Like youngsters, they spurn spinach and turn to the candy counter. As a consequence, the food manufacturing and distribution industries are undertaking a massive "Nutrition Awareness" program. The program is intended to be a continuing effort with special emphasis at various future calendar periods in order to attract and maintain an enduring consumer attention.

Nutrition has become more than a dry classroom subject. Mass retail food distributors and other segments of the food industry have put a strong "sell" on nutrition importance. They have been joined by hundreds of newspaper and magazine food editors and writers who daily talk to millions of food shoppers.

The message on nutrition is also receiving the attention of radio and TV. Food industry advertisers will also help stimulate the interest in nutrition.

In the words of a food industry authority, "If there's any place where the business community, educators and government together can construct a better way, then here, in my opinion, is an excellent proving ground. Nutrition awareness certainly is a 'today' problem with both short and long-range challenges."
