Story Behind Mother's Day

The beginnings of this holiday may have been in the ancient spring festival known as Hilaria, dedicated to the mother goddess Cybele.

In medieval England there was a Mothering Sunday, the 4th Sunday in Lent, when children who had been away from home as apprentices returned to see their mothers, usually bringing the gift of a simmel or Mothering Cake with almond paste, meant to be eaten on Mid-Lent Sunday.

The evolution of Mother's Day, as it exists today, began in the United States in 1890 when Miss Mary T. Sassen, of Kentucky suggested to a gathering of teachers that an annual homage be paid to mothers every April 20th, her own mother's birthday.

Nothing came of the suggestion. In 1892 Robert K. Cummins, head of the Sunday School of the Universalist Church of Our Father in Baltimore, Maryland, proposed an annual memorial service on the Sunday closest to May 22nd, the date on which Mrs. Emily C. Pullman, mother of the church's pastor as well as the mother of the inventor of the Pullman Sleeping (railroad) car, had died. This service was undertaken, although later the annual service was dedicated not merely to Mrs. Pullman, but to all mothers worldwide.

While this service was repeated for many years, it did not catch on nationally.

Finally, the crusade for such a holiday achieved fulfillment through the tireless crusade of one individual. The actual creator of the modern Mother's Day observance was a 44-year-old Philadelphia woman who, ironically, had never been a mother. She was Anna M. Jarvis (1864-1948), who remained a spinster throughout her 84 years.

Anna Jarvis was born in Webster, West Virginia on May 1, 1864, the ninth of 11 children.

From childhood, Anna Jarvis often heard her mother say that she hoped someone would one day establish a memorial for all mothers, living and dead.

Upon the death of her mother on May 12, 1907, she moved to Philadelphia, from there worked to promote a national day honoring mothers. On May 10, 1908, the third anniversary of Mrs. Jarvis' death, fully-prepared programs were held at the Andrews Methodist Episcopal Church launching the observance of a general memorial day for all mothers.

It was an amazing difference crossing the Austrian-Slovenian border the first morning after Slovenia's entry into the European Union (EU). In over the 48 years of visits to Slovenia, mostly as a part of Yugoslavia, the border checks on both sides were careful and complete of car papers, passports, and people, and occasionally luggage.

This first morning as an EU country, a wave of border police hands pushed me quickly through the border at the Kraken tunnel driving from Austria. It was a festive day with flags hung in the cities and towns I passed through and the radio carried ongoing reports of speeches and other major events.

While much of the festivities were based in Ljubljana, news coverage was extensive of Gorica because of the city's special efforts to make a special occasion out of the Slovenia Italian border barrier lowering with bands, parades and colorful streams being played out by the local fire companies.

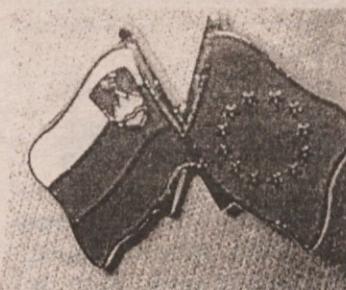

I joined my extended family in Moravce where more than 40 had gathered to celebrate the day. Some were civil service workers, managers, employees and university students among the family members, even a nun came who was related. Incidentally, a letter was read at the following Sunday Masses extolling the EU event instead of the usual homily. The Catholic church seems to have taken a positive, but cautious stance over the big event.

While not everyone was totally excited about the EU entry, all felt that ultimately it would bring good to Slovenia. There were concerns about the new competition that would be brought to Slovenia by a need for open borders and the question arose whether Slovenian companies would be able to meet the challenge with some feeling that some companies might fail.

A university student expressed concern over the fact that for many other generations the Slovenians had been followers not leaders. He felt that Slovenia was entering into an organization that required the presence of quality leaders. My comment to him was that he had the potential of being the future leader in this growing country.

May 1st is big day

The E.U. Comes to Slovenia

While representing only 2 percent of the population of the extended European Union, the Slovenians have a rich future ahead and are not expecting great masses of benefits as some of the other newly joined members are. The traditional hard work of the Slovenians will make them an important part of the collection of European states.

It was exciting seeing the first day of Slovenia in the EU and even one local teenagers wore a pin that had a Slovenian flag combined with a European Union flag on his running suit to show that he recognized the importance of the day as I did.

Last Big EU Expansion

The European Union's "big bang" expansion celebrated over the weekend of emotion and ceremony (May 1 and 2) will never be repeated, Romano Prodi, European Commission president, said on Monday.

Mr. Prodi said the EU will soon be full and there was no prospect of countries such as the former Soviet republics of Ukraine or Belarus becoming members.

Mr. Prodi, who steps down in October, said the EU will probably be complete once it has taken in the three outstanding applications: Bulgaria, Romania and Turkey – and the countries of the western Balkans, including Croatia and Serbia.

REFLECTIONS BY RUDY

God's Greatest Creation

by RUDY FLIS

A lot of rain fell this weekend, and a lot of my kids came to visit because there wasn't anything better to do. All of us also enjoyed a special guest – Tyler, a dog who looks like a "hot dog" wiener hound whose boss is my daughter, Carolyn. When goodbye time came, all were worn out, including Tyler.

Six grandchildren and some of their parents kept Tyler running as they slid a stuffed pig toy all over the floor. As time wore on, the kids wore down as well. Tyler's sharp teeth did a puncture job on the stuffed pig inflicting numerous holes in it. The toy stuffed pig was laid to rest in the garbage can.

In a few weeks my daughter Carolyn will be moving to Texas and my daughter Sue to North Carolina at the end of June.

Our family has been lucky in a couple of ways. A mother's magic taught our children the blessings experienced when a family cares about each other. It has been years since any of our children have lived out of state, so we have been able to visit, enjoy the taste of good food, great company and laugh with each other. These great memories will ease the transition as we say goodbye to Carolyn and Sue, part of the core that is "us."

Our first born came in the year 1957. Our last, Monica, arrived in 1976 who said, "Let me be the last and spoil me." And we did. Monica hates being the caboose in our family. Nobody to boss around she says. As my wife, Therese, raised our brood, I was not oblivious to the work she had to perform every single day. She was exhausted at the end of the day when I came home from work but there was always a delicious supper waiting. Therese looked pretty good to me and waited until I came home to dine with me. It has always been that way with us.

I remember my mother and how blessed I was to have her. My children are blessed as I was, for they have the same type Mom I had.

On this "Mother's Day" I pray for all you moms. I pray that fatigue and despair be strangers in your life. I wish you have love and hope with the true joy that is a family.

Happy Mother's Day! May you revel and enjoy the fact that you moms are God's greatest creation.

Jim's Journal

By Jim Debevec

My name is Jim Debevec and I approve of this column and hope you do too, but if you don't, I'm never going to run for President again. What's that? You didn't know I was running for President? Well, I'm playing it low key, but I looked at all the candidates on the primary ballot and didn't much like the choices printed thereon, so I voted for myself. Every once in a while I do that just to shake things up a bit.

I like the Democrats, but don't know why they chose John Kerry to be their standard-bearer. He is so far left, he makes Edward Kennedy look like a conservative. If they had picked someone a little more middle of the road, he might have a better chance. Personally, I believe his wife would make a nice President.

Then there is George W. Bush (or "W" for short). When the U.S. was attacked by terrorists on Sept. 11, 2001, he came right up to the plate and a couple of years later attacked – (pay attention) – Iraq. What Iraq had to do with all the terrorists I do not know. He said he was looking for weapons of mass destruction. Lots of luck. Maybe Saddam hid them in one of his hidey-holes.

I think "W" was following the advice of the Vice President. He ought to do what every President has done for the past 200 years, and that is ignore his Vice President. He'd be better off drafting Ray Mlakar for his Vice President who could bring along his terrier, Harry, to Washington. The voters might think the dog is a reincarnation of (Harry) Truman and give him a vote.

We know there are

Heroes, Scamps, and Good Guys in politics as well as in life, just ask sportswriter Bob Dolgan who wrote a book about them. You'll have to make up your own mind which is which.

I remember years ago when going to the voting booth they used to give us a paper ballot. Being a Slovenian, I was somewhat smarter than the rest of the voters because I always brought along my own pen. While everyone was waiting in line, I'd simply walk to a desk, whip out my pen, and mark my ballot.

Now, you go into a polling place in Ohio and they still give you a printed ballot, but they also give you a needle on a chain. This enables you to vote and take your blood count at the same time.

If you approve of this column e-mail your thoughts to ah@buckeyeweb.com but if you disapprove, I'm not going to run for President ever again.

"WARNING...VIRUS...VERY IMPORTANT"

(Sent by a reader...author unknown)

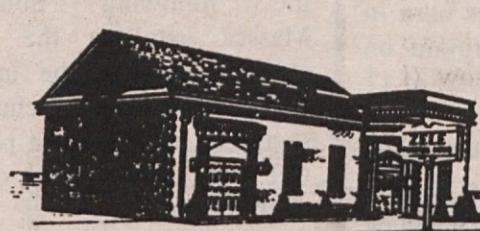

"There is a new virus. The code name is 'WORK'. If you receive WORK from your colleagues, your boss, via e-mail, or from anyone else—do not touch WORK under any circumstances. This virus wipes out your private life completely."

"If you should happen to come in contact with this virus. Take two friends and go straight to the nearest bar. Order drinks and after three rounds, you will find that WORK has been completely deleted from your brain."

"Forward this virus warning immediately to at least five friends. Should you realize you do not have five friends, this means you are already infected by this virus and WORK already controls your whole life. If this is the case, go to the bar and stay until you make at least five friends. Then retry."

Happy
Mother's Day

Life in the Refugee Camps 1948

By Anton Zakelj, translated and edited by John Zakelj

Friday, Sept. 10, 1948

Today I helped Starič bend steel bars for reinforced concrete. His boss is a Slovenian who is not overly demanding. I got back to the camp by 5 p.m.

Monday, Sept. 13, 1948

Since we are being paid "by the piece," we worked extra hard and fast. Starič, two other men and myself unloaded 70,000 pounds of cement in 3 hours. We were told that we would each be paid 12 hours for 4 hours of work. But at the end of the day, I got into an argument with the foreman about the exact amount of credit I should get. He finally agreed to put me down for the number of hours I felt I deserved, but he said we would not be paid this way any longer. I returned to the camp very tired and vowed never to work at a "piece rate" again.

Wednesday, Sept. 15, 1948

For the past 2 days, the foreman has had me working with the bricklayers. I'm trying not to work too hard.

Saturday, Sept. 18, 1948

I reported to the work office that there is only one woman - Spreitzer - still making lace for me. We are not selling enough to keep the others working.

Monday, Sept. 20, 1948

I received letters from Canada - Franc Kokelj sent me one dollar, Pavle sent five dollars. I also received a letter from my brother Ciril and his wife Ivica in Slovenia, with the first picture of their baby daughter, Marjetica.

Thursday, Sept. 23, 1948

Last night I dreamt about our home in Slovenia. It was covered with deep snow and there was a river running down the street next to our house. Was this a sign of bad news to come from home?

In fact, I received a letter from my sister Mici today saying that our mother is very sick and may soon die. I wish I could see her before she dies, but if I try to go back home, I would probably be arrested and put in prison before I ever got to see her.

We took our baby Janko out into the sun for the first time today.

Saturday, Sept. 25, 1948

Cilka went back to work for Copi today, sewing shoe-leather. I worked on construction all week, working on steel-reinforced concrete. Today I stayed in our room with Janko. He slept in the morning, but cried all afternoon.

Monday, Sept. 27, 1948

Jernej Zupan and I went to the construction site alone today. We unloaded two railcars of sand in 5 hours instead of the expected 10, and then worked another 4 hours. I'm exhausted, my clothes are torn, and I'm hungry.

Wednesday, Sept. 29, 1948

Today we started work on a construction site in Trofaiach, which is much better than our other sites because we don't have to travel so far. We dug a ditch next to the school for a telephone cable. (We have no machines, so everything is done with shovel and pickax). Afterwards, we argued with our foreman, Feldman, about our pay. We couldn't reach an agreement.

Thursday, Sept. 30, 1948

We finally reached agreement with Feldman about our pay on the current construction job: 3 shillings per meter of ditch dug. Not good. By 1:30 I had dug 10 meters.

At 3 p.m., about 100 Slovenians from our camp left for Argentina - our first group to go there. Included were Zajc and his wife, Lazar (one of my co-workers on the construction job) with his wife and child, Joze Babnik with his wife and two children, Slavko Babnik with his wife and two children, Glac with his wife and two children, Urbančič with his wife and two children, Franc Jelovčan, Smole with his wife and five children, Paula Zagar with two children, Nezka Borovšak with her son, Kien with his wife and daughter, Ovčjak with his wife and two sons, Klemenčič with six children and two aunts, Rev. Klemenčič, Stanjko with his wife and 3 or 4 daughters, Stajdohar with his wife and six children, Mehle with his wife and five children, Krvina with his wife and two children, Kobaljč with his wife and five children, Vilko Ceč, August Clemente, and two families that I don't know. (I didn't write this in my diary, but I think this group must have also included Fr. Mirnik, Joze Klemenčič, the Svajger family, Zinka, Miss Verčiand some people from Kapfenberg.)

Immediately after the group left for Argentina, the camp administration ordered everyone rearranged in the camp. Karel helped me move our things from barracks #64 to #59, which is where the Lazar family had been. We worked past midnight to get everything rearranged. We lived in barracks #60 for 2 months and in #64 for almost 4 months. How long will we

AMERICAN SLOVENIAN CATHOLIC UNION

by RAY MLAKAR

Well, with the temperature getting close to 70, we got to be feeling good and here is hoping all of you are outside enjoying the fine weather. We have to enjoy it when it comes, for let's face it, it won't last long. With the warm weather I don't know what I should tackle first, washing bed quilts and hanging them outside or hitting the weeding trail, but being that it does not get dark until real late, perhaps I can tackle them both providing the weather cooperates.

I am looking forward to the close of the next two weeks when I can say "Good Bye" to eye drops although my aim from the eye dropper is getting better. Hope to get to order my new glasses next week and when I get those, perhaps I can lead the dog to places he has not been. Speaking of the dog, I had him to "his beauty parlor" last Friday and now he really looks like a true Cairn Terrier. But then he should look good for his haircuts cost three times what mine do, but of course they give him a manicure, too. Needless to say, Josie would be proud of him, for he can really turn heads now.

Last week when I was writing about my trip to the Air Force Museum, telling about the various presidential planes, there was one interesting fact I overlooked. While walking thru Air Force One, the presidential plane that President Kennedy had, there was one remarkable feature about his plane.

I certainly have to give credit to the protocol that was used in bringing his body back to Washington. After he met his fatal death, no time was lost in alternating the plane that he came in on for he was to go back to Washington on the same plane and they felt it would not be proper to put his casket in the baggage portion of the belly of the plane but have it placed right in the plane itself.

One would have to see the staircase leading up to the plane and the narrow area to get a casket in the plane, but they lost no time in altering the plane to accommodate his casket. As one went up the back door to the plane, which was the narrowest portion of the plane to begin with, they actually "Cut Away," a portion of the conference table, as well as booths around the table and constructed a flat surface on which the casket could be laid securely for the ride back to Washington. They did a good job that took quite a bit of engineering, and building to accommodate the casket. Once they landed in Washington, a crew had to rede the area to install the conference table and surrounding booth chairs to make it as it was before.

As I think back, one of the famous sayings that President Kennedy loved was, "Ask not what your country can do for you, but ask what you can do for your country." Fortunately, at this sad event, the tide changed and the country did for him for a change to fix his plane to accommodate his casket in a befitting way.

Surprising to say, there was a plaque mounted in the area of the conference room now, stating how the area was converted to accommodate the casket. Words fail me to say how neat the entire area of Wright Patterson Air Force Base is, as neat as a pin. When I viewed the area around the various hangers, they must cut grass from day break to sunset, seven days a week. There was one area within one of the hangers in which they had numerous huge TV sets in which they honored Bob Hope. As we all recall, he was the one outstanding comedian who visited the various military bases throughout the world, visiting our troops stationed there in both time of both peace and war.

Sitting there and watching some of the movie clips really brought memories of one great guy whose memory will never be forgotten especially for those veterans who were visited by him. He could certainly poke fun at the various presidents that would get you rolling in the aisle. They showed the one special Air Force type jacket that they had made for Bob Hope for it had every gadget you could think of, from golf ball net pockets, tee pockets, beer can holders, with two special spigots sewn on the vest, one for beer, and the other for milk shakes, along with short wave radio sewn in the vest, and a calculator for keeping up with his golf score.

The one thing I noticed and admired is that throughout the various hangers, displays of the various war planes, there was always neatly dressed older men there acting as hosts to answer any questions regarding the various displays. Their superior knowledge of the various planes amazed me. Most surprising was the fact that these men did not work for the base but were simply volunteers who in most cases were active during the war piloting the planes. One has to admire their dedication to volunteer their knowledge.

Hey, Ray, it looks like you are not going to get back to the Reserve Center in this edition about Major Johnston, but have no fear, he won't go away; he is like a bad dream, so let's get on with a joke before you sign off. Are you ready? A guy goes to the eye doctor who shows him a card with the letters C Z W X N Q S T A C Z. "Can you read these?" the doctor asks. "Read it, I know the guy."

With that thought in mind, time I close in hopes that the Good Lord blesses and watches over all of you and keeps you in good health, and so until next week, get out there and enjoy the fine weather.

Train Crossing

In a terrible accident at a railroad crossing, a train smashed into a car and pushed it nearly 400 yards down the track. Though no one was killed, the driver of the car took the train company to court.

At the trial, the engineer insisted that he had given the driver ample warning by waving his lantern back and forth for nearly a minute. He even stood and convincingly demonstrated how he'd done it. The court believed his story, and the suit was dismissed.

"Congratulations," the lawyer said to the engineer when it was over. "You did superbly under cross-examination."

"Thanks," he said, "but he sure had me worried."

"How's that?" the lawyer asked. "I was afraid he was going to ask if the lantern was lit."

Thanks to Philip Hrvatin for this joke.

Vote for the man who promises least; he'll be the least disappointing.

My Practical Mother

I grew up in the forties and fifties with practical parents — my mother, God love her, who ironed Christmas wrapping paper and reused it and who washed aluminum foil after she cooked in it, then reused it. She was the original recycle queen, before they had a name for it.

It was the time for fixing things — a curtain rod, the kitchen radio, screen door, the oven door, the hem in a dress. Things we keep. It was a way of life, and sometimes it made me crazy. All that re-fixing, re-heating, renewing, I wanted just once to be wasteful. Waste meant affluence. Throwing things away meant you knew there would always be more.

But then my mother died, and I saw in my kitchen that Sunday afternoon reading her old handmade cookbook in a binder. I was struck with the pain of feeling all alone, learning that sometimes there isn't any "more."

There are just some people who make life important, like a best friend who moved away, or a classmate we grew up with as well as our family and relatives and special friends we have met along the way.

Sometimes, what we care about most gets all used up and goes away, never to return. So, while we have it, it's best we love it, and care for it, and fix it when it's broken and heal it when it's sick.

This is true... for marriage... old cars... children with bad report cards... dogs with bad hips... aging parents... and grandparents.

Some things we keep... like a best friend who moved away, or a classmate we grew up with as well as our family and relatives and special friends we have met along the way.

There are just some people who make life important, like people we know who are special, like deceased mothers, whom we keep close... in our hearts.

Thanks to Emma Pogacar of Toronto for these important thoughts.

Currently, Father Gerjolj teaches catechistics and pedagogical psychology in the theology department of the University of Ljubljana. He lectures extensively in his field of competence. Most recently he was in charge of a committee which completed a series of religion books for schools.

Father was ordained a priest in 1982. He studied extensively in Slovenia and in other European countries earning a doctorate in theology in 1986 and a doctorate in education in 1995. Most recently he is taking a "sabbatical" leave from teaching in order to sharpen his English language skills and be able to do private study.

Thus, he will be a guest at St. Vitus parish until the end of June. Afterwards, he will continue studies at St. John University, Niagara Falls, NY, which is operated by the American Province of Vincentian Fathers.

We wish Father Stanko Gerjolj a warm welcome, lots of well earned rest, study and renewed energies for future tasks.

Trump Engaged to Slovenian

There's a new member of Donald Trump's "A-Team."

Following Ivana and Marla, model Melania Knauss became engaged last week to the billionaire developer, Trump spokesman Norma Foerderer said on April 29.

Trump gave the 33-year-old Slovenian native a diamond engagement on Monday. Knauss wore the ring to a party that night at the Metropolitan Museum of Modern Art, although it went unnoticed by the hundreds of guests.

Trump, 57, has lived with Knauss in his Trump Tower home for the past five years. No wedding date was set, and Trump -- currently riding high with the success of his NBC reality show The Apprentice -- had no comment on the latest twist in his sometimes tumultuous love life.

His first two marriages ended in very public divorces: the first from wife Ivana after nearly 15 years, the second from Marla Maples after less than six years.

Maples, the other woman in his 1990 divorce split with Trump for good in 1999. Trump said the union followed his realization that "life's too short," a revelation prompted when a gunman killed a half-dozen Long Island Rail Road commuters.

Trump has three children with Ivana and a daughter with Maples.

Healthy Meals Made Easier

This healthy recipe can be prepared in 30 minutes.

Teriyaki Pork Stir-Fry

2 teaspoons peeled, finely chopped fresh gingerroot
2 garlic cloves, pressed
1/4 teaspoon crushed red pepper flakes
1 pound boneless pork loin chops, cut into 1/4-inch strips
2 cups instant whole grain brown rice
1 3/4 cups water
1 medium red bell pepper, cut into 1/4-inch strips
6 ounces fresh snow peas, trimmed
1 bunch green onions with tops, cut into 1-inch pieces (about 6-8)
1 teaspoon sesame oil, divided
1 can (8 ounces) bamboo shoots, drained

1. In Small Batter Bowl, combine soy sauce, brown sugar and cornstarch; whisk until blended. Finely chop gingerroot using Food Chopper. Add gingerroot, garlic pressed with Garlic Press and red pepper flakes to soy sauce mixture.

2. Using Chef's Knife, cut pork into 1/8-inch-thick strips. Add pork to soy sauce mixture; toss to coat. Cover; refrigerate 15 minutes to marinate.

3. Meanwhile, cook rice in Small (2-qt.) Saucpan according to package directions. Cut bell pepper into 1/4 inch strips, trim snow peas and cut green onions into 1-inch pieces.

4. Heat 1/2 teaspoon oil in Stir-Fry Skillet over high heat until hot. Remove pork from marinade using Nylon Slotted Spoon; add to skillet, reserving marinade. Using Bamboo Spatula Set, stir-fry 1-2 minutes or until pork is no longer pink. Remove from skillet; keep warm.

5. Heat remaining 1/2 teaspoon oil in same skillet. Add bell pepper, snow peas and green onions. Stir-fry 2-3 minutes or until vegetables are crisp-tender. Return pork to skillet. Stir in reserved marinade and bamboo shoots. Bring to a boil. Cook and stir 1 minute or until sauce is thickened. Serve over rice.

10 Foods You Should Eat for Good Health

1. - Cantaloupe. - A quarter of a delicious melon supplies almost as much vitamin A and C as most people need in an entire day.

2. - Sweet Potatoes - A nutritional All-Star - one of the best vegetables you can eat. They're loaded with carotenoids, vitamin C, potassium, and fiber. Mix in un-sweetened applesauce or crushed pineapple for extra moisture and sweetness.

3. - Fat-free (skim) or low-fat Milk (1% not 2%). - Excellent source of calcium, vitamins, and protein with little or no artery-clogging fat and cholesterol. (Soy milk can have just as many nutrients - if the company adds them.)

4. - Salmon or other fatty fish. - The omega-3 fats in fish, especially fatty fresh fish like salmon, swordfish, and rainbow trout, can help reduce the risk of sudden-death heart attacks.

5. - Oranges. - Great-tasting and rich in vitamin C, folic acid, and fiber.

6. - Broccoli. - Lots of vitamin C, carotenoids, and folic acid.

7. - Whole-Grain Bread. - It is higher in fiber and about a dozen vitamins and minerals than enriched white bread or "wheat" bread.

8. - Kellogg's All-Bran

Original or Post 100% Bran. - A half-cup serving of these cereals provides about one-third of the fiber you need for an entire day - to reduce the risk of constipation, diverticulosis, and heart disease.

9. - Beans. Inexpensive, low in fat, and rich in protein, iron, folic acid, and fiber. Choose garbanzo, pinto, black, Navy, kidney, or lentils. Eat them as a side dish or snack, in a tortilla with salsa, or in a soup.

10. - Spinach or Kale. - Loaded with vitamin C, carotenoids, calcium, and fiber. Steam 'em and eat 'em.

French Breakfast Puffs

1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 cup sugar
1 1/2 tsp. baking powder
1/4 tsp. ground nutmeg
1/8 tsp. salt
1 egg
1/2 cup milk
1/3 cup butter or margarine, melted
1/4 cup sugar
1/2 tsp. ground cinnamon
1/4 cup butter or margarine, melted

In a mixing bowl combine flour, the 1/2 cup sugar, baking powder, nutmeg, and salt. Make a well in the center of the dry ingredients.

In another bowl beat eggs slightly; stir in milk and 1/3 cup melted butter or margarine. Add egg mixture to flour mixture. Stir just until moistened (the batter may be lumpy). Lightly grease muffin cups. Fill cups about two-thirds full with batter. Bake in a 350° oven for 20 to 25 minutes or until muffins are golden.

Meanwhile, in a shallow bowl combine the 1/4 cup sugar and cinnamon. Immediately dip tops of hot muffins into the 1/4 cup melted butter or margarine, then into the cinnamon-sugar mixture until coated. Serve warm.

Voinovich Announces $13 Million for Euclid Corridor Project

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Senator George V. Voinovich (R-OH) announced that Cleveland's long-pending Euclid Corridor Transportation project took an important step forward with final approval of this year's government funding bills that includes his request for $13 million for the project.

When fully completed the Euclid Corridor project will consist of a 6.7 mile bus rapid transit line between Public Square in Downtown Cleveland to the Stokes / Windermere Red Line Rapid Transit Station in East Cleveland. It will also include a 2.7 mile Transit Zone encompassing the parallel arteries of St. Clair and Superior Avenues in Downtown Cleveland.

The funds will be used for construction management services to begin land acquisition and for initial construction.

The bill now heads to the President for his signature.

What was the wall on Wall Street intended to keep out?

Answer: The English.

Not everybody may know that Wall Street in New York is named for a wall. It is shown clearly on maps from 1660 and 1673 as running along the rightmost (northern) edge of the settlement of New Amsterdam, as New York was known then.

The Dutch settlers in what is now Manhattan faced many challenges, including volatile relations with the local Algonquin Indian nations in the 1640s. At least one historian reports "a line of planks or pickets" marked what is now Wall Street by as early as the 1640s. Another account holds that in the 1640s the Dutch erected a wall to protect against wandering cows; and another speaks of "untrimmed trees felled... and piled together to form a sort of barricade."

However, most accounts of the origins of the wall of Wall Street date to 1653 when the Dutch erected a palisade, or fortified wall, running along what was then the northern border of the settlement. Its construction was part of a consolidated effort by the Dutch to shore up their defenses against possible assault from the British, with whom a war had broken out in 1652. The street running behind it was known as Wall Street then, and it is still Wall Street today.

CANCER ANSWERS...

Questions may be directed to: Cancer Answers, Cleveland Clinic Cancer Center (R23), 9500 Euclid Avenue, Cleveland, OH 44195.

May is Skin Cancer Awareness month. All May articles will focus on skin cancer.

QUESTION: What is Mohs Micrographic Surgery?

ANSWER: Mohs surgery is a technique developed by Frederick Mohs in 1936 for removal of skin cancers. In contrast to routine wide excision of skin cancer that is usually a one-stage procedure, Mohs surgery involves removing small sections of skin, one layer at a time. Each piece of excised skin is stained with dyes and numbered, and a map of the removed skin is made for orientation. The Mohs surgeon then examines the tissue under the microscope. If any tumor extends to any of the outside edges, further skin is removed in a selective fashion. Therefore, complete tumor removal is achieved, while sparing the most amount of normal skin. Depending on the amount of skin removal, the wound may be allowed to heal on its own, or it may require a simple or complex repair with stitches.

Mohs surgery is most commonly used to remove basal and squamous cell carcinomas of the skin. It is most commonly employed to treat large skin cancers, skin cancers in areas where tissue sparing is important, such as on the eyelid, lip, and nose, and for skin cancers that have recurred after other types of treatment. It is also used when the size and depth of the skin cancer are unpredictable. Mohs surgery has also been used for the removal of malignant melanoma, although this is a highly controversial issue, and wide excision is most commonly performed.

The advantages of Mohs surgery include its high cure rate in comparison to other skin cancer treatment methods, in addition to the ability to spare the most amount of normal skin that may optimize the cosmetic outcome. The disadvantages of Mohs surgery include the need for specialized equipment for tissue processing, and the relative length of time needed to complete the procedure.

Companies Ready for EU

Slovenian companies feel the most ready for EU membership amidst enterprises in 10 new member states according to a survey presented on Friday, April 23. Czech and Estonian companies are also well prepared, while Lithuania and Hungary are at the bottom of the list.

As much as 67% of Slovenian companies feel optimistic about business opportunities after enlargement, only 7% are pessimistic, while 22% are expecting no change.

94% of Slovenian companies in the survey support EU entry and are pleased with the negotiations.

The Slovenian percentages are above the average for all 10 acceding states.

EU Membership Cannot Hinder Russian Trade — says Rupel

Slovenia finds it unacceptable that its companies could see conditions for doing trade with Russia deteriorate as the country joins the EU, Foreign Minister Dimitrij Rupel said last week.

Meeting Deputy Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Razov ahead of regular Russian-Slovenian political consultations, Rupel stressed it was extremely important to Slovenia that the EU-Russian partnership and co-operation agreement is promptly extended to include all 10 new EU members.

Josephine Ambrosic, active fraternalist

Josephine Ambrosic

Josephine Ambrosic (nee Orazem), age 93, passed away at her Euclid, OH residence on Sunday, May 2, 2004.

Born July 8, 1910 in Cleveland, she had lived in the St. Clair neighborhood before moving to Euclid. She worked as a seamstress for Richman Brothers Co. for 20 years and also helped in the family's confectionery store on St. Clair Avenue.

Josephine was a member of AMLA St. Anne Lodge #4 where she was the treasurer for 50 years. She served on the Supreme Board of AMLA for a number of years. She was a frequent winner of the annual competition to sell the most AMLA fraternal insurance.

Josephine was a member of KSKJ Mary Magdalene Lodge #162, Slovenian Women's Union Lodge #25, St. Vitus Altar and Rosary Society, and was appointed to the St. Vitus Church Finance Advisory Council by pastor, Rev. Joseph P. Boznar. She was a Trustee of the St. Vitus Endowment Trust, and Member of the St. Vitus Scholarship Committee.

Josephine volunteered every Friday at St. Vitus Bingo since its beginning until a few years ago when declining health forced her to limit her activities. Josephine was also a member of St. Vitus Mothers Club, and a member of the American Slovene Club. She was a member of the Slovene Home for the Aged Auxiliary, St. Vitus Alumni, United Slovene Society, Friends of the Slovenian National Home, Inc., and Bishop Baraga Association.

She will be fondly remembered for her leadership and willingness to volunteer at the many fund-raising events held over the years.

Josephine is survived by her son Joseph (wife Patricia) of Beavercreek, Ohio; grandson John Jason; sister Marie Orazem; and many nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Joseph; son John; sisters Frances Novak, Ann Zak, and brother Joseph Orazem.

Mass of Christian Burial will be celebrated at 11 a.m. on Friday, May 7 at St. Vitus Church. Interment in Calvary Cemetery.

Family will receive friends at The Dan Cosic Funeral Home (formerly Grdina), 17010 Lake Shore Blvd., on Wednesday, May 5 from 7-9 p.m. and Thursday, May 6 from 2-4 and 7-9 p.m.

Family suggests memorial donations in her name to St. Vitus Church, 6019 Lausche Ave., Cleveland, OH 44103.

LEGEND OF ZLATOROG (GOLDEN HORN)

Once upon a time the Triglav mountains were covered with meadows full of flowers. They were the home of the white fairies and their white goats. They were all protected by the white goat with golden horns – the invulnerable Zlatorog.

If anybody should wound Zlatorog, a secret flower – "triglavsko roza" would spring forth from his blood and cure him. Zlatorog's golden horns were the key to hidden treasures under the mountain of Bogatin.

All these secrets were known to a brave, young hunter who lived in the Trenta valley. He was in love with a girl named Jerica. She was an innkeeper's daughter, a lovely girl whom many young men wanted to marry, but Jerica heartily loved the hunter from Trenta. He was the best hunter in the valley and people said he was under the protection of the fairies.

One day a merchant from Venice came to the village where Jerica lived. He gave her a ring, earrings and other golden jewelry. Jerica accepted the gold from the foreigner.

Being stung by the hurtful words of his beloved girl, who was enchanted with the presents that the merchant from Venice had given her, the Trenta hunter decided to find the Bogatin treasure.

Sad and unhappy, he thought the only thing he could do at that moment was to kill Zlatorog, take his horns and open the underground cave under Bogatin where the treasure was hidden. The hunter found Zlatorog and shot at him. He wounded him, but from his blood the miraculous flower – triglavsko roza – sprang up. When Zlatorog ate it, he became well and strong again. In his rage he butted the hunter over the cliffs.

The fairies and white goats then left the Slovenian mountains.

Zlatorog led them far away, nobody knows where. But before departing, Zlatorog devastated the sunny mountain meadows with his golden horns and turned them into a rocky wasteland, full of dangerous precipices. Many traces of his horns can be seen today in Slovenia's mountains.

We still have a little flower – triglavsko roza – growing on Triglav slopes. The fairy treasure is still hidden under the mountain of Bogatin. We still have a rocky path that traverses the Triglav north face – "Zlatorogove police." We still have the wild beauty of the "Zlatorog kingdom" in the mountains of Triglav.

Potica-Cake

This is another of Mom's old recipes, found in her cookbook on yellowed paper. It's similar to our Sour Cream Coffee Cake.

Ingredients:

Dough:

$\frac{3}{4}$ C butter
1 $\frac{1}{2}$ C sugar
4 eggs
3 C flour
1 $\frac{1}{2}$ t baking powder
1 $\frac{1}{2}$ t baking soda
1 pint sour cream
1 $\frac{1}{2}$ t vanilla

Filling:

1 C ground nuts
2 T flour
1 $\frac{1}{2}$ C dark brown sugar, packed
1 t cinnamon

Directions:

For dough: cream butter and sugar, add eggs one at a time. Beat until creamy. Sift dry ingredients 3 times and add alternately with sour cream and vanilla. (When you sift the dry ingredients 3 times, it nearly doubles the bulk). Mix batter until smooth.

For filling: Mix ingredients together.

To assemble: grease and flour a 10" tube pan. Preheat oven to 350°. Alternate layers of batter and nut mixture, twirling with knife to produce a marbled effect. Continue until all batter and nuts are used up, ending with nuts. Bake at 350 for 1 hour (according to this recipe, it may take as long as 1 hour and 25 minutes). At the 1 hour point, start testing the center of the cake with a toothpick and check every 5 minutes until done. The pick should come out slightly wet from the oil in the nuts, but with no batter sticking to it. Serve either sprinkled with powdered sugar or with whipped cream.

U.S. to rest of the world: 'Charge It!'

The U.S. is behaving like a family with a well-worn, low-interest-rate MasterCard.

For years the U.S. has been consuming more than it produces. (That's what it means to import more from the rest of the world than one exports.) And it has been investing more than it saves. (That's why it depends on foreigners sending another $1.5 billion of their savings every day.)

The U.S. buys lots from the rest of the world, and the rest of the world lends the U.S. the money to make the purchases — more every year — at today's very low interest rates.

For a considerable period now, economists — think of them as national credit counselors — have been warning that this can't go on forever. Foreigners won't keep devoting larger shares of their savings to U.S. stocks, bonds and companies, just as there is a limit to how much MasterCard allows any one family to borrow.

Sure, this could continue for years. But the dollar's recent slide is a sign that countries are skittish about putting much more money into the U.S. Too often, though, the dollar is seen as the issue, rather than a symptom.

Yes, the weak dollar is hard on European exporters, and makes life easier for U.S. manufacturers. Yes, it's bad for Americans eyeing trips to Paris, and good for Germans who long for the Florida sun in winter.

But the issue is how U.S., Europe and Asia can find a way — short of wrenching crisis — to wean the U.S. economy from a growing addiction to foreigners' savings and the rest of the world from an unhealthy dependence on American consumers.

The world economy is out of whack. To set it right, the U.S. needs to buy more homemade Fords and fewer imported Toyotas, so that it relies less on credit from Japan and others. And Europe and Asia need to buy more U.S.-made wares and rely less on exports.

Someday that's going to happen. The question is how painful it will be. Right now, the global economy is trying to adjust by pushing down the dollar. Recognizing that,

George W. Bush's administration is acquiescing. Economic textbooks say the weaker dollar should make imports more expensive in the U.S. (so Americans will buy fewer of them and more homemade goods) and make U.S. exports cheaper abroad (so other nations will buy more from the U.S.).

The dollar isn't the issue; it's the symptom. Government economic policies could help if they could get European and Japanese consumers to buy more and get Americans — both citizens and government — to save more so the U.S. doesn't need so much foreign credit.

Unfortunately, as one German official bluntly puts it, "It is as hard to get Germans to spend as it is to get Americans to save."

There is a painful way to right the world economy: a financial-market crisis. The dollar takes a sharp plunge. Stock and bond markets follow. With deficit angst running high and finally pushing up interest rates, the president — either President or a successor — rallies Congress to pass an emergency deficit-reduction package.

That's likely to mean the U.S. economy falters. But it will import less (because the U.S. buys less from abroad in a recession) and save more (that's what reducing the deficit does).

What might a pain-prevention approach look like? A lower dollar, but not just against the euro. Lower European Central Bank interest rates. Aggressive moves in Europe and Japan to further deregulate their economies so their peoples can benefit more from changing technologies. Credible moves in the U.S. to reduce huge, future deficits threatened by the retirement of the populous generation born after World War II, even if that means raising taxes. And smarter efforts to hone America's competitive edge, particularly by better educating its children and training its workers.

The benefits are priceless: A healthier global economy that delivers more goods and services to all economies.

Recalling Grandpa's Fancy Porch

by JOE GLINSEK

Grandpa retired from his boilermaker job at NYCRR's Collinwood Yard in 1937 with a small monthly pension and a lump sum of just over $1,000 – a lot of money at the time. Planning to spend much of his time surveying the passing scene from a favorite wooden rocker on the front porch, he was bothered that bugs, wind, dust, rain and cold would limit his 'porch time' and drive him indoors. He'd seen and coveted the glassed and screened porches in more affluent neighborhoods, and though he was tight with a buck, he wanted a comfortable vantage point from which to view the world.

The Andrews Company was known for quality work and had done the enclosures he admired. After a visit from their estimator and some serious dickering, they were hired to do grandpa's porch, and I'm guessing this job took a sizable bite from his retirement check. It was done during the summer, so the workers had two sidewalk superintendents nosing around; as grandpa's junior deputy, I hung around the job and watched the progress with great interest.

It was a frame house, but the existing front porch was all masonry construction with brick knee-walls, corner posts, and entry stairwell. The ledge caps and stair treads were limestone, and the concrete floor was pitched to a central spout to shed rain and melting snow; very sturdy construction, and virtually maintenance-free. Only the ceiling was wood; the usual narrow beaded boards used for an outdoor porch. With a bit of sanding and a fresh coat of varnish, it would remain as part of the new enclosure.

Pre-primed triple window units were the basic feature of an Andrews porch enclosure. Three large single panes of glass were set in wooden frames. The center pane was fixed, and the side panels were casement windows that opened inward. One side opened against the center pane, and the other side, with a double-deep hinge, overlapped it to make a triple window sandwich in the center. The three were fastened to each other with small hooks and eyes. The window openings had wood-framed outer screens that stayed in place until late fall when they were removed, cleaned, and stored in the garage until the weather broke in the spring. These were the best times to give the windows a good wash; an easy job with brush and squeegee on a pole.

The swinging windows had secure inner fasteners top and bottom. With an easy half-turn, the handles squeezed the window snug and tight against the metal weather stripping. One of the quality features of an Andrews porch was the metal hardware. All of it was either solid brass or bronze, including the screening and small details like the hooks and eyes, mail slot, and door sill. The lock-set, with dead-bolt, thumb-latch outer handle, and an inside knob lock, was made by Schlage; a quality name, then and now. None of these metal parts corroded in the normal sense; they merely darkened with age and acquired a dark patina.

Both ends of the porch had one of these triple window units, and with windows open north and south, they provided plenty of fresh air. Well, usually fresh; NYCRR's belching smoke stacks were nearby on the north. Across the front were two sets of these units, allowing four openings eastward. On very warm days when all the screened house windows were open, you'd have a wonderful breeze from all directions by opening the porch and living room windows. The latter had no screens and were seldom opened until the porch was enclosed. Now that these were protected by the enclosure, they could be left open for ventilation in the summer, or closed for better insulation in the winter.

A smaller, fixed window filled the space between the front window units and the entrance. A handsome door with a large plate glass window was centered at the head of the outside stairs. The door, flanked by narrow side lights of textured glass, was thick and heavy. It closed securely with weather stripping and an interlocking bronze threshold. Our mail box used to hang next to the front door. The slot was below the window, and its heavy flap sounded like a door knocker. With young ears, I could usually hear when the mail had arrived.

An Andrews porch was marked by a decorative element between the tops of the door and windows, and the base of the gable above. Usually eight or more inches high, this space was fitted with textured glass and accented with applied decorative moldings in the Palladian style. This distinctive and attractive feature balanced the design and also let in additional daylight.

The floor was one of the last things done. Tar paper was laid on the concrete floor to hinder dampness from being transferred to the tapered 'sleeper' joists that provided a level support for the tongue and groove pine flooring. All of this wood was pre-primed before installation and the floor was then finished with two coats of gray deck paint. The wood flooring was the finishing touch that made the porch feel like an inside room.

Please forgive my love-affair with this porch: it's the only part of the house that was built in my lifetime. I watched the enclosure being born, and it was part of my life for many years.

Sitting out there on hot summer nights when I was a kid, I waited for Mom to suggest having 'coolers,' a signal for me to run to the corner for a pint of Laurch's ice cream and a quart of cold Double Eagle ginger ale. Some nights Grandpa would send me down the back alley to Walland's for a bucket of beer that always arrived a little short of full; he knew why, and gave me a sly smile.

From this new 'family room' we could hear a favorite radio program playing in the living room. Later on, I acquired a porch rocker of my own, a creaky old thing rescued from the collar. We used to get the Saturday Evening Post magazine and I looked forward to the latest Norman Rockwell cover and some of the stories. I had my first legal smoke in that rocker; Blue Boar tobacco in one of Dad's pipes. Mom refused to watch and retreated to the kitchen.

On Easter Sunday, if the weather was bad, we covered the porch floor with an old sheet and threw coins at a hard-boiled egg, trying to stick and bury one inside. Thirty years later, Dad and Grandpa were gone, but I brought my family over for dinner, after which Uncle Mike and Mom showed our kids how to play the 'egg game.'

One Christmas they decided to display the tree on the porch instead of inside. Everybody liked the effect and the custom stuck. Because it was glassed in and tightly sealed, the porch was comfortable on many cool spring or fall days: this greatly prolonged its usefulness. Even on those rare sunny days in winter, it would be surprisingly warm – potted plants did very well.

Grandpa's home improvement was a good investment and he lived to enjoy it for a good while, and because of its quality construction, at least two more generations made good use of it. Of course, I didn't notice and appreciate its fine construction until I matured. I had occasion to look it over after 40 years of use, and it was still in remarkably good condition. On the day it was demolished, Grandpa's Porch would still have made him proud.

I don't usually get sentimental about 'things,' but I was looking at pictures of the home of my childhood being demolished. The porch was the setting for many happy memories and I was particularly sad to see the pictures of the 'dinosaur' chopping its remains. A mechanical dinosaur was taking huge bites of it and spitting them into a pile of debris. I was born in the house next door, also torn down, but I only lived there until my grandma died when I was only two. I grew up in this house with the fancy porch and lived there until I married in 1956 and visited often during the following two decades. Both houses were demolished for a good cause – St. Mary's new Parish Hall will stand on this site for many more decades.

My Mother

When I was born, I was glad you were there to hold me and comfort me,
To feed me and rock me to sleep.
As I grew, I was glad you were there to make our house feel like a home.

When I was a teenager, I was glad
You were there to talk to me
When things weren't going quite right;
You would tell me it would be okay.
I am glad you've always been there
To encourage me to do my best in whatever I do.

A Most Happy Mothers Day to All Our Wonderful Mothers

Hiking in Slovenia; Spotting Zlatorog?

by FRANK KUZNICK
Special to
The Washington Post

I saw Zlatorog.

This may not come as earth-shaking news in the heart of the American empire, but in the Julian Alps, the mythical animal god still holds sway. From his kingdom on the slopes of Mount Triglav to the labels of Lasko beer bottles, the golden-horned chamois is ubiquitous throughout Slovenia, one of the last unspoiled pockets of Eastern Europe.

Were Catholicism not so pervasive here, it would be tempting to call outdoor recreation the religion of this former Yugoslav republic, which declared independence in 1991. Skiing, hiking, mountain climbing, cycling, kayaking and just about any other sport that involves mountains, rivers and adrenaline rushes are as plentiful as summer wild flowers, especially in the Gorenjska, the northwest area that encompasses Triglav National Park.

At about 209,000 acres, Triglav is one of Europe's largest national parks, with a storybook landscape of dramatic mountain peaks, picturesque farming valleys, shimmering Alpine lakes and historical attractions that span centuries. The castle overlooking Lake Bled dates back to the 11th century, while just 20 miles away, monuments and old fortifications mark the bloody Isonzo Front of World War I. The park is dominated by Mount Triglav (9,396 feet), the triple-peaked symbol of Slovenia, and offers more than 4,350 miles of criss-crossing trails suitable for everything from an afternoon stroll to a two-week outing.

Despite its size, Triglav may be one of the best-kept secrets in Europe, chiefly because of its setting. Unlike many Americans, most Europeans know the difference between Slovenia and Slovakia, but it's still an easy country to overlook — about half the size of Switzerland, typically a fly-over or drive-through on the way to northern Italy or Croatia's Dalmatian Coast. That keeps the crowds down, especially tourists, especially in the spring and fall. During a week in the country in September, I saw a total of two other Americans — and that was at the airport.

Slovenia also sits along one of the most intriguing folds of Europe, the economic and political fault line where socialism is making a fitful transition to capitalism, a unique moment in history that cuts both ways for travelers. It can be amazingly cheap. Transportation (car rental, train fares) tends to run at Western rates, but if you are not terribly demanding otherwise, you can live on about $50 a day.

It can also be amazingly backward. In the Czech Republic, where I live, foreigners are still regarded with suspicion, and a simple request (Can I get some ice?) will often earn you a haughty, insulting look — if the waiter even acknowledges your English.

In this swirl of cross-cultural influences, Slovenia has struck an attractive balance. Under former president Tito's comparatively relaxed form of socialism, Slovenians never developed the closed mindset typical of many Iron Curtain countries. As a result, the people are remarkably open and accommodating to visitors, catering to tourists with Western-style service and amenities. But they're also determined to keep the best of their Old World heritage. Most of the country is still undeveloped, charmingly rural in character and proud of it.

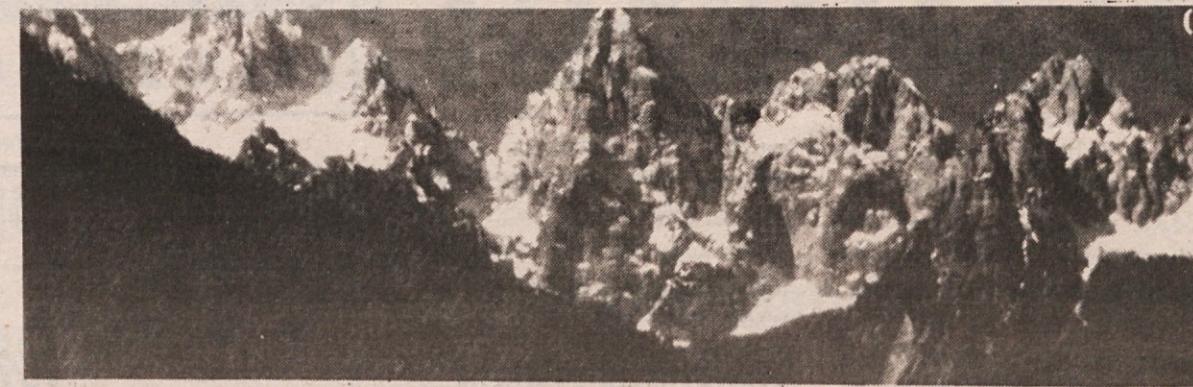

Nothing in Slovenia is more than a two- or three-hour drive away, and a couple of hours after landing in the capital of Ljubljana, I was having lunch on the shore of Lake Bled.

Chances are you've seen a photo of Lake Bled without realizing it. The ice-blue Alpine lake is surrounded by snow-capped mountains and has a tiny island in the center graced by a baroque church steeple — a postcard shot often used as an emblem of Old World Europe. The photos don't lie; it's stunningly beautiful.

Away from the water, however, the town of Bled is tricked up like a junior Lake Tahoe, with a casino, resort hotels and rows of souvenir shops. I was walking the south shore of the lake contemplating my next move when the water became dappled with raindrops and a storm blew in — one of those mountain thunderstorms with driving sheets of rain that send every living thing scrambling for cover.

And so it was that I found myself in the timbered shelter of the Blegas gostilna (pub), drying out and talking baseball with Luka, an eager young Slovenian athlete. On a trip to the United States in 1997, Luka had the good fortune to see the Cleveland Indians in their prime.

"How's Manny Ramirez?" he wanted to know.

"He's in Boston now," I said, winding up to blast the problem child of baseball for his $20 million average annual salary and pouty, moody behavior. Then I stopped. Luka's team, which can barely afford uniforms, had played a double header on Sunday and then came back on Monday for practice on a muddy field in the rain. Someone would taint that enthusiasm one day, but it wasn't going to be me.

"You saw one of the best hitters in the game," I said.

Luka encouraged me to keep traveling west, to Lake Bohinc, "It's not far," he promised.

It turned out to be about an hour's drive, and with the scenic turns of the Sava Bohinka River, it was worth every minute. Bohinj is smaller and quieter than Bled, no less beautiful but much more charming, with a medieval church and bridge as the only visible structures on the lake shore.

Time has not stood still in Bohinj, but it has lingered. On the road I passed an oncoming tour bus and then, moments later, a couple of kids driving a cow with switches. This was no coincidence; one of the social highlights of Bohinj is the annual Cows' Ball, which celebrates the return of herdsman and their cattle from the mountain pastures in mid-September.

I pulled off into a picnic area and walked a trail along the lake, which I had to myself. The trail opened onto a small park with an imposing boulder. Perched atop it: a statue of Zlatorog, wet and gleaming in the fading daylight. Behind him, in the distance, the clouds parted and for just a few minutes, the white face of Mount Triglav emerged. Had the statue itself spoken, the invitation to stay couldn't have been more enticing.

The Lake Bohinj tourist office had maps and a friendly staffer to suggest hiking routes. A grocery store next door sold bottled water and other supplies. And just around the bend, the modern Hotel Jezero had a fitness center with a lap pool, the perfect place to limber up for some serious hiking.

The next morning, fog crept down the mountains until it was licking my hotel room windows. My first stop was the tourist office, where I gave the woman behind the counter a forlorn look and said, "No hiking today, I guess." — She said, "This is only fog; we get it every day."

Less than an hour later I was doing switchbacks up one of the mountainsides ringing the lake, with the fog eventually thinning and the sun cutting through the gloom.

The trails in the park are well-marked. They're also quite rugged. The Julian Alps are mostly limestone and dolomite, constantly crumbling, stewing the trails with gravel. It's like walking across a pile of bricks, with the footing constantly shifting.

The erosion has also created natural sculptures, which stopped me on more than one occasion. Were those giant tree roots or fingers of rock? Was that stone fortress really carved out by the elements? One of my reveries was interrupted by Jozef, a hardy local flying down the trail with the aid of hiking poles. He countered my worries about the rain with assurances that it was needed. Friends of his had been fighting fires in another part of the range over the summer.

"What was that like?" I asked.

"They were afraid to go into some places," he said. "There is still lots of bullets and shells from World War I in the trees and the ground, and they were exploding in the fire."

The echoes of history faded farther on, where a break in the forest on a grassy slope overlooking the lake offered an ideal lunch spot and a chance to assess the gathering clouds. It was a place of uncommon beauty. As the sun darted in and out of the clouds, the lake turned incredible shades of blue and turquoise. To the north, sheer rock faces towered over the water. To the south, peaks marched off into the distance, jagged and unruly, shoving each other into definite angles.

And beyond the mountains, a procession of majestic clouds swept across the top of the world. It was one of the most amazing sky shows I've ever seen, and had it not been for the quickening raindrops, I would probably still be there, awestruck.

It was a long trek down, and I was in a state of exhaustion when I heard something moving through the woods. I froze and was sure I saw a four-legged animal stop on the other side of a big pine tree. Peering through the branches, I made out a face staring back — the same face I had been seeing since I got off the plane. I shifted slightly to look for the golden horns, but as soon as I did that, the image seemed to melt into the forest.

Even after I walked around the tree to convince myself it was an illusion, I couldn't shake the feeling that something had been there.

Later, with a full stomach and my bearings back, I chided myself — not for imagining I saw Zlatorog, but for thinking I would see him in the foothills. His lair is a sacred mountain many miles distant and higher — not a place you can approach quickly or lightly, no matter what your beliefs.

Getting around: You'll need a car if you're venturing to trail heads in the mountains. Reserve from the United States through Hertz or Budget, or if it's off-season, shop the counters at the Ljubljana airport, which include a low-cost local agency, ABC Rental. A mid-size vehicle for a week runs $300 to $400.

When to go: The mountain huts and trails are most crowded in July and August, but lessen in June and September. Before mid-May and after mid-October, the trails may be covered with snow.

12 Jadran Declares Fond Farewell with Concert

AMERIŠKA DOMOVINA, MAY 6, 2004

The Jadran Singing Society will be presenting their final concert on Saturday, May 8 at the Slovenian Workmen's Home, 15335 Waterloo Road, Cleveland.

Sadly, due to declining membership, Jadran bids "Fond Farewell" with a dinner, concert and dance in their 84th year.

A delicious dinner prepared by Josie Cerer and her staff will be served beginning at 5:00 p.m. On the menu will be soup, chicken marsala, breaded pork chops, roast potatoes, mixed vegetables, dessert and coffee.

After dinner at 7:00 p.m., Jadran will present their concert with musical selections, "Majeva," excerpts from "Masquerade in Vienna," "Mamici, in honor of Mother's Day, "Lipa," "Večernica" will be sung in memory of all our deceased members, a "Venček," with familiar songs, and "Na svidjenje."

Included in the program is a solo by Florence Unetich and of course our Jadran Songbirds Florence Unetich and Angela Zabjek. Our musical director and accordion accompanist is Fred Ziwich and piano accompanist is Reginald Resnik.

Following the program, music for listening and dancing will be by the Fred Ziwich Orchestra.

Tickets for the evening are $20 each and may be reserved by phoning Dolores Dobida at (440) 951-1694 or Sophie Matuch at (216) 481-6909. Tickets will also be available from Jadran members and at the Polka Hall of Fame.

We would like to thank members from Zarja, president Richard Tomsic, Rudy Kozan, and from Glasbena Matica Don Mausser for lending their beautiful voices to our tenor section. We appreciate all your help.

This last year we lost two staunch singing members, from the bass section Fred Skolaris, and from the tenor section Frank Smerke. They are very sadly missed and this last concert will be dedicated to both of them. Our condolences to both families.

Jadran members are very sad to see the final performance come to an end. However, we want to thank all of our devoted friends who supported us these many years.

Hope to see you May 8th.

SLOVENIAN
MORNING NEWSPAPER

- Vesti iz Slovenije -

Slovenija od 1. maja dalje polnopravna članica Evropske unije – Slovesnosti in proslave po vsej Sloveniji in Evropi Preteklo soboto se je razširila Evropska unija na 25 držav članic. Med temi je sedaj tudi Slovenija, ki je tako dosegla – kakor pred enim mesecem z vstopom v NATO – eden njenih najbolj želenih dolgoletnih zunanjopolitičnih ciljev. Poslej bo dosledno morala upoštevati evropsko zakonodajo (120.000 strani uradnega lista EU), ki je tako postala del slovenske zakonodaje.

Od pretekle sobote je slovenščina eden od uradnih jezikov EU, slovenski državljanji so postali tudi državljeni Evropske unije ter s tem dobili sklop dodatnih pravic. Od 1. junija bodo slovenski zavarovanci pravico do nujnih zdravstvenih storitev v državah EU in Evropskega gospodarskega prostora lahko uveljavljali z evropsko kartico zdravstvenega zavarovanja.

Po vsej Sloveniji so potekale slikovite, raznovrstne proslave, tako npr. od Kranjske gore do Nove Gorice do Gornje Radgome. Osrednja državna proslava je bila v Ljubljani, slavnostni govornik je bil predsednik države Janez Drnovšek.

Slovesno tudi v Državnem zboru

Slavnostna seja slovenskega parlamenta je bila že 29. aprila, slavnostni govornik je bil predsednik DZ Borut Pahor. Prvič so zigrali poleg Zdravljice tudi himno EU in izobesili poleg slovenske tudi zastavo EU. V parlamentu se bodo morali novim razmeram prilagoditi, saj od 1. maja je vloga zobra spremenjena, ker so zakonodajalske pristojnosti DZ omejene pri zadevah, ki jih države EU 25 urejajo skupaj, v svetu Evrope kot osrednjem zakonodajnem telesu pa bo Slovenijo zastopala vlada. Pravila igre o odnosu med Državnim zborom in vlado v evropskih zadevah bodo poslanci določili na izrednem zasedanju prihodnjo sredo, 12. maja.

Volitve za sedem slovenskih poslancev v evropskem parlamentu v nedeljo, 13. junija

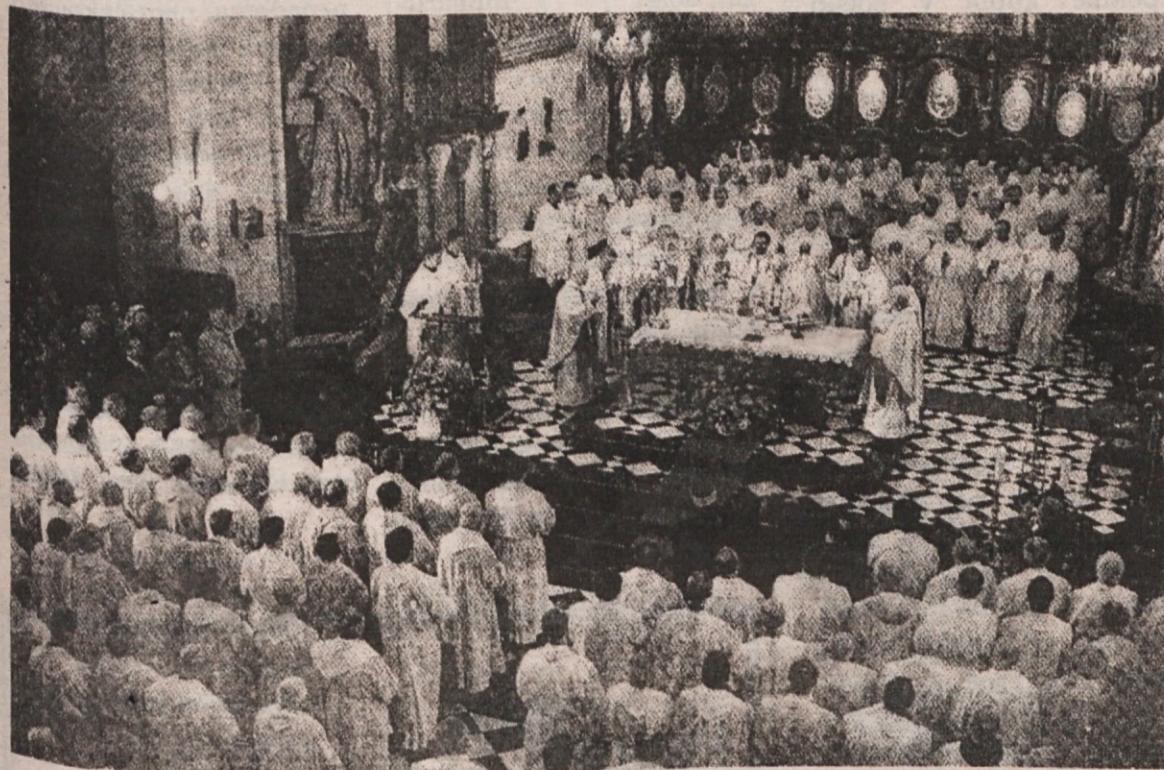

Slovenske stranke izoblikujejo svoje liste kandidatov, ki se bodo potegovali za evropski parlament na volitvah po Sloveniji, ki bodo 13. junija. Sloveniji pripada sedem poslanskih mest. V igri je tudi nekaj zelo znanih imen, poleg veliko drugih, ki po vsej verjetnosti nimajo za izvolitev najmanjše možnosti. Po zgodnjih napovedih naj bi sedež v Evropskem parlamentu v Strasbourggu dobili: Jelko Kacin, Mojca Drčar Murko in Roman Jakič iz LDS, Miha Brejc in Matjaž Šinkovec iz SDS, Borut Pahor iz ZLSD, Franc But ali Janez Podobnik iz SLS in Alojz Peterle (NSi) ali Alenka Pavlin (SMS). Politični komentatorji menijo, da bodo izidi teh junijskih volitev dali vpogled na prihajajoče splošne parlamentarne volitve, ki bodo po vsej verjetnosti novembra.

Jeseni po novem stopnišču na Blejski otok

Po načrtih restavtratorjev naj bi bila obnova južnega stopnišča na Blejskem otoku (zgrajeno leta 1655, najstarejše v Sloveniji, 98 stopnic, širina 6 metrov) končana do 18. junija (ta čas bo dostop po severni strani). Projekt ($320.000US od ministrstva za kulturo) nadzoruje mešana strokovna komisija. Za prevoz materiala skrbi vojska s posebno pontonsko ploščadjo (trije čolni 7x5 metrov).

Več tujih turistov v prvem četrtletju

V letošnjih prvih treh mesecih je v Sloveniji letovalo 179.338 domačih in 203.733 tujih turistov. Gostov iz tujine je bilo za pet odstotkov več, število domačih je ostalo nespremenjeno v primerjavi z lanskim prvim četrtletjem. Turističnih prenočitev je 1,33 milijona (+1 odstotek). Še zmeraj je največ turistov iz Italije, Avstrije in Nemčije, povečuje se obisk Japoncev, Izraelcev in Kanadčanov.

NADŠKOF FRANC RODETOVA ZADNJA SV. MAŠA PRED ODHODOM V VATIKAN – Ljubljanska stolnica je bila polno zasedena za slovesno sv. mašo, ki jo je daroval sedaj že bivši ljubljanski nadškof in slovenski metropolit Franc Rode. Fotografija je iz Družine (25. aprila) in kaže nadškofa pri oltarju, v ozadju so zbrani številni somašniki, spredaj pa duhovniki iz Slovenije ter tudi častni gostje, ki so predstavljali druge veroizpovedi.

Pevski zbor Korotan se pripravlja ...

V vrtincu pevskih not

EUCLID, O. – V svoji kamni dobi je bil Korotan skupina fantov, ki so peli sebi v zabavo. Potem se je zgodilo, kot že enkrat prej v raju in danes so ženski glasovi v premoči. V drugih slovenskih zborih s spoštovanom zgodovino, danes alti ali soprani upravljajo z zapuščino. Vsak zbor je živ organizem, podvržen istim naravnim zakonom kot vsak posameznik. Če se v njegovih vrstah opazijo novi mladi obrazi, se pomnoži energija skupine. Ne gre brez vaj in vrtinec zmed se pojavi vsako pomlad pred koncertom.

Kaj bo v pesmih, ki so letos izbrane za oder?

V Borih je spomladno prebujanje teh kraških grč iz zimske stiske. Kramežljavo se jim sonce smeje. Greje jih, ko jim skozi veje divja burja veje. Nenavadna je Klančičeva uglasitev za čustveni izraz, ki ga je omislil pesnik Murn. Aleksandrov je bil njegov psevdonim.

Julij Savelli je pel v Maroltovem zboru na univerzi. V Serviglianu je prevzel od Pogačarja begunški zbor in z njim odšel v Argentino. Tam je umrl pred leti. Skladbo Lastovka je po spominu sestavil v taborišču.

Tomaž Habe je postavil steklenico mašnega vina na klavir in ga med komponiranjem večkrat ponovno zalil, da je nastala res dobra skladba s podobno vsebino kot je Hubadova o veselih bratcih.

Ponovili bomo pesem, ki smo jo prvič zapeli pred leti na istem odru v počastitev spominu Karla Mauserja. Pesnik Jakopič in Korotanov dirigent sta se lepo ujela v ganljivem koroškem motivu. Tudi priredbi Švirkarščevih koroških stezic in o jezeru bliz' Triglava, ter še par drugih so delo Frančka. Nekaj teh pesmi je na traku, ki ga je za razdelitev omogočila hčerka Metka.

Dve narodno zavedni duši, Gregorčič in Vodopivec, sta nam zapustila zvočno zgodbo o izgubljenem cvetu. Kritika nekaterih takratnih duhovnih posod jima je očitala socializem.

Belokranjice sem prvič srečal na jutranjem vlaku

v Kranj. Iz Semiča in iz okolice Metlike so prinesle v jerbasih slive za kranjsko tržnico. Belokranjice imajo vodilno vlogo v skladbi "Igraj kolce". V tej inačici za mešani zbor jo je objavil Jakob Jež pred četrt stoletja. Upam, da boste vrtenje, ki ga ponazarja skladba, začutili tudi v dvorani. Ta priredba bo izvajana prvič med nami, mogoče bo vzbudila nekaj prijetnega presenečenja.

Posvetil sem v del koncertne vsebine. Pomagajte si tudi sami s svojimi sodbami in ocenami. Vrata v dvorano bodo odprta vsem.

Ta čas note še vedno prihajajo, novi napevi tako pozno, vzbujajo občutek neorganiziranosti. Zaupam v dirigentovo srečno roko.

V tej deželi so slovenski ljudje reševali dnevne zadeve in društvene potrebe najprej v nemščini, nato v slovenščini, in danes njihovi potomci večinoma v angleščini. Prvina, ki jo uporablja in goji naš zbor, je slovenska pesem. Preko nje imamo stik s slovenskim knjižnim jezikom in s kulturo naroda v domovini.

Veliko lepega o tem jeziku smo brali zadnja leta. Spada v indoevropsko skupino. V njej je čez 80 jezikov nastalih iz govorice v Anatoliji pred 9. tisočletij. V Evropo so se širili z ralom in z izrazi za obedalvo zemlje. To potrjuje računalniška primerjava korenov izrazov za obdelavo zemlje.

Dve dodatni lastnosti sem zaznal ob branju slovenskih klasičnih del, ki jih je lani objavilo glasilo Slovène Studies. Tam je vsaka slovenska stran za več vrstic krajsa od angleškega prevedena. Strani je 334. Ista stvar se torej v slovenščini pove s krajšimi izrazi in z manj besedami. Naš jezik je bolj zgoščen in klen, in ohranil je dvojino.

Potrebne bodo mogoče dodatne raziskave, ker vsi slovenski avtorji v omenjeni knjigi so moški.

Praktični Tjaž pa je še prosil strica za očala, da bi laže pravilno bral napis po Ljubljani, pa videl tudi vse tiste dvojezične okrog svojega doma.

Izpod zvona sv. Marije Vnebovzete

CLEVELAND, O. – Sestanek Zveze oltarnih društev je za nami. Kar lepa je bila udeležba naših članic in od fare sv. Vida. Škoda, da ni bilo nič odziva od sv. Kristine in ne sv. Lovrenca.

Poslušale smo poročili od obeh prisotnih župnij in tudi pismo otrok pokojne Mary Marinko, o zavzetosti za delo pri oltarnem društvu. Bila je zares enkratna, navdušena delavka v svoji okolici.

Pogovarjale smo se tudi o romanju v Lemont. Kristi Nemec je dve leti skrbela za to romanje in prosila, naj jo odvežemo od tega dela, kar je sprejela za to leto Ivanka Matič in že nas obvestila, da je naročila avtobus. Zdaj je na nas, kako se bomo odzvale in se priglasile za romanje. Čim prej se odločimo in poklicemo ali go. Matič ali Ani Nemec. Tudi če niste članica oltarnega društva in želiš se srečati z Marijo Pomagaj v Lemontu, lahko se priglasite in greste z nami na pot, saj Marija čaka vsakega posebej, da se odzove in pride na obisk v hvaležnosti za vse milosti, katere prejemamo vsak dan po njeni priprošnji.

To soboto bodo zopet naše članice delale krofe, da jih boste lahko dopoldne kupili v šolski dvorani.

V nedeljo, 16. maja, bosta v naši cerkvi le dve sv. maši in sicer ob osmi uri kot običajno in ob enajsti uri srebrna sv. maša našega g. župnika Janeza Kumšeta. Udeležimo se te sv. maše in se zahvalimo Nebeskemu Očetu za vse milosti in blagoslove, kar smo prejeli po župnikovih rokah.

Iskreno tudi prosimo, naj po priprošnji škofa Barage in škofa Vovka ljubi Bog vrne g. župniku glas, da bo zopet lahko z nami pel naše lepe pesmi in nas v pridigah navduševal za življenje po evangeliju. Bog nas usliši, je naša iskrena prošnja!

PERRY, O. – Tako po predsedniških volitvah pred dvema letoma, se je v Sloveniji pojavilo vprašanje: le kaj bo zdaj počel Milan Kučan. Mož je bil vsekakor še pri krepkih močeh, ko je oddal državne vajeti Janezu Drnovšku, iz nekaterih njegovih izjav pa se je dalo sklepati, da nima nobenega namena "izginiti" v zgodovino in se zadovoljiti z upokojensko eksistenco.

Navsezadnje, parlament mu je zagotovil ne le dobrojno pokojnino, temveč tudi (vsaj začasno) primerne pisarniške prostore, brezplačno vožnjo s službenim avtomobilom, pa varnostnika in še kaj.

Zato ni prav nič prezenetila govorica, da bo bivši predsednik najbrž ustanovil novo politično stranko. Ker so se nekako v istem času pričeli kazati prvi znaki osipanja politične levice (prišlo je tudi do slabo prikritih prepirčkov med posameznimi tribuni), so te govorice zadobile na moči, dokler ni postal jasno, da je samo vprašanje časa, kdaj in kako se bo Kučan vrnil v politiko.

Lansko jesen se je tisto osipanje pričelo izkazovati tudi v anketah javnega mnenja. Ljudje so slednjič uvideli, da imajo nekateri politiki predvsem eno samo in isto ambicio: osebno obogatitev, istočasno pa, da zanemarjajo državne interese, kar je pripeljalo do rekordnega dolga – 15 milijard ameriških dolarjev.

Kučan se je zavedel resnosti trenutka: levica je bila ogrožena tudi s samim dejstvom, da je bila Slovenija sprejeta tako v Evropsko unijo kot v NATO, torej v dve zahodni, neoporečno demokratični ustanovi, kjer se slovenska komunistična kontinuiteta gotovo ne bo počutila kot doma. Toličko manj, ker je EU ne-davno objavila, naj se funkcionarji nekdanjih komunističnih režimov v državah vzhodne Evrope, ki zdaj vstopajo v EU, ne potegujejo za uradne položaje v EU.

Kučanova iniciativa je potekala vzporedno z levicarsko ofenzivo proti vse bolj popularni opoziciji (Janez Janša je celo že sestavil "vlado v senči" v pričakovanju zmage na letosnjih volitvah, prislušujejo pa mu tudi nomen obnoviti nekdanji Demos) in znanemu poslancu Jelku Kaciu je menda ušlo, da je kontinuiteta za ohranitev svoje premoči pripravljena uporabiti tudi silo. To kljub temu, da je ob vseh spremembah, ki jih je bilo začutiti preteklo jesen in so dosegle jasneje obrise letošnjo pomanj, še vedno dejstvo, da ima levica v parlamentu zagotovljeno večino – do jesenskih volitev seveda.

Kučan sam je potem vsa ugibanja končal z objavo, da bo formiral društvo z imenom "Forum 21", sestavljeni iz ljudi, ki jih "skrbi podoba Slovenije v prihodnosti, pa tudi kdo jo bo oblikoval". Izkazalo se je, da je imel med temi ljudmi v mislih predvsem svoje poslovne prijatelje, to pa so ljudje, ki so že v socialistični Sloveniji zavzemali vodilna direkторska mesta, po osamosvojitvi Slovenije pa so nenadoma, nepričakovano, nekateri najbrž tudi nelegalno, neizmerno obogateli in zato danes predstavljajo vrhunski kapitalistični sloj slovenske postsocialistične družbe. Paradoks bi bil v resnicu smešen, če ne bi bil tako tragično resničen.

Toliko bolj, če naj verjamemo navedbi Marjana Cerarja v MAG-u (Krasni novi Kučanov svet, MAG, Pisatelj Drago Jančar o Sloveniji in narodu po vstopu v EU ...

Prišel je čas

Prišel je trenutek, ki se ga je zgodovinar Bogo Grafenauer bal. V času vročih debat ob osamosvajjanju Slovenije, pravzaprav nekakšnih pogovorov o prihodnosti, je pogosto poskušal prizemljiti naše visoko lebdeče slovenske viziye in ohladiti naše razgrete evropske projekcije. Bil je prepričan, da bomo ob trenutku, ko bodo padle meje, in ko bomo hkrati ostali brez organske povezave z južnoslovanskim zaledjem, izpostavljeni novim asimilacijskim tokovom. V njegovih najbolj črnih podobah se je prikazovala razprodana, podrejena, ponemčena, poitalijančena, pa tudi amerikanizirana Slovenija, iz katere v kratkih desetletjih naglo izginjata kulturno izročilo in slovenski jezik.

V času Miloševičevega vzpona in vse večjega gospodarskega in političnega kaosa v nekdanji državi je sicer ugotovil, da takšna Jugoslavija, namreč vse bolj Miloševičeva, ni več garant za slovenski nacionalni obstoj, njegovi strahovi, povezani z brezmejno Evropo, pa zato niso bili nič manjši.

Bogo Grafenauer je bil zgodovinar in skliceval se je na našo zgodovinsko izkušnjo na tem ozemlju. Bil pa je tudi Korošec in dejstvo, da je od več kot devetdesetodstotne slovenske večine na Južnem Koroškem ostalo tam le nekaj odstotkov prebivalstva, ki je pripravljeno navesti slovenčino kot svoj občevalni jezik, je bilo zanj skorajda osebna bolečina, a hkrati tudi hladna konstatacija o tem, kakšna je lahko usoda manjštine v Evropi, kaj pomeni biti pripadnik manjštine.

In Slovenci bomo s svojim jezikom v Evropski uniji manjšina. V moderni Evropi seveda ne bo prostora za provincialne nacionalizme, ki izfrustracije, ki se ji na avstrijskem Koroškem reče Urangst, se pravi prastrah pred srbskimi konjeniki in partizansko rdečo zvezdo malal na transparente gesla: Kärnter sprich Deutsch ali Es gibt kein Slowenisch Kärnten.

To pa ne pomeni, da se problem majhnega jezika in njegovega obstoja ne bo postavil z drugačno, novo ostrino: kakšna sveta vrednota pa pravza-prav je jezik, da bi se ga bilo treba tako krčevito oklepati?

Kot je skoraj izginil iz modernega obzorja "rod" iz devetnajstega stoletja, ki danes ni videti več samo anahronističen, pač pa tudi kot pojem, ki je v nasprotju s temeljnimi pojmovanjem človekovih pravic – "rod" namreč izključuje drugega, ki ni narojen po svojem naru – tako tudi jezik izginja iz območja nedotakljive svetosti.

In morda se bo kmalu postavila tudi smiselnost uporabe majhnih jezikov. Za marsikoga je že zdaj slovenščina jezik literaturе in sporazumevanja v slovenski državi, angleščina pa naj bo evropska – kot zahteva Larry Seidentop v knjigi Demokracija v Evropi – in svetovna lingua franca. Za slovenščino tako s stališča funkcionalnosti kakor z vidika svetosti ne bo pravlahko, če pomislim, da nas je dva milijona in da pri tem niti kakšno izvoljeno ljudstvo nismo.

In ker bo slovenščina v Evropski uniji izrazito manjšinski jezik, se seveda zastavlja vprašanje, ali bomo v kratkem vsi skupaj živeli kot manjšinci s svojo obsedenostjo za ohranitev jezika, s svojimi odpadništvji in preštevanji, z miselnostjo in mentalitetom, ki široki spekter človekovih interesov zožuje na vprašanje, v katerem jeziku naj javo in zasebno govorit?

Človek ne živi samo po jeziku, njegov eksistencialni položaj je veliko globlji, njegovi horizonti so širi, zakaj bi naj torej bil, razen za pisatelje, jezik tista visoka vrednota, za katero bi bilo sploh treba izgubljati toliko časa in življenjskih energij? Zakaj naj bi se sredi sveta mnogoterih možnosti človek oklepal svojega malega jezika, kam človek sploh pride s slovenščino?

V sedemdesetih letih je Marjan Kramberger napisal zelo odmeven esej z naslovom Slovenofilia slovenskih književnikov in postavil tezo, ki jo tu kaj poenostavljam, da smo z jezikom in preko jezika s slovenstvom obsedeni samo pisatelji, za njegovega prijatelja zobozdravnika, ki se je preselil v Nemčijo, je ta obesenost nesmiselna, on je prevzel nemščino in z njo dobro in smiselno živi naprej.

Dokler ne bo prevzel, bi jaz danes dodal, on sam ali pa njegovi vnuki, kakšnega drugega jezika. Nobenega zagotovila namreč nima, da se po prav nemščina v času globalizacije obdržala v javni rabi s takšno samoumenostjo, kot meni Krambergerjev prijatelj zobozdravnik.

Neki ekspert za proučevanje jezikov je koroškemu Slovencu Majranu Sturm ob robu zasedanja organizacije za zaščito manjšin rekel, da ima zanj slabo novice. V prihodnjih sto letih, je rekel, bodo izginili mnogi jeziki, med njimi bo slovenski.

Imam pa za vas tudi dobro novočico, je dodal. Med jeziki, ki bodo izginili, bo tudi nemški.

Res je, da biti pripadnik manjštine ali majhnega naroda ni sama po sebi kakšna posebna oddika. Poleg tega živeti v nenehno ogroženem položaju, v skrbi za preživetje svojega jezika, svoje identitete in zato tudi človeške integritete, ni položaj, ki bi se ga moral človek posebej veseliti. Še najslabše bi bilo, ko bi se na evropskih nacionalnih in jezikovnih stičiščih spet razvnel nesrečni kulturni boj, boj za jezik, za kulturo, za pravico do upravljanja samega sebe.

Toda vedeti, da takšna pripadnost ni ovira za razmah ustvarjalnosti in vseh pragmatičnih življenjskih oblik, da človek v svojem jeziku, v kategrega so naloženi bogati sloji kulturne izkušnje, živi polneje in globlje, kakor mu to lahko omogoči neka lingua franca, to pa je v današnjih razmerah že odlika.

In to dosegljiva sleherniku, ne samo besednim umetnikom. Angleščina, ki jo v glavnem govorimo po vsem svetu, namreč ni angleščina Shakespearea ali T. S. Eliota, to je angleščina, če prevzamemo analogije iz biologije, nižje razvitih organizmov. Pa čeprav se v njej pogovarjam o tako – če uporabim uveljavljeni anglicizem – sofisticiranih sistemih, kot so kompjuterji s svojimi silicijevimi kristali.

Se pravi, da pri prehodu iz svojega polnega jezika, jezika globokih pomnov in asociacij, prehajamo v globalni jezik površnega komuniciranja. Komuniciranja, ne pa govorjenja.

Pred kratkim je na Irskem izšla knjiga mojih novel v irščini, se pravi v starem keltskem jeziku, ki je preživel najprej precej nasilno, potem pa seveda neskončno privlačno skušnjava z angleščino, danes svetovnim jezikom.

Med predstavljanjem te knjige v Dublinu sem doživel odzive, ki jih ni mogoče primerjati z nobenim mojim drugim prevodom v velike in male jezike. Tu ni šlo samo za literaturo, šlo je za stvar srca, neke globlje identifikacije, ki je niti sam – pisatelj, ki piše v jeziku malega naroda – nisem mogel do kraja doumeti. (dalje na str. 16)

- FORUM 21 -

(nadaljevanje s str. 14)

12/2004, str. 54), da bo Forumu na voljo tudi partijska blaginja, ki naj bi "po nekaterih italijanskih ocenah po vsem svetu skrivala nekaj nad milijardo evrov" (tj. okrog $1 biljon US).

Po svoje zanimivo je tudi dejstvo, da se je v Sloveniji našla skupina gospodarstvenikov, ki jih skrbi, kakšna bo prihodnja podoba države. V normalnih demokratičnih državah se gospodarstveniki zanimajo za zdravo narodno gospodarstvo, ker je v tem vendar bistveni pogoj, da nekdo sploh lahko skrbi za podobo države.

Predstavljam si reakcijo ameriške publike, če bi bil nenadoma sklican vrhunski sestanek ameriških kapitalistov, ki bi jih skrbela prihodnja podoba Združenih držav!

Intelektualcev Kučan skoraj ni pritegnil (odsotni so bili tudi resnični predstavniki delavskega razreda). Značilen je primer Aleša Debeljaka, v ZDA izšolanega kulturnika, ki naj bi sodeloval pri začetnih pogovorih o ustanovitvi Forumu, za katerega se mu je zdelo, da je potreben že zato, ker ga "imajo tudi vsi drugi svetovni bivši predsedniki".

Kasneje, se pravi tuk pred dejansko ustanovitvijo Forumu, pa si je Debeljak premislil in ga na ustanovnem sestanku ni bilo. Po nekaterih ugi-banjih naj bi si premislil, ker se je razširila neura-dna razlaga, da naj bi bil Forum 21 nekakšen protiutež Novi reviji, ki se brez dvoma razvija iz nekdanjega disidentskega krožka v intelektualni forum, če uporabimo ta izraz, iz katerega bo po vsej verjetnosti izšla naslednja generacija slovne-skega kulturnega in političnega vodstva.

Med ustanovniki tudi ni bilo Tineta Hribarja, ki je prav v času tega dogajanja pisal proti odločitvi parlamenta v vprašanju zamolčanih grobišč.

Zdi se, da se je umaknilo tudi nekaj drugih intelektualcev, predvsem še potem, ko se je razvedelo, da je Kučan s svojo intervencijo dosegel, da je bila hrvaškemu poli-tiku Slavenu Letici izplačana hranilna vloga, ki jo je imel pri nekdanji Ljubljanski banki. Vest je vzbudila silno ogorčenje v Ljubljani ne le zaradi očitne protekcie, temveč tudi, ker je z izplačilom Ljubljanska banka de facto potrdila upravičenost hrvaških zahtev za izplačilo hranilnih vlog, čemur se Slovenija upira in zahteva poravnava v okviru vprašanja o dedičini nekdanje Jugoslavije. (Vse to za vsoto "ušivih" $3.000 US, kot je zapisal MAG.)

Kučan je tudi brez ozi-ra na evropske pomislike o beloruskem predsedniku Lukašenku le-tega osebno sprejel, ko je prišel na oddih v Slovenijo, in celo objavil, da sta govorila o možnosti širših gospodarskih stikov med državama; to pa je predstavljanje vmešavanje nekega zasebnika v državne gospodarske posle.

Vse to je Kučana prisililo, da je razgovore o ustanovitvi Forumu vodil v največji tajnosti. Nobe-na tajna pa seveda ni tako tajna, da ne bi slej ko prej prišla na dan in tako je prišlo na dan tudi nadvse značilno dejstvo, da sta se ustanovne-ga sestanka v Cankarje-vem domu udeležila tudi – ministrski predsednik Tone Rop in predsednik parlamenta Borut Pahor. (Pokorščina nad vse!)

Njima torej je bilo spo-ročeno, kakšna naj bo prihodnja podoba Slove-nije in kdo naj skrbi za-njo. Vse skupaj pa je zadobilo značaj sestanka nekakšne mračne framazonske lože. Manjkojo samo govorice o raznih skrivnostnih ritualih, ka-krsne naj bi nekdanji framazoni opravljali v svojih temačnih templjih. Jasno pa je, da predsta-vlja ta koncentracija slovenskega kapitala resnično, čeprav še ne do kraja definirano nevarnost za nadaljnjo demokratično rast in gospodarski razvoj Slovenije. Tudi osnovni namen tega združenja je prozoren: zagotoviti zmago levice na jesenskih volitvah.

Posebno luč na vsa ta dogajanja meče tudi ne-navadna, a pogosto ome-jena možnost, da je celo vse tisto govorjenje o upadanju vpliva levice v resnici konstrukt Zavoda za javno mnenje, ki ga vodi dr. Niko Toš, men-za Kučanov prijatelj. Na-men tega potvarjanja pa naj bi bil ustvariti ideo-loški pogoj za ustanovitev Kučanovega foruma po-tem, ko je iz enega ali drugega razloga opustil misel na lastno politično stranko. Drug, prav tako zanimiv moment je v govorici, da naj bi odhod nadškofa Rodeta iz Ljubljane predstavljal politično katastrofo za levico, ker je s tem oropana najbolj primerne tarče za svoje izpade, torej za publicitetne take ali dru-gačne vrste.

In ne nazadnje: na dnu vsega tega prerivanja naj bi bila Kučanova ambicija, da ponovno kan-didira za predsednika države.

V samostojni Sloveniji po Demusu je bilo ves čas čutiti, da za dejansko vlado obstaja tudi nekakšna partijska vlada v senci. To so bili ljudje, ki so se enostavno morali umakniti iz javnega življenja, ker so imeli le preveč masla na glavi. Toda v senci so ti gos-podje lahko vse nastale probleme predebatirali brez nadlegovanja medi-ev, napravili potrebne odločitve in jih sporočili aparatčikom v politični arenai. Tej vladi v senci je vsekakor treba pripi-sati relativne uspehe levi-ce po padcu Peterletove vlade.

Vprašanje je, kaj se je zgodilo s to vlado v senci, da se je Kučanu po-rodila misel o nekem forumu, ki naj bi jo nadomestil. Se je odločil, da tajnost takega partijskega delovanja ni več potre-bna? Se mu je zazdela nevarnost borbene desni-ce prevelika, da bi jo mogel zaupati dnevni politiki in njenim nosilcem? (Poslanec Tone Anderič naj bi nedavno javno na-dril Boruta Pahorja, pred-sednika Združene liste ter mu očital zgrešeno politiko.)

Je napredok desnice res zmernejši, kot se zdi in samo izgovor za zategnitev partijske discipline spričo nevarnosti, ki jo predstavlja članstvo v EU in NATU?

Odgovorov na ta vprašanja še ni, jasno pa je, da se je z ustanovitvijo Forumu 21 v Sloveniji že pričela volilna kampa-nja.

Drago Jančar

(nadaljevanje s str. 15)

Navsezadnje nam izkušnja s še eno nesmiseln komunistično utopijo, ki je želela ustvariti sovjetski, v naših razmerah pa tudi jugoslovanski narod, dokazuje, da različnost zmaguje. Zato ne popolna kulturna globalizacija kakor tudi ne evropska unifikacija ne more uspeti.

Med enim od tistih pogovorov z Bogom Gra-fenauerjem, je bilo pri-jatelju, klasičnemu filologu, ki tudi nekaj ve o zgo-dovini in izginevanju kul-tur in jezikov, Primožu Simonitiju, vsega zadosti in je s precejšnjo ostrino izrekel stavek, ki sem ga v zadnjem desetletju do-ma in na tujem ob večno ponavljanjem se vprašanju, kaj bo s sloven-sko kulturo v novih raz-merah, večkrat cirital in ga želim ponoviti tudi takoj:

Če slovenska kultura in slovenski jezik v združeni Evropi nista sposobna preživeti, potem tega tudi vredna nista.

Stavek je neusmiljen, skoraj krut. Implicitira mi-sel, da naj živi samo tis-to, kar je sposobno preživeti. Vendar je tudi stavek trdega realizma, v njem ni prostora za mor-aliziranje in deklaracije o pravicah malih narodov in manjšin. Takšnih deklaracij z dobrimi na-meni v Evropi tako ali tako ne manjka, od nekdaj pa vemo, da med deklaracijami in realnostjo zeva brezno. Pot v pe-kel je, kot tudi vemo, tlakovana z deklaracijami. Živ jezik in živa kul-tura pa imata na srečo z deklaracijami tako ma-lo skupnega kakor življe-nje samo.

Razstava Rojstni list slovenske kulture v Nuku

Slovenski rokopisni četverčki

Prvič skupaj razstavljeni štirje najpomembnejši slovenski rokopisi

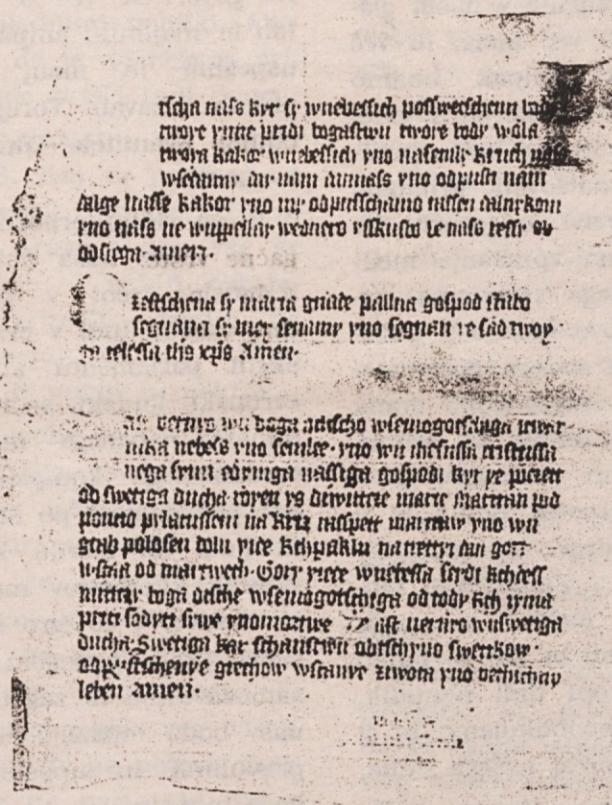

Ljubljana — Rojstni list slovenske kulture so v Narodni in univerzitetni knjižnici pdpisali razstavo, ki jo bodo odprli 17. maja, najti pa jo je tudi na uradnem seznamu preditev ob vstopu Slovenije v Evropsko unijo. Prvič po svojem nastanku se bodo na enem mestu in na slovenskem ozemlju (na skupnem ozemlju so nekoč že bili) znašli originali Brižinskih spomenikov, Celovškega oziroma Rateškega rokopisa ter Stičkega in Čedaškega oziroma Černjejskega rokopisa.

Besede Če bi naš ded ne grešil, bi mu na veke bilo živeti iz pridige o grehu in pokori iz Brižinskih spomenikov vsakomur, ki je posedal po šolskih klopeh, še zvenijo v glavi.

Najstarejši zahodnoslovenski zapis sploh (nastali so med letoma 972 in 1039 v bližini Vrbskega jezera) je bilo doslej mogoče videti le v Bavarski državni knjižnici v Münchnu, kjer jih hranijo od leta 1803, ko so jih prenesli iz freisinškega stolnega kapitla ali v faksimiliranih izdajah, od 17. maja do 20. junija pa bodo skrbno varovani na ogled v ta namen obnovljeni razstavnici dvorani Nuka. Doslej so menda samo enkrat odšli iz varnega varstva, in to v Vatikan.

Od štirih znamenitih slovenskih rokopisov, ki niso pomembni le za slovensko, marveč vso evropsko kulturno zgodovino in dokaz njene pismenosti, je samo Stički shranjen v Nuku, zato je še toliko večji dosežek tako univerzitetne knjižnice kot v tem primeru angžirnosti zunanjega in kulturnega ministrstva, da bo vse štiri mogoče videti skupaj.

Veliko razumevanja so pokazali tudi v Koroškem deželnem muzeju v Celovcu, kjer hranijo Celovški rokopis, in celo sami poiskali sponzorja za zavarovanje, pa tudi v Arheološkem narodnem muzeju v Čedadu, le da je italijanska birokracija še večja stonoga kot slovenska Bojazni, da bi kateri od rokopisov manjkal, pa ni.

List Celovškega oziroma Rateškega rokopisa je datiran z letnica 1467 in 1471

Celotni projekt je ocenjen na okrog 40 milijonov tolarjev tj. kakih US $200.000. Zarado specifičnosti eksponatov, ki morajo biti tako transportirani kot razstavljeni v strokovno strogo določenih razmerah (ustreznata temperatura, vlaga ...), so zelo visoke tudi zavarovalne premije.

Brižinski spomeniki so npr. ocenjeni na šest milijonov evrov (tj. 4,8 milijona $US), zato znaša zavarovalnina premija 6200 evrov.

Organizatorji (strokovni del vodi Mihael Glavan, "tehnični" pa Darko Balazič) so za polovico vso te zaprosili kot dodatna sredstva državo, drugo polovico bodo zbrali s pomočjo sponzorjev in donatorjev (pričevanje je ugodno) ter z vstopnino (500 Slt /$2.50/ za skupine ali 1000 za posamezne).

Prav zato, da bi zagotovili ustrezne pogoje, bo omejen obisk na okrog dvajset ljudi hkrati, tako da bi se jih lahko zvrstilo okrog petnajst tisoč, ker bo razstava odprta vse dni.

Velik projekt je tudi priprava štirijezičnega kataloga (v slovenščini, italijanski, nemščini in angleščini), ki bo sestavljen iz treh delov: študijskih besedil domačih in tujih strokovnjakov, ki so večinoma napisana na novo, objave vseh štirih rokopisov v slovenskem in treh drugih jezikih (tudi prevodi so novi ali sploh prvi), tretji del pa bo predstavljala kompletna barvna reprodukcija vseh štirih rokopisov v naravnih velikostih.

Kmalu po slavnostnem odprtju razstave, kar bo sta predvidoma storila slovenski in bavarski predsednik vlade, bo v Centru Evropa tudi ednevni mednarodni znanstveni kolokvij.

Intervju z Lojetom Peterletom

(Naša luč, maj 2004)

Začenja se nova doba

Lojze Peterle se je rodil 5. julija 1948 v Čužnji vasi v občini Trebnje. Po gimnaziji v Novem mestu je diplomiral iz geografije in zgodovine na Filozofski fakulteti v Ljubljani, na Ekonomski fakulteti pa je diplomiral iz ekonomije na prvi stopnji. Poleg svojega rednega dela je bil 15 let urednik Revije 2000 in vrsto let glavni urednik revije Tretji dan.

Skupaj s sodelavci je marca 1999 ustanovil Slovensko krščansko socialno gibanje, ki se je istega leta preoblikovalo v stranko Slovenskih krščanskih demokratov. Na prvem kongresu stranke je bil izvoljen za predsednika.

Na prvih demokratičnih volitvah spomladan leta 1990 je bil izvoljen v parlament, kmalu za tem pa je postal predsednik prve demokratično izvoljene slovenske vlade. V času njegovega mandata (1990-1992) je Slovenija dosegla samostojnost in mednarodno priznanje.

Demos je kot koalicija na prvih volitvah nastopil z jasnim državotvornim programom: postavitev samostojne in demokratične države Slovenije. Kako danes gledate na tisti čas pred 14 leti?

Z veseljem in ponosom, kajti naša generacija je razumela nasmej zgodovine in je bila sposobna v spremenjenih političnih okoliščinah urednici sanje številnih slovenskih rodov ter izvesti projekt slovenske osamosvojitve.

Takrat je bil resnični slovenski pomladni čas, čas odprtja in vesel sem, da nam je to skupaj uspel. Za skupni projekt so dobili tako široko podporo naših ljudi in nenazadnje tudi tako veliko podporo mednarodne skupnosti, ki nas je januarja 1992 tudi priznala.

So bile to sanje ali realistični načrt?

Jugoslavija je bila pravzaprav mrtva že pred Titovo smrto, preprosto ni več delovala kot normalna država. V Demosu so se zbrale sile, ki so mislile zares, čeprav so takoimenovani "realisti" dejali, da je vse to nemogoče. Ne smemo pozabiti, da je JLA še vedno delovala skupaj s tajno policijo in drugimi državnimi podsistemi.

Kadar greste v velike projekte, nikoli ne morete z gotovostjo reči, vse je pripravljeno. Mi smo bili dobro pripravljeni, nekaj pa je bilo tudi tveganja in tistega notranjega "gremo". Ta gremo pa se je zgodil na podlagi jasne politične volje, temeljih priprav vlade ...

Danes se veliko govori o narodni enotnosti v tistem času. Kako pa je bilo to čutiti v politiki? Je bil to res enoten nastop oziroma kako so to "enotnost" videli predstavniki prejšnje politične oblasti?

Narodni enotnosti v tej zvezi dolgo ni bilo, ni je bilo celo po plebiscitu 23. decembra leta 1990, ko je 89% Slovencev podprlo koncept osamosvojitve. Na prve demokratične volitve je šel Demos na podlagi tkm.

Lojze Peterle: Začenja se nova doba ...

(NADALJEVANJE s str. 17)

Majniške deklaracije, ki je zahtevala samostojno in demokratično slovensko državo, politične sile na drugi strani so se navdihovale pri tkm. temeljni listini, ki je že zelela še naprej Jugoslavijo.

To je bila bistvena razlika med nami. Po plebiscitu smo zaradi takojudiske podpore pričakovali, da bodo tudi stare sile podprle naš projekt. Vendar smo v državnem zboru, v katerem sedaj sediva, nekaj zakonov, ki so bili nujno potrebni za pravilen potek osamosvajanja po pravilih demokratične države, uspeli sprejeti z minimalno večino, z nekaj glasovi več. To je dokaz, kako močno so nekateri nasprotovali osamosvojitvi.

Enotnost, o kateri radi govorimo, pa se je zgodila ob napadu na Slovenijo. Takrat smo zares vsi čutili tisto narodno enotnost, čeprav so še takrat nekateri razmišljali, da bi bilo potrebno z oblasti vreči Demosovo vlado. Nekateri niti takrat niso mirovali.

Osamosvojite si brez pomoči "od zunaj" ne moremo zamisliti. Tukaj mislim predvsem na takrat vplivne politike po Evropi. Menda vam je v razgovoru na štiri oči nemški kancler Kohl rekel takole: "Jaz natančno vem, kam spada Slovenija. Mi je ne štejemo na Balkan, vi ste kulturno civilizacijski del Zahodne Evrope. Če smo uporabili načelo samoodločbe pri združitvi Nemčije, ne moremo tega odrekati Sloveniji."

To mi je 1. julija 1990 v Budimpešti pomenilo, da je bila takratna vodilna politična osebnost v Evropi odprta do našega projekta. On je nedvomno močno zaslужen za naše mednarodno priznanje. Nemška politika se je kmalu zedinila v nakljenjem odnosu do našega projekta in to je imelo močan odmev po vsej Evropi. Leva, socialdemokratska evropska linija na začetku ni podpirala naše osamosvojite in je zavzela drugačno stališče od krščanskokodemokratske linije, ki jo je posebljal kancler Kohl. Njegova linija je imela veliko večino v evropskem parlamentu, kar nam je bilo v veliko politično in moralno oporo.

Kako ste doživljali "vpliv in pomoč" naših rojakov po svetu.

Takrat je oživila vsa Slovenija, vse slovenstvo. Dobivali smo poročila o veliki podpori naših rojakov po vsem svetu. Odvijale so se demonstracije, peticije, rojaki so odločno zastavili svoj glas v podporo osamosvojitvi in to nam je doma vlivalo dodatnega poguma. Včasih je marsikje odpiralo mnoga prej zaprta vrata.

To je bil enkraten občutek. Prebujanje zunaj Slovenije, v zamejstvu, izseljenstvu in zdomstvu je imelo močan vpliv tudi pri političnih strukturah držav, v katerih so se rojaki organizirali.

Slovenija danes – polnopravna članica EU in NATA? Kako sedaj?

Nekateri pravijo, da velikih tem ni več, da se zgodovina zapira, jaz pa pravim, da se za nas začenja nova doba. Naredili smo pomembne izpite, v relativno zelo kratkem času smo uresničili oba želena cilja. Sedaj mora-mo začeti uresničevati naše narodno-politične cilje v novih okoliščinah.

Spremeniti bomo morali mišljenje v naših glavah. Ni več meja, ni več mejaka, ampak imamo soseda, partnerja, s katerim moramo bolj sproščeno sodelovati. Prihajoči novi izzivi, odgovoriti bo treba na vprašanje mednarodnega terorizma, iskatи nove možnosti povezovanja našega gospodarstva s svetovnim, doma imamo težave na demografskem področju, politični prostor doma je v krizi, nesorazmerno razdeljen ... Zamisliti si moramo, katere so naše prednosti in kaj bi lahko tej Evropi tudi ponudili, da jo sooblikujemo in ji damo nekaj našega duha.

Zagotovo bomo priče mnogim spremembam, edprle so se meje, sosed naj bi postal "mek" in ne več "vrag". Smo sposobni teh sprememb v naših glavah?

Tranzicija v glavi je zagotovo najtežja. Nas so desetletja učili, da so na drugi strani meje samo sovražniki. Tudi l. 1991, ko nas je napadla JLA, so vojaki govorili, da je treba braniti Jugoslavijo, ker so jo napadli z zahoda in severa.

Te meje se v glavah počasi umikajo novemu razumevanju. Sedaj pripadamo Evropi, s katero imamo iste vrednote, načela in tudi skupna pravila igre. Države v zvezi med seboj sodelujejo, se ne napadajo, iščejo skupne rešitve.

Po dolgem času bomo Slovenci sedaj (razen rojakov na Hrvaškem) živeli v okviru iste skupnosti, v kateri bodo meje še ostale, ne bodo pa nas več delile. Če bomo hoteli, se bomo lahko najbolj približali konceptu Zedinjene Slovenije, ki je nastal leta 1848. Vse tri Slovenije bodo med seboj začele sodelovati bolj sproščeno, bolj umirjeno in s skupno vizijo.

Kako naj Slovenija uveljavlja enakopravnost z drugimi, dosti večjimi in gospodarsko vplivnimi državami? Je to sploh mogoče?

Je mogoče. To dokazujo primeri manjših držav v Evropski zvezi. Njim nihče ne govori, da so majhni ali nesposobni.

Ravno te države so dokazale, da je biti majhen lahko tudi velika prednost v Evropski zvezi. So v vrhu uspešnosti tudi v svetovnem merilu. Ne govori se več o velikih in majhnih, ampak o uspešnih in manj uspešnih državah. Torej ne odloča kvantiteta, ampak kvaliteta.

In tu vidim priložnost, ki jo mora naša država izkoristiti sebi v prič. Jaz osebno tudi v evropskem parlamentu ali v evropski ljudski stranki, nimam nobenega manjvrednostnega kompleksa, ker prihajam iz po številu ljudi ali številu kvadratnih kilometrov majhne države. V to igro moramo iti s ponosom in samozavestno in zagotovo nas bodo opazili, nam prisluhnili in upoštevali naše mnenje.

Pri nas je že stoletja prisoten strah majhnosti pred drugimi. Kako bo z ohranjanjem lastne, narodove identitete?

Narodne zavesti ne bomo naročali v Bruslju, ampak doma v slovenskih družinah, slovenskih šolah, v slovenski Cerkvi. Nihče v Evropski zvezi ni izgubil svoje identitete, svojega jezika, kulture. Nasproti, na podlagi večjega gospodarskega razvoja sta se narodna zavest in identiteta okreplili. Kar poglejmo si primere na Danskem, Irskem, Finsku. Vse te države potrjujejo moja stališča. Živeli bomo z načeli Evropske zveze, ki se glasi "Enotnost v različnosti". Različnost se spoštuje.

Kakšen naj bi bil po vašem mnenju slovenski evropski poslanec? Kaj so njegove prioritete, kako naj deluje?

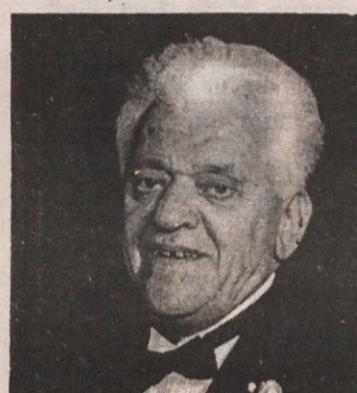

Slovenski evropski poslanec bo moral mislit evropsko s slovenskim srcem, če hoče uveljavljati tisto, kar bo pomagalo Sloveniji naprej. Bistveno je, da ne bomo mislili ozko nase. Iskati bomo morali rešitve, ki bodo zanimive tudi za druge. Samo tako bomo lahko dosegali cilje, ki bodo dobrati tako za nas kot za druge.

Kje in kako vidite sebe kot poslanca v evropskem parlamentu? Kje so vaše prednosti?

Začenja se nova doba...

(NADALJEVANJE s str. 18)

Sam imam že dolgoletne mednarodne izkušnje. Imel sem že dve pomembni evropski funkciji, tam me politiki že dobro poznajo. Prejel sem tudi nekaj pomembnih evropskih nagrad, ki so vsekakor zasluga za ves moj dosedanji trud v evropskem parlamentu in v evropski ljudski stranki, ki je najmočnejša evropska stranka.

S svojimi evropskimi zvezami lahko nedvomno veliko prispevam k promociji, razvoju in političnemu vplivu naše države v EZ. Mislim, da je bil moj glas v Evropskem parlamentu že do sedaj jasen, prepoznaven in razumljiv.

Zdi se, da ste zunaj dosti bolj priljubljeni in cenjeni kot doma. Kako si to razlagate?

Zunaj nikoli nisem imel težav s starimi političnimi silami, si so se precej trudile s kampanjo proti meni že v času, ko sem bil predsednik vlade. Zunaj se mi ni treba ukvarjati z bivšimi komunisti in vsako jutro odstranjevati polen, ki se naberejo doma.

Moram pa reči, da se je tudi doma odnos spremenil zlasti od takrat, ko sem zunaj dosegel različna priznanja za svoje delo. Tako se mi je po vseh meritvah priljubljenosti tudi doma dvignila priljubljenost in za-sedam prvo mesto med pomladnimi politiki. Mislim, da je do nekega prioznanja prišlo tudi doma.

Dvanajst let vlade LDS. Kaj to pomeni za državo? Zdi se, da ni več prave vizije, vse se dogaja v nekih ograjenih vrtovih - fevdih, na obzoru ni več videti nekih novih projektov.

Zgodba o uspehu se poslavljata, model vladanja se je izčrpala, koalicijska kultura je šibka. V politiki se zmeraj dogajajo vzponi in padci in mislim, da je politična opcija, ki nam vlada, že zdavnaj prešla svoj višek. Sedaj se na oblasti vzdržuje na način, ki državi ne koristi. Mislim, da je čas za spremembo.

Pošteno rečem, da je tudi tej oblasti marsikaj uspelo in vesel sem, da smo skupaj uspeli pri glavnih zunanjopolitičnih ciljih - vstop v NATO in Evropsko zvezo. Ko bolj natančno analiziram zadeve, se mi vse bolj zdi, da se bližamo razmeram iz 1. 1990, ko je bivša oblast natančno vedela, kaj je narobe in kaj bi morala storiti, pa ni več zmogla povleči pravih potez.

Tudi ta vlada v zadnjem letu svojega mandata ne opravlja tistega, kar bi morala. Zato poskuša s popularnimi potezami pridobiti čimveč volivcev, vendar nas po jeseni čaka kar nekaj streznitev. Ne moremo nadaljevati poti naprej s takim zadolževanjem, s tako privatizirano državo v strankarskih interesih. Politiko je treba postaviti znova v vlogo služenja skupnim državnim interesom. In tu pričakujem velike spremembe.

Velik del krivde k takemu stanju lahko pripišemo tudi neenotnosti samih strank iz pomladanskega bloka. Kako komentirate to neenotnost nekoč in danes?

Vir te neenotnosti je v razpadu Demosa. Potem smo bili priče v različnih Drnovškovih vladah, da je ena ali sta dve stranki sodelovali v vladi, ostanek je bil v opoziciji. To je pri volivcih rojevalo vprašanja, apatijo, razočaranje in volilno abstinenco. Zgodile so se izdaje in politično neproduktivne zadeve, ki so nam samo škodile.

Mislim, da temu nima smisla posvečati prevelike pozornosti. Delati je treba za to, da se tiste sile, ki so bistveno prisogle k osamosvajjanju, znova povežejo. Sedaj se po izključitvi SLS iz vlade kažejo možnosti, da bi vendarle lahko stopili skupaj v stvareh, ki nas povezujejo. Samo tako bomo lahko prepričali volivce, da podprejo linijo, ki ima za Slovenijo jasen program.

Kaj bi ta enotnost prinesla na ravni volitev za evropski parlament?

Stranke so zelo samozavestne in pričakujejo, da bi vsaka lahko dobila vsaj po en mandat. Tudi evropska ljudska stranka v tem primeru ne narekuje neke enotnosti na silo. Jeseni so tudi parlamentarne volitve in analitiki pravijo, da bi preveliko povezovanje sedaj pomenilo izgubo identitete in moči posamežnih strank. Zato smo se tako odločili, da gremo posebej tudi na evropske volitve.

Kdaj bo ta država končno spremenila svoj odnos do rojakov po svetu? Mislim predvsem na sam koncept sodelovanja: rojaki se še vedno čutijo zapostavljeni; vsak aktivnost se ustavi pri folklori in navednem ohranjanju same tradicije. Mislim, da se država ne bi smela zadovoljiti zgolj s finančnimi drobtinicami, ki jih deli zelo neselektivno.

Ne čudim se, da je stanje tako, kot je. Samo v zadnjem letu so se na tem mestu zamenjali trije državni sekretarji. V času Demosa smo imeli posebnega ministra za Slovence po svetu. Kasneje smo slišali celo ideje, da bi sekretarja za to področje preprosto ukinili, čemur smo mi odločno nasprotovali.

Ne vidimo prave skrbi, pravega odnosa do te problematike, do naših ljudi po svetu. Veliko je delegacij, ki so drage, veliko se potuje, vse je bolj površno in na žalost res preveč folklorno. Ta oblast ne zna povezati slovenskih potencialov po svetu z našimi možnostmi, ki jih imamo doma. Tudi tako bi slovenstvo zaživilo v neki novi kviliteti.

Iz oponicije nismo imeli velikega vpliva na vse to. Mi pričakujemo naprej neki odnos države do Slovencev po svetu, spoštovanje in zahvalo za vse, kar so za nas do sedaj naredili. In tega ni malo. Pričakujem, da bomo redno enkrat letno povabili Slovence po svetu v naš parlament, se jim zahvalili, jim prisluhnili in poiskali nove možnosti sodelovanja. Res bi tudi finančno razdeljevanje sredstev tako po višini kot po namenu moralno biti drugačno.

Kako pa komentirate stanje pri naših zamejcih in odnos RS do tega vprašanja?

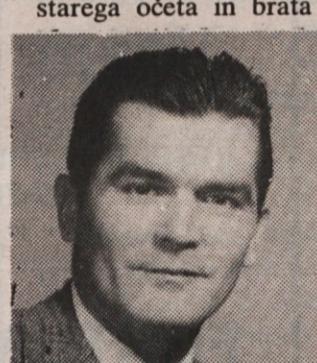

Slika v zamejstvu je odraz stanja pri nas doma. Rad rečem, da je berlinski zid padel na obe strani. Ta delitev med našimi ljudmi je odsev stanja doma in rezultat prejšnje politike do naših zamejcev. Tako se slovenske interese enostavno izigrava za politične igrice. Temeljni narodni vidik je izpuščen ali pa je zgolj v oklepaju.

Vsekakor se odpirajo nove možnosti, ki jih moramo izkoristiti. Pluralnost mora biti in je naravna. Toda potrebno je poiskati tudi skupne imenovalec, ki voz popeljejo naprej. To velja tako za matico kot zamejstvo. Ne smemo pozabiti, da sta zlasti naši manjšini v Italiji in Avstriji plačali visok davek zaradi železne zaves, ki je prej delila Evropo na dva dela. Bili so tretirani kot možni uvozniki komunistične ideologije, na njih so gledali po strani tudi v teh državah. In vse to je ohromilo ves naš narod.

Želel bi si, da sodelovanje ne bi bilo odvisno od barve, ki trenutno vlada v RS, ampak od skupnih narodnih interesov. Temelje linije odnosov s Slovenci po svetu in zamejstvu bi morale biti prisotne ne glede na to, kakšne so naše notranje politične razmere oziroma čutenje, ki ga vladajoča stran čuti do tega vprašanja. Samo v tej smeri je mogoče pričakovati stalen napredok. Iskrati moramo trajne odločitve.

Misijonska srečanja in pomenki

1523. Misijonarka s. Marija Sreš, ki deluje

v Indiji med staroselkami, je poslala zelo zanimivo pismo Celestinovi: "Draga! Pravkar smo praznovali holi, naš festival pomlad, ki enako kot velika noč slavi zmago dobrega nad zlom in praznuje prerojenje narave po sivi, mrzli zimi ... kot to simbolizira velika noč.

Noč holija je bil kakor dan, nihče ni spal, ker je bilo tako svetlo kot podnevi. Na širokem nebu je bila velika rumena krogla, kraljica noči, luna, ki je smehljajoča žarela nad nami in je z nebesnega oboka pregnala vse zvezde. Razsvetljevala je vso dolino Sabarkante in njene prebivalce držala budne, ko so opravljali svojo pujo, obred kresa, in se zbrali v procesijo okrog njegovih žarečih plamenov ter tolkli na bobne, plesali in prepevali brez konca, vse do zatona naslednjega dneva. Vsa vas se je zbrala, plesala, se veselila in igrala ter zabavala in se tudi spravila preko svojih članov, ki so si izmenjali koske kokoša, melase in dateljnov in tako začela novo življenje v skupnosti.

Holi je najbolj veselo, najčudoviteje obarvano in najživahnejše praznovanje plemena Dungri Garasijcev, kjer si dajo duška v svoji ustvarjalnosti, humorju in veselju. Odpuščanje je temeljni del tega slavljenja, zame se pozabijo, družine spravijo in to nas tudi spominja na veliko noč.

Zgodaj zjutraj ženske zamesijo rotle (kruh) iz nove moke, zmlete iz pravkar požete pšenice. Iz tega razloga se holi naziva tudi festival zimske žetve. Letos je bil pšenični pridelek zelo dober in mnogotera zlata pšenična polja še čakajo na srp in žensko roko. V mojih očeh je lepota pokrajine dosegla svoj višek v številnih cvetočih kesudah, ki se kot kresovi blestijo v žgočem soncu. Oh, ta naša dežela še ni nikoli bila tako čudovito lepa kot je danes!

To leto je bilo posebno lepo tudi za nas ženske, organizirane v Pragati Mahila Mandal (Naprek staroselke). Zakaj? Prvič v zgodovini je prišla k nam televizijska ekipa in posnela naše življenje in delo. Vse do danes ni noben medijski center pomislil na nas kot na osebe in pripadnice plemena, ki je vredno javnega priznanja. Letos pa je voditelj verskega programa RTV Slovenija Vid Stanovnik zasnoval dokumentarne serije na osnovi Marijinih zgodb, življenju staroselcev v Sabarkanti in dejavnosti našega gibanja Pragati Mahila Mandal ter tudi poslal snemalno ekipo. Posneli so nočno in dnevno praznovanje holija v naših vaseh.

Članice PMM so skupno z vaščani uprizorile poročni obred Dungri Garasijskih staroselcev od začetka do konca. Vsi smo uživali kot če bi bili na resnični poroki. Snemalca sta tudi posnela življenjska izkustva nekaterih naših staroselk.

Predsednica PMM Induben in njen mož Živa sta to srečanje med dvema tujcema in nami pripravila na staroselski način. Naj pojasnim: Boštjan in Stojan sta bila sprejeta, kot če bi bila člana naše družine. V zameno sta nas tudi ona sprejela kot enakovredne in med nami je bilo medsebojno deljenje in spoštovanje. Z veseljem sta jedla naše rotle in me smo uživale ob njunih darilih. Ob Dnevu žena sta nas počastila z darom: vsaka ženska je dobila eno pomarančo in pol. Vsi smo bili tako srečni in smo se imeli čudovito lepo. Snemanje ni bilo mehanično. Najprej smo se pogovarjali in se odprli eden drugemu, se vzljubili. Našli smo se v življenjskem pogovoru, obe strani sta dajali in prejemali. Še našo prihodnost smo skupaj zasnovali.

Boštjan in Stojan sta se udeležila našega sestanka in z njima smo delile naše glavne cilje, ki so sedaj tudi njuni: pomagati staroselki dvosmerno, to je da postane ekonomsko samozadostna in se zave lastne vrednosti, samospoštovanja. Obe sta povezani. Ena od poti je izobrazba. Zato smo tudi toliko vložili v izobraževalne tečaje žensk in šolanje deklic, kakor tudi za razumevanje sveta okrog nas. Prizadevali smo si tudi za dosego projektov, ki prinašajo dohodek z namenom, da bi ženske postale ekonomsko neodvisne.

Srečujemo se tudi s številnimi problemi. V zadnji okrožnici sem vam napisala o enem, to je o nenadni smrti Sardinega moža. Vzroka njegove smrti še niso našli, a vaščani javno kažejo s prstom na naše žensko gibanje, ki naj bi pokvarilo Sardin značaj. Ignoranca in patriarhalna mentaliteta sta naši največji težavi.

Drugi problem je nakazal Zivabhai: Nima smisla pomagati staroselcem, razen če ti sprejmejo pomoč in če izšolani tudi dobijo službo. V nasprotnem primeru postane naše prizadevanje le frustracijska vaja. V resnici pa tudi izšolan in visoko kvalificiran staroselec težko dobi boljšo državno službo, saj tako njega kot staroselko vlada diskriminira in še posebno, če sta kristjana.

Pri iskanju odgovora na ta vprašanja meni pomača zgled Jezusa Kristusa. Svoje staroselce želim povezati s to inspiracijo in skrbjo za bližnjega, podobno kot sem to tudi sama darovala v služenju. Nekatere sem uspela navdušiti k tej predanosti za druge in v tem je moje pravo veselje. Zavedam se, da pri tej motivaciji uspeh ni vedno zagotovljen, a ima smisel sam v sebi. Zaradi tega rišem ostro mejo med seva (služenje) in nokri (služba).

Seva je prostovoljno delo, služenje drugim, kjer je temeljna motivacija ljubezen in zasluzek minimalen, le za kritje vsakodnevnih stroškov. Nokri je služba, motivirana iz osebne izpolnitve preko napredovanj in plače. Nevarnost je v tem, da seva lahko postane preveč idealistična in se oddalji s fronte resničnega življenja. Izpostavljenost je tudi ta, da nokri postane preveč sebična in ambiciozna. Danes je denar postal primarni faktor in vir motivacije, medtem, ko služenje izgublja na veljavi.

Poskušala sem sama živeti ideal in ga tudi posredovati članicam našega gibanja. Vem, da marsikatera staroselka to ceni. Tudi dejstvo je vredno, da ga delim z vami ob prihajajoči veliki noči.

Kmalu bom morala v Slovenijo radi operacije komolca, ki se je lani oktobra tako nerodno zlomil. In ko si opomorem, se vrнем nazaj sem, kjer je moje srce. Veliko Veliko noč! Marija"

Vsek človek ima svojo pot v življenju. Nekateri jo hitro spoznajo, drugi morajo iti skozi preizkušnje, da pristanejo v pravem položaju. Tako je tudi na misijonskem polju, ko misijonar pogleda nazaj in vidi, da je bilo prav, da je naredil korak, ki ga je pripeljal v drugi svet, med druge narode.

Prav lep misijonski pozdrav v imenu vseh sodelavcev in
