

Carica Katarina

Zgodovinski roman

— Sedite, brat Reginald, rad vam prepuščam ta edini stol, ki se nahaja v moji celici.

Jaz nocoj ne bom spal, radi tega ležete lahko brez skrbi v mojo posteljo in mirno zaspite.

— Zakaj mi vedno praviš "vi" pobožni brat? Trapisti se vendar med seboj tikajo!

— Še vedno se ne morem prav udomačiti v tem samostanu, — odvrne Aleksander Potemkin, — še vedno sem tujec med temi židovi, pa saj še nisem dolgo tukaj — sešoma se bom že privadil in se oprjel vseh običajev.

— Zdi se mi, da živi tvoja duša še vedno ob spominih in v svetu, v katerem si živel prej? — vpraša brat Reginald in pogleda Aleksandra Potemkina s svojimi velikimi, izredno lepimi očmi.

Potemkin je stal sredi celice; bil je zelo resen, roke pa je prekrizal na prsih.

— Nisi se zmotil, — odvrne brat Aleksander, — še vedno ne morem pozabiti, čeprav bi to zelo rad dosegel. Verjem mi, da si pošteno prizadevam, da bi se otresel vsega posvetnega.

Brat Reginald ne odgovori.

Cez nekaj minut pa vpraša Aleksandra Potemkina:

— Ali je resnica, kar pripovedujejo bratje v tem samostanu? Mar si ti zares tisti Aleksander Potemkin, ki je bil nekdo miljenec moškega carice Katarine?

Mar si ti zares tisti, ki je iz praznil kupo sreče, ki je imel vsega, česar si more pozeleti človeško srce?

Ali si ti tisti, ki ga je carica potem zavrgla in pregnala?

Morda se boš čudil, da je trapist tako radoveden, — toda glej, tudi mene je čudela slika usoda. Čeprav se nisem tako visoko povzpeli kakor ti, vendar sem v neki določeni obliki tvoji sotrpni in radi tega imam pravico, da te vprašam, kako je bilo in kaj vse si dočel.

— Odgovoril ti bom odkritosrčno na tvoje vprašanje, — odvrne Aleksander Potemkin, ki je bil srečen, da je mogel po dolgem času zopet s kom govoriti. Razen tega pa mu je tudi mladi redovnik zelo ugajal.

— Da, res je, jaz sem tisti knez Aleksander Potemkin, ki je bil nekdo miljenec carice Katarine.

— Oh, tedaj si zares srečen človek, — vzklikne brat Reginald, — bil si nekaj let svojega življenja srečen, sedaj pa živiš lahko ob spominih na svoje lepe dni!

— Toda moji spomini niso lepi, — odvrne brat Aleksander, — Moji spomini so žalostni in temni.

— Temni? — se začudi brat Reginald. — Toda zakaj? — Mar nisi bil miljenec carice Katarine, ljudje pa pripovedujejo, da je ona najlepša žena v Rusiji.

— Res je, lepa je, zelo lepa, — odvrne Aleksander Potemkin žalostno, — toda njena lepota je samo vnanja. — Bog ji je dal samo lepo telo, ne pa tudi lepe duše!

— Res? Mar carica ni dobra in plemenita? — vpraša brat Reginald.

Težko je odgovoriti na to da, govori sam zase, ne pa za tega tujega redovnika.

Da, ljubil sem jo kot zvesto prijateljico, kateri sem bil dolžan hvaležnost za marsikaj, da, za vse! Kako naj bi je ne bil ljubil? Saj me je obsipala z darovi, kakor še nobenega smrtnika — odlikovala me je, kakor še nikogar, — iz enostavnega, navadnega in neznanega poročnika je napravila mogočnega, bogatega in slavnega človeka! Dvignila me je na najvišjo stopnjo v Rusiji!

Vse to je bil vzrok, da sem jo vzljubil.

In če bi bila na svetu žena, ki bi mi mogla pomagati, da bi pozabil na deklico, ki sem jo nekoč ljubil, bi bila brez dvoma Katarina ta žena.

Potem pa, — dragi prijatelj, — ne smete pozabiti, da je Katarina izredno lepa!

Opajala me je s svojo lepoto, — Katarina zna ljubiti, kakor nihče drugi! Lepa je, mogoče najmočnejša carica Evrope! Postavite kateregakoli moškega na moje mesto, brat Reginald, pa boste videli, da se ne bo nihče mogel upirati dražestim in lepoti naše velike carice Katarine!

Pravim vam, Katarini se ne more nihče upirati!

— Zakaj pa ne ljubis Katarine več? — nadaljuje brat Reginald tiho in počasi.

— Ker sem spoznal, kakšna je, — odvrne Aleksander Potemkin.

— Spoznal si? — Kako to misliš?

— Prodril sem v njeno dušo, — odvrne Aleksander Potemkin, — videl sem, kakšna je njena duša. V njeni notranjosti je črna, — tam mrgoli vse polno počasti, — te počasti pa so Katarinine hudobne misli.

Oh, prijatelj, — Bog je bogato nagradil to carsko ženo, toda dal ji je nizko in podlo dušo!

Kar ji je dal na lepoto in razumu, ji je vzel pri duši in njenih čustvih.

— Kako pa moreš dokazati, — vzklikne brat Reginald jezno, — da je carica Katarina zares hudobna?

— Kako bi mogel to dokazati? — vpraša Aleksander Potemkin. — Oh, prijatelj, navedel bi vam lahko nekatere primere, ob katerih bi se vam ježili lasje in bi vam srce nehala biti.

Lahko bi vam pripovedoval o marsičem, česar niti ne slutite, toda ne bilo bi lepo, ker bi se pokazal skrajno nehvaležnega, če bi sedaj grdil carico Katarino, ko se ne more braniti!

— Govori, — vzklikne menih, — Katarina bi se že branila, če bi mogla slišati tvoje besede.

— Toda ona jih ne more slišati, — odvrne Aleksander Potemkin, — zato mi tudi ne more odgovarjati.

— Ne, nočem govoriti, — to bi bilo prav tako, kakor da bi jo od zadaj napadel z bodalcem ali pa ji skrivaj dal strupa, — to bi bilo grdo in podlo, tako ne delajo možje!

Razen tega, prijatelj, — Katarina mi je vse to zaupala, ker je mislila, da najine ljubezni ne bo nikdar konec. Vse to mi je zaupala, ker je vedela, da ne bom nikdar o tem govoril!

Ko je ležala v mojem naročju mi je pripovedala o ječi, v kateri se nahaja njen nevarni nasprotnik in sovražnik, — pripovedovala mi je o svojih krvoločnih delih, ki so ji pomagala na ruski prestol, — toda Bog ne da, da bi o tem govoril!

Ne, ne, vse bom povedal, kar mi leži na srcu, — skrivnosti moje carice pa so mi svete, nikdar jih nihče ne bo zvedel od mene!

Reginald se zadovoljno nasmehne in povese pogled.

— Sedaj pa, prijatelj, — reče Aleksander Potemkin, — dajva moliti, utrujen sem, toda nocoj ne smem leči in zaspati, tako mi je zapovedal oče Kalipto.

Pokleknil bom pred ta-le križ in bom prosil ter rotil Boga, da bi mi dal mir, ki mi je tako potreben.

Reginald vstane in stopi k oknu.

Aleksander Potemkin pa odide v kot in poklekne na trda tla pred velikim črnim križem.

— Moli glasno! — mu reče Reginald.

Tako se glasi predpis v našem samostanu, govori glasno, kar si hotel samo šepetati!

Med tabo in med mano, dragi brat Aleksander, ne sme ostati ničesar skrivnega, kajti jaz bom odslej ostal vedno poleg tebe, spremljal te bom po vseh potih, jaz bom tvoja senca.

— Moja senca? — se začudi Potemkin in presenečeno obrne glavo ter pogleda mladega redovnika.

— Da, tvoja senca!

Ah, ti nisi še dolgo v tem samostanu, radi tega še ne poznaš vseh naših predpisov.

Vedi torej, da ima vsak menih svojo tako zvano senco, to pomeni, da ima tovariša, ki ga vedno zasleduje, toda ne samo telesno, temveč tudi duševno.

Tvoji seneci ne sme ostati nobena stvar prikrita, — ničesar ne sme ostati v tvojih prsih, česar bi ne vedela tvoja senca.

Samo tako je možno doseči, da trapist nima svojih lastnih misli, ker mora vedno vse zaupati svojemu tovarišu, če pa gre za kakšne slabe in hudobne misli, mora senca takoj prijavititi to predstojniku samostana!

— Oh, Bog, — vzklikne Potemkin, — to je strašno!

Sicer si vsaj vsak človek lahko misli, kar hoče, — tukaj v samostanu pa nadzirajo celo misli!

— Moli torej, — reče brat Reginald.

Potemkin začne moliti.

Molil je vroče, iskreno in pobožno.

Komaj pa je spregovoril nekaj besed, ko je začel v svojih molitvi imenovati neko ime, ki ga je navdajalo s svetostjo, — ime, ob katerem se je menih Reginald stresel.

To ime je Potemkin izgovoril nežno in pobožno, glasilo pa se je:

— Elizabeta!

Konvencija

V hotelu Cleveland se je vršila v četrtek, petek in danes, 14., 15. in 16. januarja konvencija Employee Representatives od American Steel and Wire Co., na kateri se je razmotrivalo, kakor se poroča, razne zadeve glede industrijskih odnošajev in se iste predložilo v pretes eksekutivnim uradnikom. Na konvenciji je bilo zastopanih 18 tovarn omenjene družbe, in sicer: clevelandsko okrožje 4, čikaško okrožje 5, pittsbursko okrožje 5, worcestersko okrožje 4 in duluthsko okrožje 4. Iz vsake tovarne sta bila navzoča dva zastopnika kompanijskih unij. Delegatje in zastopniki uprave so v četrtek slišali govore kompanijskih uradnikov, in sicer so govorili: C. F. Blackmer, C. F. Hood, E. W. Kempton in drugi. Potem so se vršile volitve, pri katerih so bili izvoljeni sledeči: L. R. Dietrich, predsednik; J. J. Kelliber podpredsednik; T. C. Anderson tajnik; J. F. Bernardin, vratar. Ta način organizacije, kakor znano, je uvedla American Steel and Wire Co. po sprejemu zakona za narodno obnovo, da se izogne določbam zakona in prodiranju neodvisnih delavskih unij v industriji jekla in železa.

Moderne kuhinje

Ako bi navadna gospodinja slišala zjutraj, da bo tisti dan hodila pet milj, bi gotovo oporekala. Toda dokazano je, da gospodinja prehodi nad 5 milj vsak dan, to je v hoji po opravkih v kuhinji.

V moderni električni kuhinji je pa veliko tega odpravljenega. To je dokazano s posebnimi preiskusi. Pronašlo se je, da je za eno jed gospodinja v stari kuhinji naredila 281 stopinj. V moderni kuhinji pa samo 45 stopinj. Stara kuhinja je bila navadna, ki je še danes v modi v mestih. Naprava kot peč, lednica, omara itd., je tako razstavljena, da ni nič ugleda za udobnost. V moderni kuhinji je pa vse tako sestavljeno, da je največ udobnosti. Na primer, le-denica je tam blizu vrat, da se precej lažje naloži, ko se prinese iz trgovine, peč je blizu obojnice, da se kosilo precej dostavi tje. To omogoči gospodinj manj dela in več prostega časa za razvedrilo. — (Electrical League).

A Strike for Young People!

AN EDITORIAL

Never has a labor strike been as important and as propitious for the younger people as the present automobile strike mirrored in Cleveland in the Fisher Body strike.

Young people should know that in the strike they are fighting not only for a settlement of present differences in the automobile plants, but that they are fighting a battle of the worker against the harsh unsocial and inhuman employers. This makes the strike especially important to the young workers. Most young men and women have a lifetime of factory work before them. Will they spend that life-time working like slaves, exhausting all their muscles and energies in the cruel speed-up and production methods the employer demands, getting for that a bare existence wage? Or will they win their demands to have their own representatives meet with employers and arrange human methods of production at a wage that will guarantee one's existence when age will take its toll? The young men and women themselves will have to answer this by the action they take in this important labor struggle.

It can't be a difficult matter to decide for the young man and woman, who is full of energy, bubbling with ambitions to better himself, and full of fight. Put that fight into the picket line and win a real battle!

Washingtons Blast Socas; Clairwoods, Serbs, Joes Other Winners In I-L Cage

Geo. Wash. 23; Socas 18
Clairwoods 32; Buckeyes 22
Serbians 24; Spartans 16
St. Josephs 45; Pioneers 11

In a nip and tuck battle that was featured by many lucky, queer baskets the Socas went under to the Washingtons 23 to 18. With a few minutes left to play the score was knotted at 18 all, but from then on the Washingtons decided that was all for the Socas, meanwhile dumping in a number of buckets. Failure of Koss, until this week the league's leading scorer to come through with more than one foul accounted for the Socas defeat.

Jenc, Flaishman and Jalen were the big noises as the Clairwoods defeated the Lorain Buckeyes 32 to 22. The Clairwoods bottled up the Buckeyes in the second half so well that the Bucks scored only four fouls.

Serbians came through with a 24 to 16 victory over the Spartans. After trailing 9 to 10 at the half, the Serbs came back and played steady ball that annihilated the good showing of the Spartans.

St. Josephs made a scoring circus out of the Pioneers, as they won 45 to 11.

Carries All Official News of Inter-Lodge League

JANUARY 16, 1937

This Isn't News To Some Twelve Hundred Who Were At Inter-Lodge Dance

The walls of the St. Clair National Home groaned, the annex floor begged for mercy, the checkrooms bulged with wraps—but still they came and only after the box office closed and absolutely refused to sell anymore tickets did the influx of humanity stop. That's the story of the Inter-Lodge Reunion Community dance held last Saturday at the St. Clair National Home. The attendance at the dance broke all attendance records for the 13 year history of the National Home. In breaking the record the League broke its own record, established a month previous at the Booster Dance. That dance, incidentally, broke the record made at last year's Inter-Lodge dance—three records in one year!

With an advance sale of some 500 tickets, the dance was assured of success before the doors opened. The attendance was estimated at about 1200.

Gene Beecher's orchestra started playing at 9 and continued until 1 a. m. Dancers expressed satisfaction over the orchestra that came direct from the Mayfair Casino to produce rhythm at the ninth year dance of the Inter-Lodge. Although the National Home floor proved too small for the large number of dancers, the couples seemed to enjoy dancing.

Lausche Credits League

The Sports Revue, an annual feature of the Inter-Lodge, this year was far superior to those of other years. The League was proud to present a galaxy of neighborhood boys who at one time courted the Inter-Lodge sports fields but now have proved their meddle and play in professional ranks. Judge Frank J. Lausche and Steve O'Neil, manager of the Cleveland Indians spoke from the platform.

Judge Lausche's talk was appropriate. He praised the Inter-Lodge for the work it is doing in the neighborhood, and continued by saying that whenever he passes a baseball diamond or tennis court he is envious of the players, because he recalls his youth when he played the same way. Significant was his tribute to athletics when he said that sports tend to produce better lawyers, doctors or judges, because in sports one develops the fighting spirit that is so necessary to carry on in later life. Sports give more of this fight than continued reading of books, he said. The Judge was at one time a sandlot ball player and showed enough promise to make good in professional ranks, had he cast his lot in that field instead of becoming a jurist.

O'Neil's Third

Steve O'Neil's appearance at the dance was his third among Inter-Lodge fans. He expressed his satisfaction in being with the sociable group and encouraged the young men who are going into the professional field.

Introduced from the platform were the following athletes: ADOLPH JALEN, formerly with Bill's Clothes of B, member of the SDZ Clairwoods and now with the Springfield club of the Mid-Atlantic League.

AL GOLOBIC, of the St. Vitus Holy Name, formerly of Zanesville and next year with Sandusky of the Ohio State League.

JOHNNY MERVAR, last year with the Poschke Barbecues of Class A and later with Canton in the Mid-Atlantic League. He is Boston Red Sox property and will return to Canton in the spring.

WALLY PAVICICH, short stop of the Fisher Foods of A, who will go to Little Rock of the Southern Association.

DANNY PAVLOVIC, player with the CFU basketball team will go to Dallas, Texas in the spring.

BOOGIE DOLENCE, flash of the St. Joe basketballers, plays ball with Sandusky of the Ohio State League.

CARL VALENTINE of the Slovene West Side who played in the James River Valley League and hit .325. Expects to return there in the spring.

Many Yugoslavs To Try Luck In P. D. Golden Gloves For Fame In Fistic Circles

The Plain Dealer Golden Gloves tournament which will get under way Monday night, Jan. 18 and carry on through Jan. 19, 25 & 26 at Public Hall will see Yugoslavs competing for fistic laurels.

In the open division, Joe Kasunic of Collinwood A. C. will be among the 112 pounders. Johnny Joca, last year's novice champion will try to duplicate the feat in the 118 lb. open class. Mike Vignovich, of Lorain, Ohio in the 126 lb. division and John Konchan, also from Lorain in the light-heavy group.

The novice group will witness these youthful gladiators: Fr. Kachur Jr. 112 lb., Rudolph Kapac, Bill Kosnovich, Steve Kuhar in the 126 lb. division. Steve Dobrovic, Frank Erjavec, in the lightweight class, Bob Kunstler, Marty Planisek in the welter group. Tony Frank, Victor Intihar, Steve Obradovic, Johnny Popovich among the 160 pounders. Lou Marn of Collinwood is the only heavy-weight.

For the first two nights the action will be in three rings as in the past years. Over 600 entries are listed and plenty of action is in store for even the most ardent boxing bug.

Among some of the prizes that the open class will be battling for is a chance to represent our city in the Tournament of Champions in Chicago and in the national A. A. U. tourney at Boston in April. A squad will be selected at the Boston tournament which will see action overseas.

The P. D. Golden Gloves tourney is being sponsored under the supervision of its sports department, with Alex Zirin in charge.

Makes All-Coast

George "Automatic" Karamatic, Croat who played fullback for Gonzaga University of Spokane, Washington, was selected on the All Coast team picked by Tiny Thornhill, coach of Spokane. He also rated second team places on several All-Americans. He is a junior at the college.

Pathfinders vs Pathfinders

Pathfinders of the Cleveland SSCU bowling league will journey to Gowanda, N. Y. today to engage in a bowling match with the SSCU Pathfinders of Gowanda. The Cleveland outfit will be led by Frank Samson Drobnic, captain. Other members of the squad to make the trip are P. Krall, Lindy Kotnik, J. Koren and M. Molk.

Wrong Club Hop

The Wrong Club is presenting its first anniversary dance tonight at the Slovene Home, Holmes avenue. Johnny Pecon's orchestra will furnish the music.

Honorary members will be admitted free if they present their membership cards.

University football team represented the gridiron element of the Yugoslavs. He was picked on this sheet's Yugo All-American two seasons ago. Later he played professional football with the Pittsburgh Lions.

Players were introduced by Heinie Martin Antonic, president of the Inter-Lodge.

Although the hall was filled to capacity there wasn't any unpleasant disturbances and no damage done which speaks well for the patrons the League attracts to its dances. Mr. Tavcar, secretary of the National Home stated that there were 1050 pieces of wearing apparel checked and the checking was handled so efficiently that nothing was lost or damaged.

To End A Rumor

Some individuals, who must be suffering from an inferiority complex because they can't be convinced that a neighborhood organization could bring as well known a band as Gene Beecher to the National Home, have started a rumor that Gene Beecher wasn't at the dance.

The Fact Is

That the League's reputation is too valuable to spoil by false advertising. People who know Gene Beecher and who have seen him at the Mayfair Casino and other night spots, as well as the picture published in this sheet two weeks ago testify that Gene Beecher was leading the orchestra.

Beecher, Gowns Colorful

Gene Beecher's band, dressed in snappy tuxedos, playing on the specially constructed platform gave the auditorium a night club effect—vari-colored, snappy styled evening gowns of the girls added to the glamour of the auditorium—People who couldn't buy tickets at the box office and those who couldn't buy the reduced price advance sale tickets the night before, will take heed next year and buy the tickets earlier—Chuck Koman and John Bolka were in the box office as usual—When Judge Lausche was going home, Koman looked through the bars and pleaded with the judge to get him out—John Tavcar, secretary of the National Home excused himself for not getting a hair cut—he was busy all evening seeing that service was satisfactory—When a woman, checking an expensive fur coat asked him if the place was responsible for it he assured her that the National Home was responsible for any article lost—the bartenders and girls at the lunch counter must be commended for their excellent work—Steve O'Neil came early, asking for Judge Lausche, whom he remembered from years ago when the Judge played ball with the Collinwood Shale and Brick before a 100,000 crowd at Brookside Park—the judge was a heavy hitter, had a strong arm and batted in the clean-up position—he was one of the first neighborhood boys to make good on the sandlots—The Judge and Steve got together and talked golfing—John Mihal of the News came early and stayed until the Sports Revue was completed—

Among stories told by Mr. Steve O'Neil, was one that should be noted by neighborhood athletes who fail to take the invitation to go anywhere—last year General Motors gave a dinner for the Detroit ball club and only six men came—the following day those who didn't come regretted it—the six who attended were presented Chevrolet sedans!

Cyril Slapnicka, assistant to the president of the Cleveland Baseball Co., couldn't come but sent his regrets in a letter. He said he enjoyed being at last year's dance.

SPORT SHORTS

Billy Koeseel, hard-hitting receiver of the Twilight Ballroom baseball champions, was rushed to a hospital early Saturday morning after an attack of pneumonia. He was placed under an oxygen tent and is still in a critical condition.

Charley Lausche lost a wonderful chance to win the city-wide individual eliminations Sunday at the Linsz alleys when he was leading Stan Rada by 18 pins going into the last game. However a 230 by Rada gave the latter the edge by 22 maps as Charley was only able to compile a 190 game in his last effort.
