Catholic Mission Aid Dinner Feb 12 at St. Vitus

On Sunday, February 12th, the Catholic Mission Aid (CMA-MZA) is holding a delicious dinner at St. Vitus auditorium.

Twenty years ago, Mrs. Mary Otonicar wished to contribute to the needy through CMA-MZA, with her specialty of a hearty meal, and invite family and friends who share the same ideals. She headed the cooking with many volunteers, and that was the beginning of what now continues annually. Mrs. Otonicar has since died and is helping from above as her legacy continues headed by Ivanka Pretnar.

The dinner consists of soup, chicken or roast beef, along with potatoes, rice, vegetable, and salad. Of course, dessert and coffee are the final touch. The serving starts at 11:30 a.m. and goes until 1 p.m. Tickets may be reserved by calling 481-3768 or 881-5163, but are also available at the door, for $7.00 for adults and $3.00 for children.

This gives you a perfect opportunity to be with your family and longtime friends on Sunday Feb. 12 without the fuss of cooking, and thus make new friends in a congenial atmosphere. Carry-out service will also be available. It is a wonderful opportunity to share a meal in your home or with someone who is ill and unable to come, or perhaps a young mother with a new baby who can't quite travel the distance yet. Keep these special people in mind.

We are looking forward to sharing a delicious home cooked meal, served with love and at the same time help the hungry throughout the world. The Church continually reminds us that what we do to the least of our brothers and sisters in Jesus' name we do unto God.

Won't you consider helping the less fortunate in the spirit of Lent? If you are unable to attend, then please remember CMA-MZA with your prayers. Of course, we always accept donations with your special intentions.

We thank you ahead of time, and may God bless you.

Yugo importer bankrupt; manufacturer help sought

by Paul Ingrassia

The Wall Street Journal

The company that imports the Yugo minicar and bills it as the cheapest new car sold in America entered bankruptcy proceedings Monday and said it will count on a cash infusion from the car's Yugoslavian manufacturer to stay in business.

Yugo America Inc.'s announcement of the Chapter 11 Bankruptcy Code filing at the national car dealers' convention in New Orleans angered many Yugo franchisees, who fear the news will cause consumers to shun a brand already beset by a shaky image.

"The Yugoslavs don't understand the implications of the term bankruptcy in the U.S., from a marketing standpoint," complained one dealer. "We're shocked."

Yugo dealers, who got the news from Yugo officials just before the announcement, offered to forgive the $2.5 million owed them by Yugo to avert the Chapter 11 filing. However, Yugo's other creditors weren't willing to be so generous.

Yugo officials tried to put the best face on the situation, as did a spokesman for Zavodi Crvena Zastava, which makes the Yugo. "We have guaranteed that we will extend the necessary financing to reorganize the company," said Toma Savic, Zastava's director of marketing. "We will honor all warranty claims, and we will strengthen the management of the company." He said it hasn't been decided how much money Zastava will invest in Global Motors Inc., the closely held parent of Yugo America.

Zastava "will take over full management of our company's affairs, effective immediately," said Marcel Kole, Global's acting chief executive officer. But he added that the Yugoslavs, who themselves don't operate in a free-market economy, will install a U.S. management team.

Mr. Kole said Zastava will continue to ship cars to dealers in the U.S., and plans several new versions of the Yugo, including a four-door, a convertible and an automatic.

transmission.

Still, it isn't clear how many dealers will stick with the company. Yugo currently has just 260 U.S. dealers, down from more than 320 a year ago, and company officials acknowledged they expect more dealers to drop out.

The Chapter 11 filing was made in federal court in Newark, N.J. The filing lists total liabilities of $62.9 million, but assets of only $30.5 million. The largest unsecured creditor, by far, is the company's advertising agency, Lambert Dale of New York, which is owed $2.7 million. Global, which has been firing employees in recent weeks, now has just 60 employees, down from 300 a year ago.

Launched with great fanfare in August 1985 by entrepreneur Malcolm Bricklin, the Yugo was lauded in Fortune magazine as one of the year's "breakthrough" new products. Mr. Bricklin touted the car, with an initial base price under $4,000, as "the next Volkswagen Beetle," and predicted eventual sales of 200,000 a year.

The company sold 36,000 cars in 1986 and 49,000 in 1987. But then Americans began turning away from small cars, and the Yugo's reputation for shoddy quality spread. Sales plunged 35% last year to 31,541 cars, despite a major marketing and advertising campaign to convince Americans, as the company put it, that "it's OK to buy a Yugo."

Last April Mr. Bricklin sold the company. The $40 million transaction, which was arranged by the New York investment firm Mabon Nugent & Co., netted him about $14 million.

In December, Mabon Nugent, which had wound up with a 33% stake in Global Motors after the buy-out of Mr. Bricklin, tried to sell part of its shares, but couldn't find a buyer. The firm has written off its direct investment of $10.5 million, a spokesman said.

On Friday, Malaysia's national auto maker shelved plans to ship its Proton Saga cars to the U.S. to be distributed by Global Motors. Global didn't fulfill terms of a November 1987 agreement to get regulatory clearances for the cars, the Malaysian concern said.

FORWARD: Permission has been granted to the American Home to reprint the article "The Neighborhood That Wouldn't Die" by Sue Gorisek which was featured in the Ohio Magazine. Our grateful thanks to Ohio Magazine's Editor-in-chief, Robert B. Smith for his letter of consent in response to Frank Zupancic's request to allow publication of this outstanding literary endeavor.

A little bit of Cleveland that is forever Slovenian

First Josie Mohorcic sweeps her front stoop, then she sweeps the sidewalk, then she sweeps the street. All the Slovenian ladies sweep the streets. Their sweeping is a defense against the squalor that lurks at the edges of their neighborhood and threatens to creep in if one is not vigilant.

The houses are sturdy porch-on-porch set close together on thirty-foot lots. Some, built before the turn of the century, were doubtless copied from a builder's plan book since so many are alike. They are small houses embellished with the pretensions of turrets and bay windows, scaled-down versions of rich men's homes. For in the promised land of Cleveland even an immigrant steelworker could have his miniature mansion. Josie Mohorcic and her neighbors wash the exterior of their houses once a month. Armed with their brooms and scrub brushes, a posse in merciless pursuit of dirt.

Flowers bloom everywhere in the neighborhood, filling the tiny front yards and spilling from window boxes. When an area resident ran out of space, but not ambition, she filled an old bathtub with topsoil and planted more flowers. The flowers, like the clean-sweep streets, are a sign of the people's domination over a hostile environment.

In the three Slovenian butcher shops, Azmans, Cimpermans and Malenseks, the butchers work in storefront windows, tantalizing the neighborhood with the scent of garlic and wood smoke. From the clutter of a print shop on St. Clair, Ameriška Domovina chronicles the activities of the neighborhood in twice-weekly editions, half in English, half in Slovenian. At St. Vitus, the church that rises in Romanesque majesty above the little houses, the priests say the mass in Slovenian at 8 a.m., in English at 9:15. The church is the pride of the neighborhood, built extravagantly at a cost of $350,000 in 1930. It was—and is—the people's expression of their devotion to this place.

When the first Slovenians came to the neighborhood a hundred years ago, to work in its steel mills and gas works, there was an implicit covenant between them and their surroundings. They would live amid factories, because the factories were their means to prosperity, but they would make the neighborhood their own. So they planted their flowers, in the shadow of the mills, and they swept the streets, vigilant even then.

As it happened, they were betrayed by the industry that nourished them. But with one hundred twenty-eight dead and the neighborhood in ashes, the Slovenians were not ready to give up this place.

From the earliest days, in the 1880s, the patriarchal families were the Lauschens and the Grdinases. Mrs. Lausche was an energetic widow who ran a boarding house for the bachelors who, at the turn of the century, outnumbered family men ten-to-one. Mrs. Lausche turned her kitchen into a saloon, a profitable sideline, and there, son Frank learned the art of politics. He became the first ethnic politician to progress from the wrong side of the tracks to the governor's mansion. Frank Lausche ended WASP rule in Ohio and won the office five times, a record that has never been matched. The Grdinases were more business-minded than the Lauschens. They owned a dry-goods store, music hall, bowling alley, hardware store, beauty shop, millinery, funeral home and bridal salon, the first one in Cleveland. The Grdinases founded the North American Bank and attempted to wean the Slovenians away from their tendency to bury their money in the basement.

In the neighborhood, Anton Grdina was the delegated elder, newcomers sought his wise counsel, and he found them jobs and brides. Mr. Grdina taught himself to use a movie camera in the 1920s. He filmed major events of the neighborhood: the opera productions at the Slovenian National Home, the concerts of the Triglav Singers. He photographed all the weddings, christenings, first communions and funerals, even those at his competing undertakers, Zaks and Zeles. The women phoned him, early in the mornings, when their gardens were at their best, and he came with his close-up lenses to capture the beauty of the roses while the dew was still on them.

On summer evenings Mr. Grdina showed his movies in the parking lot between Modic's Tavern and Gornik's Men's Store. There was always a crowd, and Mr. Grdina carried a microphone to make himself heard as he narrated. He began with movies of his trips to Slovenia. Scenes of the mountain villages made the old people cry and the little kids fidget, so he'd change the pace with a reel of Felix the Cat. Towards the end of the evening, he showed scenes from the best of the gardens while the neighbors applauded and the chosen gardeners beamed. For a finale, he showed a wedding or two, then the funeral of some prominent Slovenian. The last were subtle advertisements since the Grdinases had gowned the brides and laid out the deceased.

When the neighborhood burned in 1944, Mr. Grdina filmed that, too, although the horror of it sickened him. He said the neighborhood had become a hell and he intended to see it become a paradise again. When he said it, the people believed him because he had always been a man of his word.

There had been a gas works in the neighborhood since 1846. It occupied the bluff overlooking Lake Erie at the north end of East 61st Street. The Slovenians were accustomed to it, as they were to the steel mills and foundries. In 1941, when the East Ohio Gas Company proposed to build a gas liquefaction plant on the site, the people were apprehensive, but the issue was put to them in patriotic terms: Natural gas was the fuel of the war machine, especially in Cleveland where factories operated around the clock producing airplanes and tanks. A shortage of natural gas could cripple the war effort. But a liquefaction plant in Cleveland would make it possible for East Ohio Gas to pipe in enormous quantities of gas, which could then be reduced by supercooling to liquid form, taking up a fraction of the space of the gas itself.

No one had ever built a commercial liquefaction plant and storage system, but the people were assured it could be done safely. Experts from all over the world came to consult. They designed steel-shelled insulated storage tanks they said would withstand the cold of the liquid natural gas (-250°). It was an engineering marvel, they said, and they built their tanks in this neighborhood where a thousand people lived clustered in their little houses around their church and their shops and their lodges. But the experts failed to consider other factors of the neighborhood: the mills and foundries that pounded and reverberated day and night, and the locomotives that served them, thundering along the tracks that lay just south of the storage tanks.

The industrial reverberations were imperceptible to the people, but they were felt in the storage tanks, which began to develop tiny fissures almost as soon as they were filled; although no one knew it was happening.

The presence of the huge egg-shaped tanks made the neighbors uneasy sometimes, even the small children who played near them. One warm day in the spring of 1944, Jan Zelazny, who was six, joined a group of children walking home from St. Vitus Church where the nuns had been preparing them for their first communion. Because the day was fine, the children stopped to play at the ball field adjacent to the tanks. They climbed on the piled-up gas pipes, playing follow the leader, and Jan, whose mind was on the catechism lesson, stood at the top of the heap and announced piously:

"If those tanks blow up, we'll all go to heaven."

As it happened, the day the tanks blew up, Jan and the others were safe at school. It was the mothers at home who died at their kitchen sinks. It was the fathers dressing for second shift. It was the lady who hid in her cellar, convinced it was a German bombing raid, who died when the gas seeped up the basement drain. All the children knew, in their classroom, was that the sky turned orange, school desks quivered and windows cracked from top to bottom, in jagged patterns, like lightning against a night sky. The clock above the blackboard showed 2:41.

Nineteen minutes after the first tank cracked, a second tank collapsed when its wooden support legs buckled from the heat. The explosion shot ten-thousand pounds of gas-soaked insulation into the air. The stuff fell, like burning snow, in some places two feet deep. Everything it touched burst into flames. At Public Square, sixty blocks to the west, a surveyor turned his transit on the flames and measured their height at twenty-eight hundred feet.

In the neighborhood, some thought it was Judgment Day.

"Tetelestai," a contemporary passion play, has opened its twelfth season in the greater Cleveland area. The title is Greek for Jesus' dying words on the cross, "It is finished."

With a modern soft-rock foundation, this dramatic presentation depicts the story of Christ's last week on earth, including his trial, death, and resurrection.

The cast and crew of over 100 people of all ages will be performing at St. Mary's, located at 15519 Holmes Avenue in Cleveland on Feb. 3 and 4 at 8 p.m. and Feb. 5 at 4 p.m.

Although there is no admission charge, "Tetelestai" is able to continue its ministry only through the generosity of its patrons. Therefore, a free-will offering is accepted at each performance.

Others thought it was the Germans. One old man mustered his neighbors with BB guns to defend Cleveland. But most knew it was the gas tanks. They had half expected it. Mr. Feightner, the gas company engineer, threw himself into a water-filled pit and survived. One hundred twenty-eight others died. Seventy-nine houses, two factories, eight stores and two hundred seventeen autos were destroyed.

Frances Zak, who was working at her grandfather's funeral home, drove one of the big hearses down the streets where the houses were exploding, offering rides. Josie Krecic marveled that she never saw the flames that burned her legs. She could only feel the burning gas. She saw one old man crying as though his heart were breaking. "My accordion is burnt," he cried. It was where he had hidden all his money. Eventually the Federal Reserve Bank at Cleveland arranged to replace money that had been destroyed if residents could prove their losses. They came in with coffee cans and tobacco tins heavy with melted coins. One man brought in $1,500 in charred bills he had hidden in the cellar wrapped in metal screening to keep mice from chewing them.

At St. Vitus School, the nuns released the children and told them to run away southward toward Euclid Avenue. Johnny Cesen, a seventh grader, ran home first to rescue his pets. Then he headed south, as the nuns had instructed, pulling a wagon with a canary in a cage and a frightened dog. Eleanor Zelazny's mother refused to leave without her chickens, although the coop was burning. Later, when Eleanor took her to the dog pound where all the stray chickens had been impounded, the dog warden doubted she would be able to pick her chickens from all the others that milled around in the pen. But she crooned to the chickens, and twenty-four of them separated themselves from the others and gathered at her feet like obedient spaniels.

Someone from the coroner's office asked Eleanor to accompany him on a tour of East 61st Street, so that he might know where to begin to look for bodies. Eleanor attempted to reconstruct the landmarks, but it was difficult since thirty of the homes simply weren't there anymore. Some of the bodies would be found later merely as pieces of bone.

People thought the neighborhood would die. Many, like Mrs. Zelazny, moved because it was too painful to stay. Others left because there was no room in the neighborhood to absorb the homeless. The industries were eager to gobble up the territory they had been nibbling at for decades. They offered good money for the land. People thought the Slovenians would sell out, abandon this land at last. So they were all surprised when Anton Grdina announced his intent. Mr. Grdina was seventy at the time, and somewhat frail. Yet he seemed to take strength from his people's need. A few weeks after the fire he stood in his overcoat and black fedora, under the charred sycamores, and proposed a plan. He would begin by donating $5,000 and urging other businessmen to do the same. They would establish a fund to buy the land and build new brick houses to replace those that had burned. There would be no interest on the loans, he said. He could not even guarantee the money would be paid back. That winter, he visited each of the shopkeepers personally and attempted to part them from their money, no easy task with the frugal Slovenians. But they saw the advantage of preserving the neighborhood and they trusted the old man.

Eighteen months after the fire, the first of the new houses was completed. Mr. and Mrs. Kosta Trupinich accepted the key from Mr. Grdina. They had been living in a storefront while their new house was being built. Within ten years, all the burnt-out streets were rebuilt and the loans were repaid. Mr. Grdina lived to see his miracle accomplished.

With the end of the war, the young men of the neighborhood returned to claim the young ladies who waited. As the brides-to-be stood in long lines at Grdina's Bridal Salon, waiting to order their gowns, old Mr. Grdina lectured to them:

"Surely you don't want to live any place else," he told them, dismissing their notions of the suburbs. And many of the newlyweds did remain, to begin their own families on these familiar streets. At the end of the war, immigrants came from Slovenia and Croatia, its neighbor state in Yugoslavia.

The neighborhood remained, much as it had been. Except that, in subtle ways, it was never quite the same. People blamed the fire, but it really was the times that changed it. Television took the people off their porches, and the lively street life diminished.

Thirty years after the fire, sociologists from Cleveland State University attempted to explain the phenomenon of the neighborhood's rebuilding. They sought an explanation for the tenacity that prompted the people to stay. From their questionnaires they quantified certain attitudes: ninety-three percent were still involved with the activities at St. Vitus; eighty percent said they would never move away. But the survey could not measure another quality, one that the Slovenians call domač, home-loving. It is a word they use to describe themselves, a compliment. Frank Zupancic, a neighborhood historian, says that the Slovenians became extraordinarily attached to this place because they never had a place before to call their own. Slovenia was always under the domination of others, for centuries the Hapsburgs and the Austrian Empire, later the Germans, and now to some extent, the Russians. So they adopted this little patch of Cleveland, this rather forlorn valley already blighted with industry, and they make it a beautiful place, a home place.

— PREGLED NAJVAŽNEJŠIH DOGODKOV —

BEOGRAD, SFRJ — Včeraj se je končala seja centralnega komiteja ZKJ, ki je trajala tri dni. Po sičer skopih poročilih v ameriških sredstvih obveščanja, je bilo zasedanje zelo burno, ni pa prineslo nobenega soglasja glede perečih gospodarskih, nacionalnih in političnih problemov, ki bolj in bolj razdvajajo ljudstva SFRJ. Edino, kar je bilo odobereno, je bil sklep, da bo leta izreden kongres zveze komunistov. Na tem kongresu naj bi delegatje iz vseh krajev in koncev Jugoslavije izoblikovali načrt, ki bi bil sprejemljiv vsem republikam in ki bi kazal izhod iz dolečne krize.

Na zasedanju je vsaj en predstavnik vojske dejal, da je le-ta pripravljena igrati neposrednejšo vlogo v reševanju jugoslovanske krize, ako drugega izhoda politiki ne bodo našli. Inflacija v SFRJ se približuje 300% letno, dinar je napram ameriškemu dolarju z vsakim tednom cenejši — ta teden je zopet padel za dobrih 200 din in tako je treba odšteeti okrog 5800 din za dolar, zunanjji dolg Jugoslavije še vedno znaša okrog 21 milijard dolarjev, torej ista vsota, kot ob začetku tega desetletja, živiljenjski standard povprečnega državljanja SFRJ pa je za dobro polovico manjši kot je bil ob smrti Tita l. 1980.

Paragvajska vojska strmoglavlila režim gen. Alfreda Stroessnerja — Gen. Andres Rodriguez obljudlja »demokratizacijo«

ASUNCION, Par. — Sinoči je prišlo do vojaškega udara, v katerem je bil strmoglavljen 76-letni gen. Alfredo Stroessner, ki je vodil Paragvaj po podobnem udaru l. 1976. Novi voditelj Paragvaja je zopet armadni general je sicer Andres Rodriguez. Enoto vojske so pridrvele v glavno mesto in s hitrim, a tudi krvavim napadom zasedli ključne točke. Tanki so obstreljevali sedež tajne policije in drugih objektov, nekatere poročila govorijo o truplih, ki ležejo na ulicah mesta. Sam gen. Stroessner, ki je zadnje mesece v slabem zdravstvenem stanju, je bil aretiran in predstavniki novega režima pravijo, da je še živ in ni bil in ne bo maltretiran.

Gen. Rodriguez je govoril po radiu Paragvajcem in jim obljudil postopno demokratizacijo političnega sistema. Nova vlada bo spoštovala temeljne človečanske pravice, je dejal Rodriguez, prav tako bo branila rimskokatoliško vero in Cerkev. Skoro vsi verni Paragvajčani so namreč katoličani. Najnovješja poročila danes zjutraj pravijo, da so se po sinočnjem streljanju razmere v glavnem mestu normalizirale.

Senatna potrditev Johna Towerja za obrambnega sekretarja odložena zaradi trditve o njegovem privatnem življenju

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Senatni odbor za vojaške zadeve je odložil glasovanje o potrditvi bivšega senatorja in bivšega načelnika tega odbora Johna Towerja za obrambnega sekretarja v Bushovi administraciji. Sedanji načelnik odbora, sen. Sam Nunn (D.-Ga.), je ta nenavaden ukrep utemeljil s tem, da je odbor prejel od sicer javnosti neznanih posameznikov trditve glede nedostojnosti v osebnem obnašanju sen. Towerja. V Washingtonu namreč krožijo govorice, da je ali je vsaj bil Tower ženskar in tudi, da je ali še ima Tower težave zaradi predanosti pijaci. Tower sam zanika vse trditve, vendar sen. Nunn pravi, da je mesto obrambnega sekretarja tako ključnega pomena za nacionalno varnost ZDA, da ne morejo biti glede človeka, ki zaseda to mesto, nobenih resnih dvojmov. Tako bo preiskava šla naprej.

Zapleti v zvezi s sen. Towerjem so zelo neprijetni za predsednika Busha. Poleg dvojmov o njegovem osebnem življenju oz. obnašanju, ima Tower mnoge nasprotnike med tistimi, ki smatrajo, da ni dovolj sposoben za mesto obrambnega sekretarja, in pa tudi, da je preveč naklonjen obrambni industriji sami. Kljub težavam, splošno mnenje na kapitolskem hribu je še vedno, da bo Tower končno potren od senata. Ni pa izključiti možnosti, da bo umaknil svoje kandidature, ali po lastni presoji ali pod pritiskom Bele hiše.

Senat glasoval proti 50-odstotnemu povisanju plač — Spodnji dom tega ni pripravljen storiti — Samo 30% več?

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Sinoči je zvezni senat glasoval 95-5 (glasovali so torej vsi senatorji, kar je velika izjema) proti povisanju plač vseh kongresnikov, zveznih sodnikov in drugih visoko sedečih uslužbencev zvezne vlade. Senatorji so glasovali pod vplivom ogorčenja, ki ga cutijo od skoro vseh koncev ameriške družbe. Kljub temu pa kongresniki v spodnjem kongresnem domu niso pripravljeni glasovati proti povisanju svojih plač. Voditelj demokratske večine v predstavnškem domu, kong. James Wright, išče »kompromis«, po katerem naj bi se kongresniki in senatorji zedinili o »le« 30-odstotnem povisanju plač. Povisanje plač bo avtomatično prišlo v veljavno prihodnjo sredo. Kot sedaj kaže, bosta oba domova kongresa glasovala ločeno o predlaganem 30-odstotnem povisanju po 8. februarju.

— Kratke vesti —

Washington, D.C. — Včeraj je predsednik George Bush v Beli hiši sprejel japonskega predsednika vlade Noburu-ja Takešito. Državnika sta govorila o vlogi, ki bi jo naj Japonska igrala v svetu. Bush je predlagal, naj bi Japonci več denarja prispevali za razvoj držav Tretjega sveta. ZDA želijo tudi, da bi Japonska igrala večjo vojaško vlogo v Aziji in sicer v varovanju tega dela sveta pred Sovjeti. Težava tu je v tem, da mnoge azijske države Japoncev ne marajo in ne morejo pozabiti krutega japonskega obnašanja med drugo svetovno vojno in pred njo. Na dnevnem redu so tudi bile ameriške skrbi zaradi trgovinskih odnosov med državama.

Kabul, Af. - Najib, lutka, ki so ga na oblasti v Afganistanu postavili sedaj odhajajoči Sovjeti, je dejal na tiskovni konferenci, da bo njegova vlada preživelu odhod sovjetske vojske. Tega baje ne verjamejo niti Sovjeti sami, predstavnik uporniških skupin pa je reklo v intervjuju v pakistanskem mestu Pešavaru, da imajo uporniki svoje somišljencike že v Kabulu in drugih mestih, ti pa čakajo samo na končni odhod sovjetskih vojakov. Do tega odhoda bo baje prišlo najkasneje do 15. februarja.

Budimpešta, Mad. — Imre Poszgay, član vladajočega politbiroja, je dejal pred nedavnim, da je bila madžarska vstaja leta 1956 v resnici ljudska vstaja. S to izjavo se je zameril politbiroju in po vsej verjetnosti tudi ZSSR. Madžarsko politbiro je kot reakcija sklical izredno sejo centralnega komiteja. Člani te-tega bodo obravnavali Poszgajev obnašanje in ni izključeno, da bo Poszgaj moral zapustiti politbiro, v katerega je bil izvoljen šele maj. lani.

Mimo dnevnih novic...

... ki nam jih oznanjajo časopisi pod velikimi naslovi, ter berejo radijski in televizijski poročevalci, je prav, da se od časa do časa spomnimo: kdo smo in kaj hočemo. Brez odgovora na te dve osnovni vprašanji postanejo tudi pretresljive dnevne novice le čutni dražljaji in ne več podatki, po katerih naj smiselnou smerjamo svoje odločitve.

Ob preobilici vesti, ki poročajo, kaj se je zgodilo, pa ne dopuščajo časa, da bi se človek vprašal po vzrokih, lahko postanemo kljub dolgemu življenju muhe enodnevnice. Pričenjam živeti brez spomina, nezmožni presojanja in brez jasne smeri. Kaj lahko se nam zgodi kot človeku, ki skrbno opazuje sveže poganjke na najnižji veji, pa pri tem ne vidi razsežnosti drevesa, kaj šele gozda. Kadar pa nimamo pred očmi vse gozdne pokrajine, se v njej izgubimo.

Podobno nas hlastanje za zadnjimi novicami privede do tega, da sredi zanimivega vrvenja, ki ga mnogi zamenjujejo z življenjem, zaidemo in se izgubimo. V tem primeru lahko rečemo, da izraz »izgubiti se« pomeni dobesedno izgubiti samega sebe, to je izgubiti svojo identiteto.

Ni tedaj odveč, če si ponavljamo nekatere smernice, ki so prav zaradi svoje osnovnosti potrebne za razumevanje sveta, in kar je še važnejše, za razumevanje nas samih. V nekaj vrsticah jih ni mogoče izčrpati, le opozorimo lahko nanje.

Zivimo v svobodnem svetu, a smo v bistvu še vedno rod beguncev. Nismo zapustili domovine po lastni želji. Zaradi svojega prepričanja smo reševali življenje v tujino. Usoda dvanajstih tisočev je dokaz, da naš beg pred komunisti ni bil posledica kakke »psihoze«.

Isti režim, ki je vzrok našega begunstva, danes dovoli, da se večina lahko vrača v domovino in celo zasiševanja notranje uprave so navadno bolj civilizirana kot nekoč. Vendar kdo daje tem ljudem pravico zasiševati, dovoljevati ali prepovedati? Nobene pravice nimajo. Imajo le moč. Imajo moč nad rojaki doma, kolikor so jih ustrahovali s pomočjo policijskega in gospodarskega pritiska. Nad nami pa imajo le toliko moči, kolikor jim jo damo sami.

V svetu živimo že desetletja, oprti na krščansko vero, na zgled prednikov, na svoje poslanstvo, na žrtve junakov in mučencev, kot svoboden ud nesvobodnega naroda. Zahlevni smo do sebe, ker vemo, da vodi pot nezahtevnosti le navzdol. Zato vzugajamo tudi svoje otroke v duhu odpovedi in odgovornosti. Priče smo bili, kako so nekatere skupnosti v istem obdobju opešale, ker niso bile do sebe dovolj zahtevne; pričakovale ter sprejemale so pomoč od režima, ki nima lastne življenske sile in se zato vedno znova poslužuje globoko zakoreninjenih narodnih čustev. Po vsem, kar smo doživeli, moramo biti kljub slabostim previdnejši in modrejši. Lahkomiselnost bi pomenila tudi v našem primeru narodno smrt.

† Dr. Tine Debreljak

Škofja Loka 27. aprila 1903 — Buenos Aires 21. januarja 1989

SEATTLE, Wash. — Spet je zvonil telefon. Večerni klici — med nami in Chicagom sta dve uri razlike — pomenijo kaj resnega.

Plaz spominov se je sprožil: pol stoletja stikov na treh glavnih postajah: Ljubljana, Rim, Buenos Aires, ter stotine vezi med njimi in preko njih.

Tine Debreljak. Še kot srednješolci smo brali njegove ocene, td je bil njegov podpis v časopisih poročilih; med vojno in po vojni se je odel z vrsto psevdonimov in se nam je predstavljal kot Vid Zemljič v Koledarčku leta 1946, kot Jamnikov, Jamar ali Dobejc v dopisih Ameriški domovini, kot Jeremija Kalin v Črni maši, dokler ni postal spet naš Tine v Poljubu. Vedeli smo, kaj je bilo njegovo delo.

Ameriška domovina se ga mora še posebej spomniti, saj bi po načrtu Jake Debevca moral postati njen urednik. Pa je odšel v Argentino in tam ostal.

Kje bi našel človeka s toliko energijo? Ne le, ko je bilo lahko in donosno; tudi takrat, ko je bilo vse okrog njega v razvalinah. Vedno se mu je mudilo: v Ljubljani, da ni zamudil zadnjega roka pri časopisu; v Rimu, da bo še našel odprta vrata v zavetnišču, kjer je stanoval; v Buenos Airesu, da bo pravočasno v tiskarni — in da ne bo doma kregan. Ideje je kar stresal iz rokava, ni mogel razumeti, da je edinstven v svoji zagnanosti, ukoreninjen v svoji Škofji Loki, kasneje usidran v Remčevem domu v Zarnikovi za cerkvijo svetega Jožefa; v Rimu tam pri Mariji Snežni; v Buenos Airesu me je gostil na aveniji Gorna, polni hrušča in predmestne razdrapanosti.

»Pa bo Tine...« Ni ga bilo treba prositi.

»Da bi Tine še mogel...« Od zadnje kapi pred štirimi leti je le še narekoval.

»Kam bomo z vsemi temi

Za nas je vera sveta stvar in narodnost objektivna vrednota. Prejeli smo ju kot dar brez osebne zasluge, a to ne zmanjša odgovornosti, ki so s temi in drugimi darovi povezane. Dolžni smo jih gojiti in s hvaležnostjo posredovati. Moramo rasti, a ne le v svojo lastno korist. Bivanje v svetu nam nudi prostost v dobi, ko je večina naroda ne uživa. Ali ni naravno, da smo tedaj v svetu glasniki slovenskih teženj, da smo opora svobodoljubnim rojakom, ki se v domovini trudijo za človeka vredno življenje, da smo nepodkupljiva vest onim, katerih odločitve v SRS zadevajo usodo vsakega naroda, da smo skozi nepretrgano vrsto let nosilci narodove demokratične tradicije in varuh tistega dela zgodovinske resnice, ki je v domovini prepovedana?

Nismo pripravljeni obračati plašča po vetru. Ceprav bi nas isti sistem, ki nam je pred desetletji ogrožal življenje in nas hotel kasneje strahovati, danes rad pridobil za svojo verzijo narodne sloge, bodisi s pomočjo narodnih gesel bodisi s podporami vseh vrst, vemo, da človekova svoboda ni deljava. Delna svoboda je delna nesvoboda.

Kljub temu, da se zavedamo kritičnosti obdobja, ki ga kot narod sodoživljamo, ne smemo biti lahkovrni. Videti Debeljaka je pač vsakdo pričakoval, da bo pisal, pesmil, urejal, predaval, bodril in posredoval. To pač ni nič novega. Kako naj bi Tine napravil kaj drugače? Novost so novinci, taki, ki so prej molčali, ali so se pa še držali maminega krila.

Skoro ni revije, zbornika, časopisa, pri katerem bi Tine Debreljak ne bil aktivni sodelavec. Ker je bil v Argentini ves zavzet, je le nekajkrat segel ven do Primorske in Koroške, tudi za Severno Ameriko je ostal skoro neznanec. Da je že pred vojno odpril vrata mladim pesnikom in pisateljem in jim ostal spodbudni posrednik do smrti, to pač vemo vsi, ki smo ga osebno poznali — to smo pač od njega pričakovali.

Tine je segel preko Slovencov v slovanski svet. Poljsko je klepetal, da si ga komaj dohajal. Reymontovi Kmetje so mu bili predmet doktorske disertacije. Že v Ljubljani in kasneje je lovil stike s Poljaki, Čehi, Slovaki, v Argentini s španskih pisci. Pisal je o njih, prevajal in prevajal. Kulturni kronisti bodo strmeli nad obsežnostjo njegovega posredovalnega dela.

Vedno pogosteje beremo v revijalnih poročilih iz Slovenije: ... prvi je predstavil tega in tega pisca Tine Debreljak v... ali: »Prvi prevode je že pred vojno napravil td...« Do nedavna so sicer opisovali delo, avtorja pa zamolčali. Resnica počasi prodira. Čisto drži, da je bil Tine Debreljak kulturni napetež, ker je hlastal za novim, neznanim, ne zato, ker naj bi bil nestren, ampak ker ni hotel zamuditi predstave »na održi življenja«; novih poganjkov iz globokih korenin ni hotel prezreti.

Via dei Colli že davno ni več, kot je bila takrat, ko je Tine tam lovil rime in iskal družbo, da bi šli na kozarec vina na Piazza Caprera. Tudi okolje Svetega Jožefa v Ljubljani ni več, kot ga je poznal: varnostne ograje te opozarja, da težki kosi ometa odpadajo in da je zvonik v nevarnosti, da se podere. Avenida Gaona z majhno trato pred hišo — in kopico vnučkov v hiši — mu je bila dom daleč zdoma. Le gornji trg v Škofji Loki je prijaznejši, kot je bil pred pol stoletja. Tine Debreljak ni bil Argentinec, niti argentinski Slovenec, ostal je Slovenec, ki ga je vojna vrgla v argentinsko velemesto: ustvarjalec tretje Slovenije.

hočemo, kdaj bodo oni, ki so sistematično uporabljali pov sod po svetu laž in prisilo kot sredstvo za dosego in ohranjanje absolutne oblasti, v resnici pričeli odstopati od svojega totalitarnega modela. Prav dobro pa se zavedamo, da čas teče in da nam trdovratnost režima lahko zapravi priložnost za slovensko vključitev v družbo svobodnih evropskih narodov.

Priče smo komunističnega poloma v Sloveniji in drugod po svetu. V obdobju, ko se zde te vrste totalitarizmi manj grozeči, ker ne morejo več prikrivati svoje praznine, pa tudi ker jih ponekod lepšajo propagandni aparati ne le vzhoda marveč tudi zahoda, se včasih lahko prikrade dvom: ali bi se morali mi v čem spremeniti, zdaj ko propada komunistični sistem, proti kateremu smo se borili in o katerega škodljivosti smo bili in smo prepričani? Vendar sistem ne zaslubi usmiljenja; ker ne spoštuje človeka, nosi v sebi od vseh početkov kal razkroja. Ne škodoželjnost, zdrava pamet nam narekuje, da se držimo čim dalj od potapljače se ladje, če hočemo resnično pomagati rojakom, žrtvam pošastnega brodoloma, ki lahko traja še leta. Prav pa je, da smo naklonjeni in odprtji do vseh, ki razočarani zapuščajo komunistično utopijo ter s spoštovanjem do drugače mislečih rojakov iščejo pot v smeri resnične demokracije.

Totalitarizem, ki je hotel uničiti vse duhovne in narodne vrednote, se skuša zdaj reševati pred propadom z gesli duhovne svobode in narodnih koristi, čeprav je v dejanh da leč od tega, kar oznanja. Po desetletni izkušnji mu večina rojakov v domovini ne verjame več. In mi? Ceprav si želimo, da bi bilo v našem narodu kmalu konec nespravljin nasprotij, moramo vztrajati, ker vemo, da kot vsak totalitarizem tudi ta, ki vlada nad našo domovino, ni manj nevaren, kadar po sili razmer nadomešča strahovanje s korupcijo.

Dokler je v neki državi oblast skrbno varovan monopol komunistične partije, toliko časa ni verjeti nihovim obljubam o demokratizaciji. V sistemih, kjer ni nobene moralne vsebine, obljube nimajo vrednosti. Spremembe je mogoče izkazati le z dejANJI.

Nekateri slovenski komunisti bi se radi prikazali ljudstvu kot nekake žrtve jugoslovanske partije. Takih trditve ni jemati resno. V Sloveniji je pričela državljansko vojno KPS in slovenski komunisti so bili med revolucijo in po njej po lastni iniciativi dosledni likvidatorji svojih realnih in potencialnih nasprotnikov. OF je bila taktični izum slovenskih komunistov, pa tudi jugoslovanska »samoupravnost« nosi slovenski pečat ter nas je zato lahka sram, da je iz našega naroda zrasel tako površen »konstrukt«. Zveza komunistov Slovenije, ki je le preimenovana KPS, je tudi danes edina odgovorna za položaj v Sloveniji, pa čeprav še tako vneto kaže s prstom proti vzhodu.

Izjave vrhovnih predstavnikov slovenske socialistične republike, ki obljubljajo demokratizacijo in tržno gospodarstvo, pa ne store ničesar, kakor da bi se morali boriti s kako opozicijo, bi bile smešne, če ne bi ljudje nanje nasedali. Malokdo se vpraša, kaj pomenijo take neodgovorne izjave; ali zgovorni oblastniki nimajo dovolj moči, da bi storili po svoji volji, ali pa niso zadosti demokratični, da bi odločitve preustili ljudstvu?

Ce ne morejo delovati zaradi nekake notranje opozicije, potem v resnici vlada ta nevidna opozicija v partiji in so vidni oblastniki le lutke. Cemu naj bi bili deležni naših simpatij? Gre pač za oportuniste, ki branijo s privilegiranih položajev le svoje koristi.

Res, sedanja generacija komunistov ne verjame več v Marxu. Vendar dokler vlada, kakor da bi marksistične trditve držale, se položaj v praksi ni spremenil. Ze zdavnaj so se odpovedali Stalinu, ki naj bi bil kriv vsega hudega. Vendar ali so popravili krivice, ki so jih storili v njegovem imenu? S stalinističnimi metodami so si priborili oblast, ki jo hočejo ohraniti v nedogled, če treba z novimi metodami. Ker pa smo že dolgo nasprotniki komunističnega družbenega nauka in sistema, nas njihovo sprememjanje metod ne bi smelo preveč ganiti.

Taktika zavračanja krivde na nekoč »nezmotljive« vodnike revolucije je po vsem komunističnem svetu enaka. Ljudje naj bi mislili, da je bil slab Stalin, ali Hruščov, ali Brežnjev, ali Tito, ali Kardelj, ali kdorkoli, ne pa partija s svojo ideologijo, od katere prerokov skušajo reševati vsaj Lenina. Tudi med Slovenci bi se verjetno iz komodnosti še vedno nekateri žadovljili s kakim grešnim kozlom pa reševali sistem, ki naj bi potreboval po njihovem mnenju le malo »humanistične kozmetike«. Mi nismo pripravljeni sprejeti osnovnih zmot in socialne gnilobe, ki se je nabirala v komunistični družbeni upravi, pa čeprav jo poškrope z vsemi dišavami humanizma. Za kristjana pa pomeni iskat si prostor v krivčnem, dekadentnem, preživelem in nenaravnem sistemu več kot naivnost. To je nemoralno. Zlo je namreč v bistvu tega družbenega umotvora in ne le v sredstvih, katere uporablja.

Smo del slovenskega naroda, ki živi v političnem eksilu (dalje na str. 8) in ki ni nikdar klonil pred komunističnim režimom. Ko bodo zanamci gledali na ta del narodove zgodovine, bodo lahko s ponosom ugotovili, da je del Slovencev v letih preskušnje ohranil notranjo in zunanj svobodo, četudi za ceno velikih žrtev. Zavrnena je pravljica o hlapcih in sužnjih. Slovenci smo narod svobodnjakov.

Ne bomo presojali zadržanja posameznih rojakov, ki še niso odvrgli »rdeče knjižice« ali ki sodelujejo s totalitarnim režimom in njegovimi predstavniki. Naj opravijo s svojo vestjo. Vendar po štiridesetih letih idealizma ne bomo puсти, da bi nam solili pamet oportunisti, pa čeprav govore brezhibno slovenščino.

V Sloveniji žive tisoči skritih junakov, prepričanih demokratov in zvestih narodnjakov. Ko bodo ti svobodni, ko bodo lahko brez strahu po vsej Sloveniji uveljavljali svoje prepričanje, ko se bo vsak rojak zavedal, da ne potrebuje več dovoljenja za poglabljanje v narodovo zgodovino in za odkrito javno delovanje, ker je to njegova pravica, ko bo slovenski zakon enako in dosledno ščril pravice vseh državljanov in ko bodo vsi zgodovinski in kulturni sadovi emigracije na razpolago slovenskemu ljudstvu, tedaj bomo mi odrešeni trde tlake na ledini slovenskega političnega združstva. Ne prej!

Vodniki slovenski partije se verjetno spominjajo Trockijeve trditve, da je revolucija »udarec s pestjo v obraz paralitika«. Trocki se je v marsičem zmotil, a revolucijo je poznal.

Danes so izraziti paralitiki v slovenskem narodu prav komunisti. Pazijo naj, kajti ljudstvo so skozi pol stoletja učili dvigati pest. Mi zdomci ne želimo nasilnih pretresov v Sloveniji, ker visoko cenimo življenje. Vendar če komunistično vodstvo ne najde hitro primernega načina, kako preiti v resnično demokracijo, naj se ne čudijo, če bodo začutili na lastnem obrazu Trockijevu napoved.

Lahko se tedaj zgodi, da bodo proti svoji volji postali dnevna novica svetovnega tiska...

Ga. Restitura Palleschi iz Scarborough, Ont., je darovala kan. $10 za M. Terezijo v Indiji. Iz Timmins, Ont., je poslala ga. Louise Šušteršich $40 kan. za vse naše misijonarje.

Iz Kalifornije so darovali: G. Jože Snoj, Etiwanda, je poslal dar $500: $300 za bogoslovsko vzdrževalnino in $200 za dr. Sonjo Masle na Madagaskarju; g. Alex Ravnik, Hayward, je daroval $100 za vse na terenu; ga. Louise Rogina, San Francisco, je darovala za lačne otroke $65; g. Louis Oven, Monterey, pa za 6 sv. maš $30.

Ga. Anica Tushar je sporočila še tele darove: družina Rudyja Schutte za najbolj potrebne $50. Ta dar je bil dan predno je zelo bolni g. Rudy umrl.

K lanski oktobrski misijonski nabirki je dodala ga. Ivanka Kovač še $27, skupaj $147. Za bogoslovsko akcijo so še darovali: družina Johna in Anice Tushar $300. Ga. Mary Pirjevec z Gilberta, Minn., za vzdrževanje novega kandidata - domačega bogoslovca $250. Ga. Tusharjeva je poslala tudi lepo število sv. maš, ki se bodo opravile v misijonih.

Ko pripravljamo ta članek, je ga. Tushar telefonirala, da je MZA Gilbert izgubila zvestega sodelavca in dolgoletnega organista g. Franceta Miheliča, ki je na svojem domu umrl, star blizu 80 let. Naj počiva v miru in z nami misijonari — večno srečen!

Ravnatelj za misijone

v Sloveniji, g. Franc Mikuž, v 5. številki »Misijonskih obzorij« za december 1988 objavlja »novo ceno« za M.O. Takole zadevo razloži: »Bralce in bralke našega lista obveščamo, da bo naročnina v prihodnjem letu 15.000 din (3000 za izvod), za tujino pa 15 US dollarjev. Te cene veljajo za tiste, ki bodo poravnali naročnino do 5. marca 1989.

Zaradi naraščajoče inflacije smo morali dvigniti ceno, kar boste gotovo sprejeli z razumevanjem. Tudi za nas tako sporočilo ni prijetno, ko vemo, koliko izdatkov pride ob koncu leta.

Upamo, da boste kljub podražitvi ostali zvesti bralci našega misijonskega glasila, ki bo v prihodnjem letu še bolj kvalitetno in da se bo število naročnikov še povečalo, saj bomo tako dokazali posebno pozornost do naših misijonarjev in misijonark.

MSIP 778 so v odtavku »Dosmrtni naročniki 'Katoliških Misijonov'« objavili tekoče zadeve v zvezi z M.O. Po ge. Tusharjevi in malo kasneje po ge. Lavriševi, ki je obiskala domovino, smo poslali na Upravo M.O. vrsto naročnin. Omenili smo tudi, da je g. Lenček predčasno dal zagotovilo, da bodo vsi nekdanji dosmrtni naročniki »Katoliških Misijonov« dobili M.O. brezplačno.

Omenili smo takrat, da bomo pritožbe glede M.O. pošljali od časa do časa Upravi v Ljubljani. Od takrat smo prejeli več pritožb, da M.O. ne dobivajo, čeprav so bili dosmrtni naročniki KM. Predsednica Helena Klesin v New Yorku je bila med njimi in zadnje dneve družina V.B., ki 20. januarja omenja: »Sem tudi dosmrtna naročnica Katoliških misijonov in sem še spomladi lanskega leta poslala nekaj denarja v tiskovni sklad. K.M. g. Lenčku in on mi je sporočil, da mi bodo poslali M.O. takoj, ko bodo izšla. Namesto tega so mi pa začeli pošiljati iz Ljubljane »Družino«. Ker pa nimam naslova g. Lenčka, da bi mu to sporočila, Vas prosim, če Vam je mogoče to pojasniti in se Vam lepo zahvalim.«

MZA bo take pritožbe rada poslala na Upravo M.O. Uredijo pa potem lahko zadeve samo oni. Reakcije glede zelo dvignjene naročnine M.O. na $15 prihajajo zadnje čase iz raznih koncev.

Zahvala Slov. šole pri Mariji Vnebovzeti

CLEVELAND, O. - Lepa zadnja januarska nedelja je mimo. Bila je zares lepa tako v naravi kot tudi v cerkvi Marije Vnebovzete v Collinwoodu. Pri deseti slovenski sv. maši je bila kar skoro polna cerkev. Marija Vnebovzeta nas je bila gotovo vesela, ko nas je gledala, da smo zbrano sledili sv. maši, katero je daroval naš župnik g. John Kumse, Hvala Vam, g. župnik, za sodelovanje, kot tudi bralcema beril in malim z različnimi prošnjami. Potrudili ste se, da je lepo uspelo.

Po maši smo se podali v šolsko dvorano, ki je bila lepo pripravljena. Kar hitro smo posedli okrog miz in skrbne matere so nam postregle s topnim kosirom. Vse je bilo zelo hitro razdeljeno, mi pa smo z vso pridnostjo tudi hitro pospravili. Hvala ge. Zofi Mazi za vodstvo kuhinje in vsem pomembicam, vsem pri storžbi v dvorani, vsem materam za štrudelj ali drugo pecivo, očetom za skrb, da bi nihče ne trpel šeje, vsem pri pripravi kose in dvorane kot tudi pri pospravi kuhinje in dvorane.

Zopet hvala g. župniku za dvorano in šolske prostore ter Ameriški Domovini in dr. Milanu Pavlovčiču za oglaševanje v tisku in po radiu.

In, seveda, hvala vsem vam, ki ste prišli na naše vsakokratno koso. Upamo, da ste zadovoljni odhajali in se boste za druge prireditve tudi odzvali, ko Vas bomo vabili tako na cvetno nedeljo in materinsko proslavo v maju. Želimo vsem vse dobro!
