A black and white photograph of an industrial facility. In the foreground, there is a large, dark, irregular pile of material, possibly coal or slag. Behind it, a long, low industrial building with several windows and doors stretches across the middle ground. Two tall, cylindrical vertical silos or storage tanks stand prominently in front of the building. The background shows a flat, open area under a cloudy sky. A large, dark, stylized letter 'K' is overlaid on the right side of the image.
